SIR MARK'S HOTEL BILL

Relic of an Early Nineteenth Century Election in Ireland.

During the time of a contested election in Meath, Ireland, in the early part of the last century, the Sir Mark Somerville sent orders to the proprietor of the hotel in Trim to board and lodge all that should vote for him, for which he received the following bill, which he got framed, and it still hangs in Somerville House, County Meath:
April 16th, 1806. MY HILL.
To tenning sixteen freeholders above stairs for Sir Mark, at 2s 3d a head, is to me 35 12 0
To eating sixteen more below stairs, and two more after supper, is to me 2 16 0
To eighteen horses and five mules about my yard all night at 1s the every one of them, and for a man which was lost on the head of watching them all night, is to me 5 6 0
To six beds in one room, and four in another, at two guineas every bed, and not more than four in any bed at any time, cheap enough, God knows, is to me 21 15 0
For breakfast on tray in the morning, for every one of them, and as many more as they brought in, as near as I can guess, is to me 4 12 0
To raw whisky and punch, without talking of pipes and tobacco, as well as for breaking a pot above stairs and other glasses and delphs for the first day and night, I am not very sure, but for the three days and a half of the election as little as I can call it, and to be very exact, it is in all or thereabouts as near as I can guess, and not to be too particular, is to me at least, 19 15 0
For shaving and cropping off the heads of forth-nine freeholders for Sir Mark, at 13d for every head of them by my brother, who has a vote, is to me 1 13 1
For a womit and curse for poor Tom Kernan, in the middle of the night, when he was not expected, is to me 10 10 0
Ten hogs, I don't talk of the pig for keeping him sober as long as he was sober, is to me 110 15 7
Signed in the place of Jenny Carrs wife, his Mark X.
Bryan and Geraghty's Mark X.
You may say ill, so your honour Sir Mark send me this Eleven Hundred by Bryan himself, who and I prays for your success always in Trim, so no more at present.

NOTHING WAS LOST.

An Omission in a Wedding Ceremony That Didn't Count.
A distinguished officer of the United States navy once told this story on himself:
At the time of his marriage he had been through the civil war and had had many harrowing experiences aboard ship, through all of which he kept courage and remained as calm as a brave man should. As the time for the ceremony came on, however, his calmness gradually gave way. At the altar, amid the blaze of brass buttons and gold lace marking the full naval wedding, the officer was all but stampeded, and what went on there seemed very much mixed to him. Fearing the excitement of the moment would temporarily take him off his feet, the officer had learned the marriage ceremony letter perfect, as he thought, and he remembered repeating the words after the minister in a mechanical sort of way.
After the ceremony was over and all was serene again, including the officer's state of mind, the kindly clergyman came up to him and touched him on the shoulder.
"Look here, old man," he said; "you didn't endow your wife with any worldly goods."
"What's that?" asked the bridegroom with something of astonishment in his voice.
"Why, I repeated the sentence 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow' several times, and despite my efforts you would not say it after me."
The bridegroom seemed perturbed for a moment, and then a beaming light came into his face.
"Never mind, sir," he said. "She didn't lose a blessed thing by my failure."—Exchange.

PROTRACTED.

"Hello, Barker!" said Smitkin, meeting his friend on the street. "How goes it?"
"All right, I guess," said Barker.
"Seen Bobbie Sponger lately?"
"Yes; Bobbie is down at my place at Westhampton now. I invited him down for the week end."
"Why, I thought that was three weeks ago!"
"IT WAS," said Barker, "but you know, Bobbie is an expert at making both ends meet."—Harper's Weekly.

Malthoid Roofing

Covers buildings in every part of the world. You will find it in Japan. It protects buildings in Alaska. It covers houses on the plains of South Africa. It is used extensively in Australia—Thousands of rolls have been shipped Indo China. You see it in nearly every South American port. Is very popular in Canada.
It roofs the best buildings in every large American City. The magnificent buildings of the Alaska Yukon Pacific Exposition are covered with it. The St. Francis and Fairmont Hotels in San Francisco are protected by it.
Malthoid has a world wide reputation. This is so because it is the original ready roofing. Its makers have been making ready roofings for twenty-six years. They have always made roofings that make good.

