CREED MCKENDREE
C. H. McKendree wishes to announce that his services are at the disposal of the purchasers of the land at the Oregon Valley Land Company's Sale in Oregon. For two years Mr. McKendree was rental agent, having charge of all the lands embraced in the Military Road Grant, which was cut up and sold by the O. V. L. Co. In that capacity he familiarized himself with every tract of land on the grant, became acquainted with renters, and can tell you from personal knowledge the value of each and every tract, both as to location and quality, and renting value. In addition Mr. McKendree knows the stockmen and who rented every portion of these lands during the past two years—he knows whom to see to rent each tract this year. For a unit term fee of five ($5.00) dollars he will render a report giving location, quality and the value, and will find you a renter if the land is rentable. All requests for information must be accompanied by $5.00, either cash or check, and will be returned. REMEMBER, Mr. McKendree does not have to inspect the land, as a renter's "first look report" is in the books, classifying every tract and knows what it rented for last year—he has been over every portion of the grant, he can find you a renter.
Reference—Any bank or business man in Lakeview.

Edgerton's ...Farm.

Is it us, to be guided by the living light and to let the dead bury their dead.
All that which is good and whole some in the past will be preserved, but there is no need of binding ourselves to an evil thing simply because it is old.
Leave the superstitions, the cant, the hypocrisy, the greed, the tyranny, the war, the class and sectarian divisions the injustice to those who labor—leave all these heritages of the ages that are dead and follow the living Christ.
For he is living and as truly leads his people today as he did his disciples nineteen hundred years ago.
But we have hedged him around by a mass of cant, creeds, formalities, sectarianism, these halos, Mammom worship, pagan force and murder, rubbish that we have gathered from all the world and called by his sacred name. Clear away the barriers and let mankind look on the real Jesus.
Do not deceive yourself. The skepticism and new thought of today are not so much an antagonism to true Christianity as they are to that which some are pleased to label Christianity. Humanity is turning more and more to the simple and sublime faith of the Nazarene. The world is eager to receive the truths which he taught.
Are we not ready to abandon the dead forms, the old dogmatic husks, the hatred and selfishness, the ancient spirit of brutal force, the golden idols, the worship of money, and to turn to the spiritual light, the doctrine of love and brotherhood, the gospel of self renunciation, as presented by the Man of Galilee?
Vows amount to little if the heart is not right. They are from the lips outward and are broken as lightly as made. If we wish to abandon our evil habits we must eradicate them from our lives by taking a higher and nobler view, by seeking to render service to others, by entering into the love of good for its own sake.
As with individuals, so with society at large. Laws are the vows of nations. But if they come not from the hearts of the people they avail nothing. You cannot permanently reform the world by legal enactment. You must eradicate the evil customs from the popular life. You must spread morality and intelligence, especially among those in power and place. You must elevate the national ideals. You must inculcate the spirit of Christ in the body politic.
In order to get rid of the wrongs of the past, the racial habits of evil, we must set the racial heart right.
Before we can teach right, however, we must be right ourselves.
The way to be right is to go to the fountainhead. We must study Jesus as he was—free from the accumulated prejudices of the centuries.
We must study his truths as he taught them, not as they have been filtered through nineteen hundred years of creodism.
The interpretation that answered in the fifteenth century will not answer in the dawn of the twentieth.
The world wants the full gospel of the Master, not the medieval conception thereof.
There is no danger from all the discussion, investigation, higher criticism and even doubt of this age.
Truth never permanently suffers from the onslaughts made upon her, but above the babel of voices rises tranquil and triumphant.
Like nature, Christ's teachings contain worlds as yet undiscovered. The vast outlines are now beginning to emerge into view. The race is coming to catch new meanings and to see old meanings in a new light. It is discerning spiritual depths and beauties undreamed before. It sees the bearings of the Master's gospel on social and industrial questions. It is learning that the reforms needed in this age were foreshadowed by him nineteen hundred years ago.
The result of all this will be a greater and broader Christianity than has ever before been known.
The man made doctrines and interpretations are disappearing. The Christ made doctrines are rising more and more into view.
Full of light and music and beauty they are, and they will grow as men grow more and more into their perception.

