The spirit of man constantly receives a revelation from God. The word comes always. It does not J. W. Maxwell & Son stand still. It ever has its interpretation in harmony with the spirit of the time. It is as infinite in its evolution as is life. It develops as our understanding of it develops.

He who ties himself to an old custom will stand still in the race of life. If he would go forward to his divine destiny he must be free. He cannot weigh himself down with a ball and chain forged in some past age. He must live in accordance with the gospel of the now-the living word of God.

The past is our teacher, not our tyrant. The dead have no right to rule the living. Precedent is all very well, provided it does not become a manacle. But he who looks for precedent has his face turned backward instead of forward. He is looking to the darkness in the west instead of the rising dawn in the east. He is trying to cramp the growing spirit of today in the narrow shells that should have been and aside when their use ended. The stairway to God leads upward and enward. He who would mount must keep his face to the future. The great teachers, prophets and leaders are those who have sounded the wat hword of the new. They have refused to be bound by anything less than the voice of God in their own
