BOXING CONTEST GIVEN BY ROUNDS

Event at Plush on 28th Proves Lively From the Start

The Examiner yesterday received the following account of the Anderson-Winton boxing contest, which took place at Plush on the 28th ult.:

store, to which place they had followed him. He then got his revolver, returned to Hart's saloon around by the Cheney corner, looking for Pete Escallier. When he reached the door and looked inside the saloon, Barry fired at him from behind the bar. Veyssade then drew his own gun, firing one shot into the ceiling and the next one into the body of Jack Barry. He immediately left and gave himself up to the night policeman. There was much testimony contrary to the foregoing statement of Veyssade's, but inasmuch as the jury evidently considered that he was telling the truth the Examiner accordingly publishes it.

The jury visited the scene of the shooting and inspected the bullet marks and the location and arrangement of the fixtures of the saloon.

This is conceded to be one of the most difficult murder cases tried in Lake County in many years, and the outcome is considered quite a victory for the defendant's lawyers, W. Lair, Thompson and L. F. Conn, who served under the order of the court and without compensation the defendant having no funds and requested the Court to appoint attorneys to defend him. The state was represented by D. V. Kuykendall, Prosecuting Attorney, Deputy J. D. Venator, and Judge Henry L. Benson, special counsel.

The jury which tried the case was composed of R. K. Funk, L. F. Goodman, Geo. S. Nelson, C. S. Bensfield, M. O. Corrier, J. W. Rehart, Flint Vernon, M. Sult, Harley Vernon, W. W. Hampton, Lig Smalley and Fred Weldt.

Tendered Reception

One of the most pleasant social events that has ever taken place in Lakeview occurred Monday evening, when the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hanson tendered them a farewell reception. The Opera house was engaged for the occasion where dancing was indulged in until nearly midnight when a banquet was served at the Masonic Hall. The menu consisted of many delicacies and was a treat to the many partaking thereof. After the banquet many returned to the Opera house where dancing was continued until a late hour. The Lakeview band furnished the music, and the event will be long remembered by all those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson will spend the winter in their Los Angeles home, where they take the best wishes of the many friends they have made during their stay in Lakeview.