The Christ Consciousness.
In the last analysis we make our own world. To him that is in the Christ consciousness there appears the Christlike touch in every man. Each soul that turns to him has a new revelation. All inspire him. They shine in upon his vision like blossoms, each with its heart of gold and with petals that reflect the various hues of the one light. Some of them are crushed, some stunted and dwarfed, because they have lacked the sunshine of love, but they are flowers still that in God's own time shall grow tall and straight and beautiful and shall blow freely and fully, giving out their aroma in the universal air.
Do you love the flowers? They are the symbols of the souls of men and women. Then love the souls. Cast no shadow on any. Right not their growth by an unkind thought or word. Give them the sunshine of your love, the glow of your sympathy. And if you can do nothing for them else let them alone. Do not bend them awry by trying to force them to grow your way. Remember, the flower needs freedom and air. Water it, cut away the noxious weeds of circumstance from about it, improve its environment, give it a chance, and its own God implanted life will do the rest.
To the soul that is in the Christ consciousness all things are divine. Each thing rightly understood and rightly used is holy. All days are sacred, all places are temples, all human beings are sons of God and if messages have some inspiration from on high. He sees the central truth of all religions. The God led march of events in all history. To him a flower is a whole in every brook, a perfect in every tree, an altar on every rock and an oracle on every hill. To him each dawn is like the unfolding scroll of heaven, each day like a segment of eternity, each eve like a benediction. He beholds in all things the one life. The crack that is a carpet for his feet or a cushion for his repose, bees that hum a minor chord to his musings, birds that sing for the pure joy of being, sunlight that shimmers upon the leaves, sheep in the meadows and cattle on the hills and everywhere the signs of the labor and communion of men—in these he beholds the objective expression of the soul of things. He knows the immortality of all that is, lives in it consciously in his every moment. He holds the universality of every entity, the unity that runs through the fabric of being. To him all manifestation is the symbol of spirit. The universal love burns within him like a fire. He is in the thought of the soul which is faith and will not only believe, but knows. The veil between the seen and the unseen is to him very thin, and he grasps the hands of beings in both worlds. All he touches love him, for he loves them in return. He has no personal desire except to do good and scatter happiness. His individual will he keeps in concord with the will universal. He not only believes in God, but knows him, for he has spoken with him upon the heights and talked with him in the silence.
The soul that is in the Christ consciousness goes out to all the great teachers of the past and strikes hands with them in the present. He sees the ladder up which he has risen and the ineffable light that glows over it from ahead. He knows that he has come into his own universal and so has become an individual expression of all that is—the microcosm of the macrocosm. He rejoices that this is for every other spirit and would help each to come into his own. He steps upon the mountain top of thought, and the very infinitude of the view humbles him. He becomes as impersonal as truth, as democratic as light. If he could take all the children of men into the arms of his love he would, for his heart yearns over them with an ineffable tenderness.
To the soul that is in the Christ consciousness all things are pure. He sees no mistakes in the handwork of God. He beholds the relative and partial views of men as things that grow into the perfect unfoldment. He sees all truth in beautiful symbols, but behind the symbols is the clear, pellucid and universal light. He sees the way of life that leads up to a throne with a sunburst around it, and in symbol he mounts up to that very throne till he merges into the golden clouds that fold it.
To the soul that is in the Christ consciousness there is joy-joy that bubbles up like a fountain, everlasting, unspeakable. Doubt has fled from him, for he knows. Whatever may be the incidents of life, his joy, love and faith can never leave him. They would attend him through the prison, would stand undaunted with him on the scaffold and would shine triumphant over the misunderstandings and hatred of men. They are a light to his steps, a strength to his sinews and a song in his heart.
The soul that is in the Christ consciousness has overcome, and for him is the promise, "I will be his God, and he shall be my son."

School Ground Planting.
If tree planting is done as part of the school's Arbor day exercises, some one who knows should choose appropriate trees. Persons with slight knowledge of the matter are apt to choose trees but ill suited to the purpose. Such trees are costly in the first instance and will prove costly to maintain. Too many choose trees for their striking appearance or grotesque form, whereas they should be chosen mainly for their use and only somewhat for their general appearance. The school yard is no place for experiment, and only those of approved experience should be allowed to choose the trees or superintend planting on Arbor day or at any other time.

Any day now the north pole is likely to come down and "butt into" the Cook-Feary controversy.

Weekly Magazine
The Great Progressive Weekly

There are many reasons why you should read what it says. It comes each week. It is free to tell the truth. It will oppose the encroachment of special privileges upon the people's rights. It will call the roll on public men and measures and inform you how your congressmen work and vote. It will criticize the executive branch of government from the highest to the lowest, if in its judgment the people's interests are not protected. It will spread the gospel of ideal home life through the Women's Department. It will be conservative when good things are to be conserved, and radical when bad things are to be exposed.
