

Model Residence For a Modest Sum

Design 865, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

Here is planned a home that should make the heart of any housewife glad. It has all the conveniences of a residence costing many times the estimate here quoted, yet can be built for a modest sum. The living room covers practically the entire side of the house, but a sort of division made with a column and archway allows the living room to be used as a den or library. It is now planned to be used as a library or den, with bookshelves built in on each side. These could be left out and seats put in if so desired. The first story is to be finished in red oak or birch; second story in pine to paint. The size is 33 feet 6 inches wide by 25 feet 6 inches deep over main part. It has a full basement. The first story is nine feet; second story eight feet in the clear; first story sided and second story shingled outside. Attention is called to the balcony in the second story, ample to seat eight or ten people and also large enough to be screened in and used for an open air sleeping room, being accessible from the above, which is practically a full space or can be used for a sewing room. Cost to build, exclusive of plumbing and heating, $2,550.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 865 for $25.

A WOMAN'S APPEARANCE.

Her Most Valuable Asset. Yet She Often Neglects It.
Of all the arts known to women keeping up appearances is the most useful.

A woman's most valuable asset is first of all, her appearance. As I have said over and over again, we can't all be beautiful, but here are a few of the things we can possess: Neatly brushed hair dressed up to date. Hands beautifully clean and nicely manicured.

A complexion clear from the removal of every speck and grain of dirt, water, soap, cold cream and face powder.

Feet carefully and thoroughly shod. A clean, but it would not be up to date.

A plain gown to match made in the prevailing style and with the skirt clearing the ground evenly.

Gloves properly matched and with all the buttons on.

It is worth repeating that one looks it one pays attention to all these things. I have very little patience with the are of poor quality. But I have even less patience with the clever emancipated specimen of my sex who has too much brains to dress well.

"I can't be bothered," she assures you, and that's where she makes the mistake of her life.

Brains and plain, tasteful dressing are not incompatible. Far from it. A woman is a woman first and then anything she wants afterward. No matter how much gray matter she has, her exterior should be sweet and attractive and elevated. By neglecting this part of her personality she proves that she is not as clever as she thinks she is.

When a woman does any thing she is not to be criticised. Let us be well balanced and remember that we owe it to the world as women always to look our best. MARGARET ORDWAY

Information.
"What, if the authorities had told me that I was a public nuisance, I would have been glad to know you had it right."

"Yes," answered Mr. Moulton. "The second party is not one if her but was our friend."

Teaching Verse.
At four o'clock the bell rang. A girl with a paper in her hand. A boy with a book in his.

Caught.
Mrs. Jackson: John, you have a beautiful silver cup.
Mr. J.: Which? You mean dear! What makes you think?

More Modern.
"Tommy, you have written this sonnet. The pen is mightier as the sword, and it is incorrect. How should it be changed?"
"Pen ought to be changed to type-writer, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

He'd Had Experience.
Her (reading)—And so they were married, and that was the last of their trouble. His (to the young-lady)—But not least.—Cleveland Leader.

Not That Kind.
Tim—Would you scream if I kissed you?
Tom—No—I suppose you better yourself that I'd be speechless with joy!—Blonde Register.

Bemedy For Manhood Pings.
With the new medicine, you can get your manhood back again. It's a cheap but a very powerful medicine. It's the best for three or four times.

Don't.
Don't keep your neck phlegm with the children. He will look them like the 45 tons.

Don't think evening grass is worthless. It's the best bedding for water.

Don't buy grit by the pound when the best is for $4 a ton, and be sure all muddy feed is gone.

SETTING THE OLD TURKEY HEN.

About the 1st of February the big turkey toms get sporty, flash their red cravats, puff out their big toy winders, strike an aldermanic strut, and with a sweep of their brazen wings and an emphatic shake of the noodle on their noses they go to courtin'.

Then's the time for you to get busy making nests in quiet cozy corners, for your turkey hens are due to lay. But don't forget those trilling beauties are from wild ancestry and love best a hidden nest and are often so adroit at hiding away in tangled thickets or brush heap that modern rhymers "Mr. Skunk got 'em" and on the twenty-second twenty-third Mrs. Turkey proudly struts forth with a big bunch of pretty poult.

