A CURIOUS WILL.

It Forces a Happy Family Under Peculiar Conditions.
 An extraordinary will has been left by an elderly unmarried lady who died in Vienna. Her property, amounting to about £200,000, is apportioned to be divided between her three nephews, now aged twenty-four, twenty-seven and twenty-nine, and her three nieces, aged nineteen, twenty-one and twenty-five, in equal parts on the following conditions:

The six nephews and nieces must all live in the house formerly inhabited by their aunt, with the executor, a lawyer, whose business it will be to see that the conditions of the will are strictly observed. None of the nephews is to marry before reaching his fortieth year or the nieces before their thirtieth, under the penalty that the share of the one so marrying will be divided among the others.

Further, the six legatees are admonished never to quarrel among themselves. If one should do so persistently the executor is empowered to turn him or her out of the house and divide the share as in the case of marriage. The executor is himself forbidden to marry or to reside elsewhere than in the house with the legatees as long as he holds his office, to which a handsome remuneration is attached.

The old maid is said to have made this peculiar will because her nephews and nieces continually worried her during her life by asking her to give them money to enable them to marry, requests she always refused.—London Express.

OLD MAN HARE.

The Actor's Meeting With Gladstone Outside the Theater.
 John Hare, the eminent English actor-manager, said that the most delightful compliment he ever received was from Mr. Gladstone. It was a double ended compliment. Whichever way you took it it was satisfactory.

Mr. Hare earned fame playing old men's parts, his character as Mr. Goldby in "A Pair of Spectacles" being a good example. Added to this was a horror of having his picture taken.

Mr. Gladstone had never seen a picture of the actor, but he knew him well behind the scenes as well as before the footlights. The premier's favorite play was "A Pair of Spectacles," and he always went behind the scenes to chat awhile with the actor. The really old man and the made up old man would sit there and talk in the most delightful way for an hour after the show.

One day the Earl of Rosebery had Mr. Gladstone to dinner, and he also invited his friend John Hare. The actor came in smooth shaven, looking about thirty-five. He was presented to Mr. Gladstone, and the prime minister shook his hand most cordially and said:

"My dear sir, I am very, very glad to meet you. I know your father very, very well. Splendid actor! Fine old man!"

It took the whole evening for the earl and Mr. Hare to convince him that this son was really the father.

Reason and Instinct.
 A certain north country miner was particularly proud of a clever little dog he possessed. At times he was apt to claim a little too much for his pet, and one morning a neighbor was endeavoring to point out the difference between instinct and reason when an amusing interruption occurred. A seedy looking tramp turned the corner, and the dog, without so much as a word from his master, sprang into the road and offered battle.

"There you are," laughed the miner as the dog snarled and snarled around the heels of the tramp. "E don't like the looks of the chap. That's instinct." Suddenly the tramp turned and kicked the dog into an adjacent field.

"There you are," ejaculated the miner's friend grimly. "The chap don't like the looks of the dog. An' that's reason."—London Tit-Bits.

Two Strange Coincidences.
 A structure known as Stoodley Pike, which stands ninety yards high and is situated near Healden bridge, England, has a remarkable history. It was built in 1814 to commemorate the peace of Ghent. Singular to relate, however, it fell on the very day that the Russian ambassador left England prior to the Crimean war. Rebuilt by public subscription, it withstood storm and rain for half a century, but on the same day that the British government issued its ultimatum to the Boers it was struck by lightning and badly damaged. These unique coincidences have strangely perplexed local people.—Strand Magazine.

Pandemonium.
 "They are going to lock Jones up for the good of the community."
 "What's he done?"
 "He's talking of setting Browning's poems to Richard Strauss' music."—Cleveland Leader.

Rather Outspoken.
 Young Sportsman—Is it worth my time to fish in this neighborhood? Native—Well the fish ain't worth nuthin' to speak of; but then I don't know what your time might be worth.—Comic Cuts.

Pessimistic.
 "What a pessimist Brown is!"
 "What's the matter now?"
 "He ain't bewillin' to give me no more credit."—Detroit Free Press.

CHEERFULNESS.

A Great Asset in Business as Well as in Society.
 Cheerfulness will attract more customers, sell more goods, do more business with less wear and tear than almost any other quality, says Orison Swift Marden in Success Magazine. Optimism is the greatest business getter, biggest trader, the greatest achiever in the world. Pessimism has never done anything but tear down and destroy what optimism has built up.

Art of Papermaking.
 In the matter of making and using paper we are not in line with the Chinese and other Asiatics, who not only make the finest paper in the world, but apply it to all sorts of uses, making window panes, fans, umbrellas, sandals and even cloaks and other garments of it. The art of making paper from mulberry bast is said to have been invented in China in the second century B. C. Afterward bamboo shoots, straw, grass and other materials were also used. The manufacture spread to the adjacent countries. The Arabs learned it in Samerkan, and their learned men carefully kept secret the process by which they made paper for their own use. The crusades made Europe acquainted with the art, and the first paper mill in Germany dates from the twelfth century.

Hoaxing the Latinists.
 Perhaps one of the best of the numerous class of sham Latin inscriptions was that which appeared some time ago in a Dublin paper. It was in antique "Latin," as follows:
 I sabytie haeres ago, fortibus es in aro. Nobile Tibse forte trux, se vaticinempes an dux.
 This purported to have been found near the site of a church dedicated to "the saint known to the old chroniclers as Uncatus Ambulansus." The "Latin" inscription was in reality an absurd rhyme:
 I say, Billy, here's a go!
 Forty buses in a row.
 No, Billy; this be forty trucks.
 See 'em in 'em—peas and ducks.

Life's Turning Points.
 The climacteric years are certain years in a man's life that were long believed to be of peculiar significance to him as turning points in his health and fortune. These are the mystic number 7 and its multiples, with odd numbers, 21, 35, 49 and 63. The most important of all was the sixty-third year, which was considered fatal to most men.

Staggering.
 Suffragette: "What is a party without women? Mere Man (disparagingly)—A stag party. Suffragette—Exactly. And what, sir, would a nation be without women but a nation?—Christian Register.

The Chief Requirement.
 "My boy means to be the champion of the world."
 "Good name, eh?"
 "Oh, no, merely a good judge of whom to mix it up with."—Washington Star.

Comic Cuts.
 "The man who shoots the other fellow's dog is a good fellow."
 "What's the matter now?"
 "He ain't bewillin' to give me no more credit."—Detroit Free Press.

Effect of Heat.
 Why Standing Before a Hot Fire Makes the Face Red.
 When one stands before a hot fire the face becomes red, as we all know. This result is the effect of the action of radiated heat on the nerves controlling the small blood vessels of the skin. These tiny vessels are normally in a state of moderate contraction. Under exposure to heat they relax and become dilated with blood. The same process, under the mysterious connection of the vasomotor nerve system with mental impressions, produces ordinary blushing.
