A drop in the temperature Friday night caused the prevailing rain to turn to snow and Saturday morning the ground was almost covered with a coat of the beautiful. However the sun caused the snow to quickly disappear and by 10 o'clock the ground was again bare.
A. P. Koozer was in from the West Side the first of the week, and expressed himself as well pleased over the prospect for the early building of the N. C. O. through his neighborhood. The survey passes close to his place and he is of the opinion that a station will be established in his immediate vicinity.
Chautauqua Circle
The Chautauqua Circle will meet at the home of Miss Mabel Rice, Monday, November 21. Program—Roll call; quotations from "Shakespeare's London."
"Reading Journey in London" II
Miss Sara Horn.
"Shakespeare's Life"—Mrs. Hall.
"Anne Hathaway"—Miss Johnson.
"Events of Elizabeth's Reign" II
Miss Rice.
"Ely"—English Cathedrals, II—Mrs. L. E. Seager.
Hardly Expected
Probably the greatest surprise of the election was the fact that the "wets" carried Lake county as well as the state. Quite a bit of money changed hands on the result in the county, and Wednesday morning it was generally conceded that the county had gone dry. Until the returns were received from Lake and Fort Rock precincts it was supposed the county had gone dry as it was the general opinion that both of those precincts would go dry, by a good majority, which did not prove to be the case.

The 8-months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Brady, of Fort Rock, died Tuesday morning of pneumonia after a short illness. Mrs. Brady is also quite sick, suffering from an attack of pleurisy. She has just recently arrived from a visit with relatives in New York, while the doctor remained, expecting to come about the first of the year. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.
Owing to work on the new Odd Fellows hall not having progressed as rapidly as anticipated a couple of weeks ago, as well as the non-arrival of the lights, etc., the trustees wish to give notice through the Leader that the building will not be dedicated on Nov. 18 as was announced a couple of weeks ago. As soon as the hall is finished, notice will be given to one and all at which time all will be cordially invited to be present.
When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by all good dealers.

HOW BASEBALL PLAYERS TRAIN.

Diamond Stars Must Work Hard Before Season Begins.

PRACTICE MANY HOURS DAILY

Preliminary Work Gets Everybody in Shape For Opening Game—Spring Trips Very Costly—Training Season to Start Shortly.

By TOMMY CLARK.
The spring baseball training season is now at hand. Within the next few weeks the sixteen major baseball clubs will have their players batting the ball, running the bases, working to take off superfluous weight and undoing the crimes against good condition that have been wrought by a winter of idleness. In fact, many players are on their grounds now. Manager Johnny McGraw of the New York Nationals already has at work in Marlin, Tex., some of the pitchers upon whom he will depend in his efforts to have a championship team in Gotham this season. The coming of March is a signal for tilting the American landscape so that all big ball players who in the summer contribute to the excitement of the pennant races are sent flying to the different training camps to find the sunshine that is so essential in getting athletes in good condition.
Those who know the diamond heroes only by the work they do in August would not recognize the same men if they saw them laboriously striving to get in shape at the training camps. Work that is accomplished with lightning celerity in the height of the season is performed slowly, painfully, or not at all.
World's champion batsmen are unable to hit the curves of the bush leaguers, star catchers have not arms enough to throw the ball to second base, fleet outfielders hobble and limp at the protest of suffering muscles, and wonderful pitchers fall so far short of having their midsummer effectiveness that they are pounded not only by their own comrades, but by any minor league club that happens to be in the district of the tour.
Those who imagine that the professional baseball player is busy only a few months during the year and the rest of the time has it easy should see the teams at practice long before the season opens. The players go to work

In the morning, like the average business man and the way they are put through their paces sends them home at night fatigued and weary and ready for rest soon after supper. The men start for the ball park after breakfast and besides the games played with plucked teams they practice running and throwing and batting.
Professional baseball today means weeks and weeks of training, just as the pugilist prepares for a match, and a player must have a strong constitution to stand the excitement and strain upon mind and muscle during the hard fought games. While the actual playing season is about six months long, from the middle of April to the first of second week in October, long before the race for the pennant starts the men are hard at work, and from then on to the last game played they earn every dollar they receive.
This early training is costly. Before the players assemble at the training headquarters the secretary and the ground keeper have gone on ahead to look after the playing field, the hotel accommodations, the advertising arrangements and the innumerable other minor details. With the team finally gathered together the work comes thick and fast. It costs a nice little figure to feed and house these healthy athletes, not including trainers, rubbers and other camp followers. Then there are big transportation bills and fair sized items for playing paraphernalia, which includes suits for home and out of town games, gloves, bats and balls and numerous sundries. The training trip is an expensive necessity, and the club is lucky if the preliminary games have paid half of the cost of the sojourn in the south and on the coast.
No other sport is as expensive as our national pastime. Some money is taken in at the gate by the exhibition games that are played en route, but it is safe to say that the big clubs spend every year about $150,000 on the spring training trips.
Ode to a Wife.
My roommate is a worthless shirk
Who never does a stroke of work.
He never seems to have a cent,
And when he has it's quickly spent.
And yet, because he's kind and dear,
I do his lessons, buy his beer,
And let him lead a social life,
You see, he makes a model wife.
—Vale Record.
Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by all good dealers.
Croup is most prevailing during the dry winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all good dealers.
