Lakeview, Oregon, Thursday, June 22, 1911

Mr. Gary, of the Steel Trust, says we need a new anti-trust law, and Jawn D. and the tobacco dukes are ready to assert that the present law is not at all satisfactory.

It is a more satisfactory arrangement for the people at all times that the Government should control the trusts rather than the trusts should control the Government.

Suppose that Mr. Taft and Theodore did greet each other pleasantly, there is no significance in that, except the indication that the two old friends desired to meet as gentlemen.

Judge Howard, of New York, will begin a campaign to induce women to abandon high-heeled shoes. By putting sensible ideas into their heads he may set sensible shoes on their feet.

Gambling is to be suppressed in the Republic of Panama, at the request of Chief Engineer Goethals, of the Panama Canal, in the interest of the employees. They will have no means of disposing of their surplus time and money.

Hooted out of Mexico City by mobs, General Diaz is threatened with similar hostile demonstrations in Spain. Why can't they let the old man alone? All he desires is to live in peace for the remainder of his days on the income of his $20,000,000.

The estate of the late Carrie Nation amounts to about $10,000 most of which is bequeathed to a refugee home for drunkards' wives in Kansas City and for a home for children twelve years old and under. Her bequest was certainly a meritorious one.

One of the things protectionists have never explained satisfactorily to the plain man is why the steel corporation sells its products more cheaply abroad than at home. The man in the street, therefore, applauds the determination of the congressional investigating committee to find out why.

The recent experiment of shipping oranges and grapes to New York from some of the lower South American republics proved a failure on account of the fruit becoming impaired in quality by rotting and otherwise. California and the southern states growers will now have their own way at things in this respect.

The Democrats on the Steel Trust investigation committee are rubbing their hands with glee in anticipation of grilling ex-President Roosevelt. The Colonel is doubtless eager for the fray, for the joy of battle is as great with him, whether the battle be with an African lion or a committee of Democrats.

The man who obtains money on worthless checks always offers the excuse that he thought he could get the money in the bank before the paper was presented, which is about as good as the idea of the hold-up man that he can get away before the officers of the law catch him. The more intelligent rascal is the bigger fool.

Popular sale of Government bonds will draw much money out of hoarding and will to that extent relieve the heavy drain on the banks for money to handle crops. Had the Panama Canal bonds been sold in a block, they would have drawn money out of circulation until the bonds were marketed and the proceeds expended by the Government. The sale direct to individuals will bring into circulation much money that was hoarded. The experience of France with the German war indemnity is apt to be repeated on a smaller scale.

Hull Badly Wrecked

That the shattering of the hull of the battleship Maine is evidently far greater than supposed was revealed as a result of a superficial observation made possible by the lowering of the water in the cofferdam, a total of seven feet. On account of this unforeseen revelation of the character of the explosion which sent the battleship to the bottom of the harbor, all plans proposed for dealing with the ultimate removal of the hull have become merely conjectural until much more water has been pumped out. As the water receded every successive foot revealed worse and worse conditions in that portion of the hull forward of amidships which was subjected to the main force of the explosion. The bows section is still nearly 20 feet below the surface and here, it is believed, the destruction will be found to have been more complete.

Colonel Black of the engineer corps, said that he had reasonable expectation of lowering the water a total depth of 18 or 20 feet within three or four days, which would render possible a fairly complete exploration of all portions of the ship where men were likely to have been on the night of the disaster except the bow.

It is probable that the searchers may be able to enter the officers quarters in the far structure, where they may find the body of Ensign Merritt, the only officer missing, the body of Lieutenant Jenkins, the officer killed, having been recovered from the torpedo chamber shortly after the explosion.

