It makes otherwise useless scraps over into toothsome dishes, so that the family fail to recognize the old friend. Handy for cutting and mincing most anything in the food line. Almost never wear out. Price $1.75.

Humor

A FOOLISH OBJECTION.

Mrs. Sniggieigh Calls the Turn on Her Better Half.

"My dear," said Mr. Sniggieigh, who was feeling a little peevish, "I can't understand why you have to spend so much money for clothes. Here we are strangers in a strange city. We never are invited out anywhere. We go to no balls, no receptions, no musicales or anything of that kind. Yet you appear to think it necessary to have a new gown made every week or two, and your bills for hats are simply enormous. It seems to me you might well economize a little. I hoped when I accepted my position in this town to be able to save about two-thirds of my salary, so that it would be possible in a few years to retire, after which we could travel and live in some more congenial climate. The way things are going I shall never be able to get ahead at all. I'll simply have to stay here and work away to the end of my days. I don't spend any more money for clothes than is absolutely necessary. Why should I? Who notices me outside of my office? Nobody. It is the same in your case. What do the people who pass you in the street care whether your gowns are made in the latest style or not? The ones who eat at the restaurants to which we sometimes go don't care a sou about your hats or coats or furs. And what if they did? They are all strangers to you. You ought to have some sense about these things. I hope you don't think it makes a particle of difference to the people you see in the cars when you go into town whether you are dressed as the wife of a millionaire might dress or not. To speak plainly, Jessica, I'm getting rather weary of your extravagance. I wouldn't kick if a lack of fine clothes were going to deprive you of social pleasures. But your costly hats and elegant gowns don't seem to have helped you on at all. Nobody calls on you, and you are never invited to anything worth while."

"Why, Jonathan?" Mrs. Sniggieigh replied, perhaps a little more in anger than in sorrow. "You talk like a crazy man. You can't understand those things. What kind of attention do you suppose I'd get from the clerks in the stores if I didn't dress well?"

Chicago Record-Herald.

Would He?

At a trustee's examination of the pupils of a public school in a New England town the queries were not so satisfactorily that the principal speaker finally announced himself highly pleased and that he would be glad to answer any question that the pupils might in turn put to him.

After much reflection one little chap arose and made known his desire to put a question. Permission being granted, he dazed the trustee with this one:

"If you, sir, was in a soft mud heap way up to your neck an' I was to heave a brick at your head, would you duck?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Turn About.

"What," shouts the patron of the restaurant, "is for coffee and rolls? It's outrageous. I won't pay it."

"Yes, you will," calmly states the proprietor. "My wife went into your millinery shop yesterday and paid $50 for some wire frame covered with two feet of lace and an artificial rose. Now you see how it feels, don't you?"—Judge.

A Plausible Statement.

"My dear, why did you put so much on the table? Why did you have chicken salad at my end and roast beef at yours?"

"Because you told me this morning that you wanted me to make both ends meet."—Baltimore American.

Woman, the Ever Ready.

The Wife (with great presence of mind) — Keep hold of him, Horace, while I try to find a policeman.

Two of a Kind.

A distinguished specialist in Washington was called upon a week or two ago by an eminent government official for treatment for a nervous ailment.

"The first thing you must do," said the physician after an examination, "is to give up both smoking and drinking."

Whereupon the eminent official became real peevish. "Look here, doctor," he burst out, "now you're talking just like my wife!"

A Hard Question.

Bobby—What was the hardest question the teacher asked you today? Johnny—She asked me whether I'd rather be licked with a ruler or a strap.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF LAKE COUNTY

Statement Showing Complete Vote Cast on All Candidates and Measures at Recent Election

The official vote of Lake county at the election held November 8, 1910, is herewith appended. A much heavier vote was cast than expected, the total being 1061, 155 more than were registered. Many votes were "sworn in" during the day and the vote as compared with that of two year ago shows an increase of 150.

Probably the most surprising vote was that cast for Circuit Judge. There are numerous reasons advanced therefore the principle one being the Veysand murder trial. During the progress of the trial, and indeed the whole term of court, Judge Noiland succeeded in making himself strong with the people and they therefore voted for him at the polls, believing that he had earned their support.

The verdict of acquittal in the Veysand case was condemned in certain circles, with the result that many votes were cast against Judge Benson by reason of his having been engaged on the prosecution and failed to secure a verdict of guilty.

The vote cast on State prohibition was 504 against to 432 for. Woman suffrage defeated by 302 to 195. Local option went "wet" by 400 to 338.

The new law for forming new counties lost by 237 to 232.

The home rule law won by 365 to 347.

The various amendments voted on will be found on the sixth page.
