DOINGS AT STANFORD

pers, but the last and most interesting the new comer is taken and thrown in to a big tub of cold water and while in there is ducked and held under until he struggles then he is given no freedom but leave of absence until next day or when he is next foolish enough to get caught. This lasts about one week and then he need not be afraid of being hazed as it ends with the freshmen and sophomore rush which I shall explain later.

On Friday morning it is the custom for the soph to paste large bills in all conspicuous places about the campus which are called the freshmen commandments. They have printed on them all what soph thinks a freshman is and that is something awful such as bone headed booby and trash the skunks dragged in etc. These are printed at San Jose which is only 12 miles from Stanford then they are brought to the university in an automobile. This year a bunch of the freshmen held up the auto between here and San Jose so the machine turned back to its starting place and the occupants aroused the printer and had more posters printed. This was considered a great victory for the freshmen and made the sophomore real angry, as the posters were posted at about 8 p.m. which is four hours later than they should have been. On this account the sophs surrounded the froshie rooms and as a result the baby calls went without breakfast.

Yesterday afternoon the annual till up came off. This is where the sophs and freshmen were pitted against each other to see which side can tie the members of the other side hand and foot, place them in the morgue and daub red paint all over their face. The sophs are always victorious for they are acquainted and are organized, but the freshmen gave them a merry time this year. The two classes numbered about 500 and there were thousands of spectators. The freshmen were daubed in the face with green paint so that their classmates might recognize them and they certainly presented a hideous sight when they were daubed with red paint all over their faces and in their hair.

There was a big football rally here last night and it makes ones blood tingle to hear a thousand men giving the college yells and singing college songs. The spirit here is great and Stanford is noted all over the country for its college spirit.

There are students from all parts of the United States attending this university and they say that Stanford is the one university in the West that is looked upon as being equal to eastern universities.

It all seems strange to a person upon entering so different from probably anything he has so far encountered. It is worth the while just the same and any boy may enter if he has prepared himself and will study for there is work for many at least many there are earning their way through.

Very Respectfully,
George P. Ross.

BOWERMAN PLANS AID

It will handle a great quantity of crops that other projects cannot produce and there is no doubt in my mind that the work is perfectly feasible and should be prosecuted vigorously. I will make every possible effort to secure a commensurate amount of the $20,000,000 bond issue to complete this work.

On the trip to the Umatilla project the Army engineers, representatives of the Reclamation service and Oregon Congressional delegation, were guests of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company. A special car was furnished and attached to the main train. Two private cars were also added to the train and the engineers will live on the train, until they complete the inspection of the projects in Idaho. The private cars will be switched off at Umatilla and taken to Hermiston.

In his party were: Brigadier-General W. L. Marshall, consulting engineer; secretary of War: Lieutenant Colonel W. C. Langfitt, Major W. W. Harte, Major Harry Burgess, Acting Governor Jay Bowerman, Senator George E. Chamberlain, supervising Engineer E. G. Hobson, of the Pacific district of the Reclamation Service William McCarray, general passenger agent of the O. R. & N., and J. H. O'Neil, traveling passenger agent of the O. R. & N.

The party will be joined at Hermiston by Lieutenant Colonel John Hiddle, chairman of the board, and Major Charles W. Kutz. The Oregon delegation in congress will also join the party on the inspection of the Umatilla project.

Supervising engineer Hobson prepared a special map for the use of the engineers. It shows in a minute detail the work contemplated.

The trouble in Oregon is that it does not make enough noise about what it wants," said Mr. Hobson. I believe that it can be shown that project is more deserving than the 60,000 acres on the Umatilla Reservation. It is deep rich soil and some of the best in the state. I regret very much that such an erroneous report about the project as appeared was printed. The assertion that the town of Stanfield will be undermined is ridiculous. The fact is that the reservoir contemplated by building a dam across the Umatilla river does not reach Stanfield. Besides that, the railroad separates Stanfield from the proposed reservoir. The land is worthless without irrigation.

The Umatilla project is a strip of land about 12 miles wide and 30 miles long on the banks of the Columbia River. It is level and the 60,000 acres are all under the proposed canal. The project is really an extension of the 25,000 acres that have just been placed under water.

It will cost between $30,000,000 and $45,000,000. The land, upon the project is completed, will be worth on a low estimate, $200 an acre, or $12,000,000 so that it would be an exchange of say $100,000 for $12,000,000.

Oregon has contributed about $10,000,000 from public lands sales and has received about $2,500,000 back. I know of no better project than that of the Umatilla Reservation."
