Man's Ethical Ideas Count, Not His Dogmas.

By Dr. FRIDTJOF NANSEN, Explorer and Diplomat.

IT is for the state to demand that, whatever his religious views may be, every citizen should be given good, sound ethical ideas fit to make him a useful and skillful member of the community. And they should be given him in such a way that they will LAST HIM FOR LIFE, not to be shaken by whatever doubts his religious faith may have to encounter.

The search of truth should be not only a pleasure; it has to be sincere. It is essential that young people should learn from the beginning that SINCERITY is the one virtue which is at the basis of all ethics.

Another virtue of fundamental importance is modesty. Let the desire be to do everything as well as possible and the satisfaction to feel that we have done so. But also let it be impressed upon the young men never, when there is a choice, to do anything which can be done EQUALLY WELL OR BETTER by some one else.

Finally, it should be remembered always that it is not the views that a man holds or the dogmas he believes in that are of importance for his fellow creatures. It is his ACTS. Even the loftiest dreams above the clouds are of little avail if they do not lead to action.

While the religious dogmas of every age have been continually changing with the growth of human thought, ethical ideas early reached a comparatively high level, and certain leading principles have changed comparatively little. I give as examples the ethical ideas of the Greek religion, of Buddhism and of Christianity.

IT IS EVIDENT THAT FOR THE COMMUNITY AND THE STATE THE ETHICAL IDEAS OF THE CITIZENS ARE OF THE GREATEST IMPORTANCE, WHILE A MAN'S RELIGIOUS DOGMAS SHOULD BE ENTIRELY HIS PRIVATE CONCERN.

PROF. LEWIS TALKS OF LOCAL FRUIT GROWING

Harney county Times: One of the most interesting talks during the farmer's institute was that of Prof. Lewis on horticulture. Prof. Lewis went into detail in the matter of growing fruit and recommended some varieties that would do well. His discussion of the real orchard spot where proper drainage may be had as well as protection from frosts were to the point and showed his thorough knowledge of his subject.

Prof. Lewis insists that trees will not do well unless properly cultivated. One cannot depend upon irrigation alone, but must stir the soil frequently and thoroughly. Water alone will not make an orchard thrive. He recommends a mulch of decomposed stable manure and straw over it to assist in holding the moisture. This will also hold trees back and prevent danger from early frosts.

Prof. Lewis further recommends setting out one year old trees and they will adapt themselves more quickly to climatic conditions and a larger per cent of the trees will be saved. He cautioned those present regarding the importance of healthy roots—if roots are broken cut them off—then set the tree two or three inches deeper than it was in the nursery and see that the dirt is well packed around the roots. He further says that it is almost impossible to prune trees too much for the first three years, or until they become bearing. He suggests cutting back at least one half of the season's growth during the early life of the tree and start the limbs out as low as the knee, keeping the inside limbs cut out, as thus the tree may be made to spread with less danger of breaking from high winds.

Should the soil lack nitrogen the stable manure will supply the needs. Among the varieties of apples he would recommend for this altitude are the Yellow Transparent, Wolf River, Wealthy, Ben Davis, Yellow Newtown, Red Astrakan, Duchess of Oldenburg, Alexander, Gravenstein. The first three named in this list have been successfully tried here. Others named have been planted and are doing well, but have not been out long enough to ascertain how they will bear. A second list was also suggested among them being McIntosh, Red, Wagner and Rome Beauty. The gentleman said the Russian apples were best adapted for this altitude and climate and those named are from Russian blood.

Among the crabapples he suggested Russian, Whitney, Florence and Martha. The latter has not been as successful here as the others named, however.

His first choice of pear is the Bartlett. Clapp's favorite, Seckel and White Dian.

Almost any variety of the Japanese plums he considered would do well here and the same might be said of the French and Italian prunes.

Prof. Lewis considered the Olivette sour cherry the best adapted to this section, although the Lambert would do very well as would also the Richmond and Late Duke. He would not recommend the Royal Ann at all.

He considered certain varieties of grapes to be a success and the best would be the Worden or Early Moores.

Clark seedling strawberries Cutbush and Blackcap raspberries and Lucretia Dewberries are all good varieties. The latter is particularly hardy.

Prof. Lewis made some good suggestions to overcome frost. If proper location is made not much danger of difficulty will be experienced. With the air currents right small fires with straw, sage brush or dry manure may be used effectively at small cost. The greatest danger of frost, according to Prof. Lewis, is at blossoming time. After the fruit is once set frost will not hurt it so much.

In reply to the best method of destroying aphids Prof. Lewis said that ordinary sheep dip was good, 75 per cent water. He did not consider aphid a very serious pest. For cut worms he recommends a strip of cotton batten around the trunk of the tree or sticky fly paper.

An old Eastern Oregon Indian chief recently purchased a fine automobile. He bet his grandson, a horse jockey, that his machine could beat any horse in a 100 yard dash with a standing start. Result: Collision, horse killed, auto wrecked and old Ben Hur dies of his hurts. Poor Lo! Too much civilization. With freewater and beazine bugizes his troubles are many.

The Printers' Bible.
A rare edition is called "the printers' Bible" because it contains a curious misprint in Psalm cxix, which reads, "Printers have persecuted me without a cause," instead of "Princes have persecuted me without a cause."

The Mace.
The design of the mace is the house of representatives is borrowed from the emblems of the Roman republic.

Queer Justice.
It was the custom in England many years ago that when a person was hanged through a mistake and the authorities were satisfied he was innocent to appoint a commission, which would proceed to the grave in solemn procession and with due rites wave a white flag over the remains. Thus was justice done.

Japanese Children.
Japanese children are not allowed to attend school until after six years of age, as the Japanese believe that school education before six is physically and mentally detrimental.