An excellent "shut barrel" covered with tarp or set in a well-lit corner and covered with brush or weeds in such manner as to lose its identity, will often tempt Mrs. Turkey into believing she has found you, and she will quickly settle down on the soft straw and china eggs inside and lay her clutch, which is usually twenty-five eggs, if removed as they are laid.

Face the nest south, keep the eggs from getting chilled and date them as nearly all hatch, and the quick growing poult must be well covered.

THE OLD OAKEN BARREL.

Keep grit and feed near the nest and provide a big pan of water, as a broody turkey hen likes to stand in water to cool her hot feet when she drinks.

When the eggs begin to hatch don't get nervous lest broken shells close over and smother the poult, for a little rick, unlike a chicken, breaks a hole in the shell and jumps through. And don't remove them from the nest until they are dry, spry and strong, for, despite her size, Mrs. Turkey seldom tramples her young.

A Few Letters to Many People

Advertising Government Homesteads pays—if I can produce the goods. That's the secret of all advertising. A man cannot afford to make a single statement or even exaggerate. When I claim to place you on 320 acres of good agricultural land I cannot afford to allow you to select land in Goose Lake where the water is ten feet deep. You must under the homestead laws personally inspect the land; must actually go on it and familiarize yourself with every 40 acre tract. I can show you the land but you must do the choosing. Is there any reason for you being deceived when you do not see the land? My four years experience in soil observation compels me to show you the best land obtainable under the Government Land Acts. The level valley land or sometimes slightly rolling; the soil is of great depth water is retained at depths that range from 10 to 50 feet. It may vary that much on the same section of land and the quality of the water on every homestead that I have located where a well has been completed is exceptionally pure. The climate of the valleys is such that they have been used as a winter range for sheep, cattle and horses which feed on the native wild grasses exclusively. The snow seldom preventing grazing and the clear cold air and bright sunshine give a tone to the atmosphere which is much healthier than in a city or town. The weather never gets extremely cold as we know it in the Mississippi Valley States above Southern Missouri points, neither does the summer days equal the heat of the states mentioned. There never has been a sun-stroke in these valleys. With soil, water and climate combining, what is the reason these lands are open to entry and that no one has taken them before now? Because of several reasons: first—the valleys in question were remote from any railroad transportation. It seemed too far for the average man to travel beyond railroads and he could not see how he could profitably till the soil without transportation for his produce for market at Lakeview and 4 cents per pound at Christmas Lake. People found they could not sell the product so the supply has been hoarded to meet the demands of our rapidly increasing traffic by wagon or stage, $30,000,000 being spent by Oregon Railroads and wagon one or more lines will traverse this valley. Prices will then come down but you can ship your surplus crops to the outside markets.

8 cents. No one in the field ever tried to tell you all about the many opportunities in this section of Oregon. I begin four years ago and I am at it yet. I could see then many things that have come to pass since. For instance: in twelve townships in Christmas Lake valley at that time there was but one single home. Today I could possibly locate twenty-five people on 100 acre tracts or half that number on 320 acre claims in these townships. Over 1000 entries have been made in this valley alone since I began to locate in this valley. There must be some attraction in it to the attention of settlers. There must be some attraction in it to the attention of settlers. There must be some attraction in it to the attention of settlers. There must be some attraction in it to the attention of settlers.

Now let us reason together: you and I. Do you believe that you can make money faster than you can by securing a place of this land now and holding it even for $25 per acre? In the same township where I located my last party of settlers a 100 acre claim patented sold last spring for $10 per acre. It's worth $5.50 more now besides the improvements which are worth about $500. How about this land being worth more when the railroad comes? Well every day that you let pass without coming here and seeing this land for yourself lessens your chance. Your opportunity based upon a certainty this question but act while you are doing so. Its the man that is capable of thinking that we need in this new undeveloped country. You can't make a thoroughbred cropper out of a Missouri mule, neither can I land a 320 acre homestead, a man unless he will act. I cannot send you any money but I can pay you forty cents in Christmas money for a bright new $20 gold piece with Uncle Sam's stamp on it, but I can show you the best piece of land now open to entry in this section of Oregon.