A Queer Law

Among the new laws pertaining to railroads which the commissioners are sending out there is one fool provision in chapter 135. This law prohibits any drunken man from entering a train, being found upon a train, or drinking liquor on a train. Provided the act shall not be construed to prevent the use or sale of liquors upon buffet, dining or private cars. What do you think of this for class legislation? If you want to booze be an aristocrat, wear tailored clothes and then get soused as a gentleman should. The only kind of a railroad drunks are genteel jags, legal sprints, and the place for them is in the pullmans or buffet cars, not among the common herd in the day coaches or smoker. It was a bright mind that steered this bill through Salem, and bright minds that let it go through.

Examining Plants

Mr. W. W. Eggleston, assistant botanist in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, who is now working in co-operation with the local Forest Service towards determining the causes of so many sheep dying each year from poisonous plants, Saturday left for the Abert Lake county where he expects to spend several days gathering plant specimens for examination. The area in question is much frequented by bands of sheep which pass through in going from the winter to the summer ranges, and numerous cases of poisoning have been reported from time to time.

Mr. Eggleston will probably be joined later by Dr. Marsh, an authority on sheep sickness, and it is expected and hoped that these two officials will do much towards determining the causes of so many sheep being lost from year to year.

The Purest of Water

The Blue Canyon water, upon which the train crews of the Southern Pacific Company overland route have thrived and grown fat, has been placed in the dining cars over the entire Southern Pacific system. It has been common gossip among the Southern Pacific trainmen for years that the Sacramento division men owe their portly appearances to the drinking of water from Blue Canyon.

For all trains on the Sacramento division running eastward and westward, the supply of water will be taken on the diners as the trains stop at that station. On the other divisions of the system the water will be transported in special containers. In this way the diners on all of the Southern Pacific dining cars are to enjoy the best drinking water to be found in the west. The Southern Pacific Company has had chemists at work for years endeavoring to find the purest water.

In hundreds of places along the line the water has been found that could not be excelled for drinking purposes, water free to a large extent from alkalis, but it has been difficult to find water that was entirely free, or nearly entirely free, from incrustations. Blue Canyon water comes from a small lake and spring at the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains. It is nearly chemically pure but the supply is not sufficient for locomotive use. The Blue Canyon water contains only forty seven hundredths of a grain of alkali to the gallon. The incrusting solids are harmful to the engine boilers if there is any great percentage of them in the water used in locomotives, but the water used by the Southern Pacific engines is carefully tested at different times during the year and if found to contain any incrustations, chemical compounds are added to nullify the effects.

A Pretty Wedding

June 18th at 2 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hahner at Drews Gap occurred a very pretty home wedding. Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party entered the profusely decorated parlor, where choke-cherry blossom were in evidence every where and where the ring service was used, the officiating minister being Rev. Wire, of Lakeview. After the words were spoken which made them man and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Graham received the hearty congratulations of all present.

The bride looked charming in a creation of grey messaline and cream lace, and carried a shower bouquet.

The groom wore the conventional black. Mrs. Max Roehl acted as Matron of Honor and wore white net. She carried a huge bouquet of cherry blossoms.

Mr. Hahner was best man and like the groom was dressed in black. Mrs. Hahner, sister of the bride was dressed in a becoming costume of tan silk.

An elaborate wedding dinner was served. Covers were laid for forty guests. A five course dinner was given turkey, chicken, salads of several kinds, pickles, green peas, potatoes, cream pie, fruit, cake and after dinner coffee was served in order. The bride's and groom's cakes were of exceptional size and quality, being decorated by an expert, and were much admired.

All had a delightful time and after extending best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Graham for a happy life, departed declaring Mr. and Mrs. Hahner royal entertainers. There were many guests from out of town. Mr. and Mrs. Hahner were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts of silver, china, linen, furniture, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will leave Thursday for their future home in Bly and carry with them a host of good wishes.

Mr. Graham is well known here and needs no introduction to the Lakeview people, as he was formerly employed by the Consolidated Stage Company, and by his genial manner is liked by all.

Mrs. Graham is a stranger here, coming from Chicago about a year ago. But while in our midst has made many warm friends who congratulate Mr. Graham upon securing such a charming lady for his future companion.

A Guest.
