Jay Bowerman, president of the Oregon state senate, became acting governor of the state at 4:26 p.m. Thursday, by taking the oath of office before Justice Robert Eakin, of the supreme court. His first official act was the appointment of M . E. Fowler of Multnomeh county, as a notary public. Bowerman is the youngest man ito occupy the executive chair of the state of Oregon. He is 33 years old. The next youngest goveruor on record was George L. Woods, who served from 1866 to 1870, and who was 34 years old when he took the oath of office. Not only is the present incumbent the youngest executive in the history of the state of present time.

Either San Francisco and New Orthey can hope to receive the government's indorsement of the proposed Panama Canal Exposition. The House committee on foreign affairs has decided not to invite foreign nations to participate until the condition had been complied with.

Pleased with Lake

J. A. Bechley, former division superintendent of the Illinois Central railway, is making a visit to Lakeview Mr Bechley is well pleased with Lake county and having come here from other sections of the State is competent to judge as to the merits of the country. He unhesitatingly says that as much as be has seen of Lake county be is of the opinion that we have better soil and greater opportunities than any place he has been, while the values of our lands are not above what they are really worth as seems the case there at some other places he has been. He says that a poor man can get a start here which seems out of the question on high priced lands. Mr. Bechley will be in Lakeview some time and will probably remain here permanently as he likes our town.