NOT A NEW IDEA.

Woman's Rights Not an Entirely Modern Development.
The agitation for woman's rights is not entirely a modern development. There was similar clamor during the days of the Roman republic, and the leading men of that time were much concerned about it.
Gaston Boissier of the French academy in his interesting work on "Cleopatra and Her Friends" thus speaks of the growth of woman's influence in Rome:
"In a country where the family was respected, as it was at Rome, women could not fail to be of much importance. It was impossible that their influence, which was already so great within the house, should not attempt to show itself outside, and the honorable place they held in private life must one day tempt them to invade public life also. The ancient Romans, so jealous of their authority, had the consciousness of this danger and neglected nothing to defend themselves against it. We know how they affected to treat women. There was no sort of unkind remarks they did not make about them. They got them attacked on the stage and mocked them even in their political speeches."
Cato probably was the most bitter enemy of the "new woman" of his time. He watched the growth of her influence in fear for the effect which it was likely to have upon the state of society and the government of the republic.
"Remember," Livy makes him say, "propos of the Lex Oppia, 'all those regulations our ancestors made to subject wives to their husbands. Shackled as they are, you have trouble to manage them. What will happen if you give them their liberty, if you allow them to enjoy the same rights as yourselves? Do you think you will then be their masters? The day they become your equals they will become your superiors.'"
Is it the Catoian fear which leads so many men of the day to oppose equal rights for women?

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Peroxide is something that should be used sparingly, if at all, and only under the advice of one who makes treatment of the hair and scalp a specialty.
Continuous reading on railway journeys is bad for the sight. Always read in a good, steady light. Rest the eyes occasionally when working by looking into the distance or lowering the lids.
The eyebrows give expression to the face almost as much as the eyes themselves. One can do a great deal to alter and improve the shape of the brows by gentle stroking between the fingers daily. The fingers should be well moistened with olive oil or vaseline, which stimulates growth.
Lavender scented sheets are said to induce sweet slumbers. The odor is exceedingly fresh, clean and wholesome. Old fashioned housewives always scented their linen and drapery with sprigs of the sweet old flower. Italian orris root and French vetiver, a dried root, may be used as a substitute.
A few Tonka beans broken in halves, put into the drawers and wardrobe where underwear, table and bed linen, gloves, handkerchiefs, etc., are kept, will impart to these articles a most delicate odor which will be extremely agreeable. Jewel boxes and other receptacles may also be scented with them. They are easily obtained of druggists.
The Grecian coiffure, so becoming to many, is not suited to the woman with long features or a tip tilted nose. The arrangement is usually most effective when the hair is drawn straight back from the forehead, banded closely at the front, and a few tresses are curled over the forehead to soften the facial outline. With the hair slightly and gathered up into a knot at the tip of the nose, the hair should be below.

CALLING CARDS.

New Styles Demand Thinner Pasteboard Than Last Year.
The size, shape and style of cards are slightly different this season.
A thin, flexible pasteboard is used, so that a number of cards may be carried at once without undue bulk.
A woman's card is almost if not quite square, while a man's is fully as long and but half the depth.
Old English lettering, either shaded or solid, Roman block type or the old fashioned script are all in favor.
A married woman never uses her Christian or given name on her card. She always uses her husband's name and that is spelled out in full.
Since a widow's name is identified with that of her husband, she retains that same card after her widowhood.
The fashion for divorcees is to prefix their married name to the one which they were born with. Mrs. Jones Robinson or Mrs. Susan Jones Robinson, it being understood that Jones is her maiden name.
On the lower left hand corner of the woman's card, the address, and how it is furnished, and the reference number, should be printed in full, even if two lines be required.

Tales of Cities.

Manchester, N. H., has thirty-one public watering troughs.
The city council of Cincinnati is planning a subway to connect the business section of the city with the outlying residential sections.
The Chinese city of Fuchau, which is about the size of St. Louis, gets all its milk through half a dozen "walking dairies"—that is, men who bring cows to be milked in front of customers' houses.
In the wall of a tenement house at Oak and Gilver streets, New York, are three windows. By these the passage of the city is on the site of the present city. The windows in which the city was built were signed by the city council on the day on which the city was left this country.
