Kuykendall, district attorney of the second prosecuting attorney district, the same being the thirteenth judicial district of the State of Oregon, said information alleging that on the 7th day of January, 1911, the then acting Governor of the State of Oregon, directed the said district attorney to file said information; that William Bahuka, deceased, was the last person lawfully seized of the following described real property situated in Lake County, State of Oregon, to wit: Beginning thirty feet east of the northeast corner of block 3, in the town of Lakeview, Lake County, Oregon, and running thence north forty-five feet; thence east forty-five feet; thence south forty-five feet; thence west forty-five feet to the place of beginning situate in section fifteen, township thirty-nine, south of range twenty, E. W. Wilcox, of Lake County, Oregon, was by order of the Hon. B. Daly, Judge of the County Court of said county and state, duly appointed administrator of said estate, and on the 5th day of September, 1905, letters of administration of said estate duly issued under the seal of said court to said Dick J. It is further ordered that this order shall be published for at least six successive weeks from the date thereof in the Lake County Examiner, a newspaper of general circulation, published in Lake County, state of Oregon. Dated this 8th day of July, A. D., 1911.

PRACTICAL WORK OF STATE COLLEGE

The Oregon Agricultural College is nothing if not modern. Even its advertising is done by the most approved and artistic methods. What could be prettier than the pamphlet that it sends out to tell the public what the college is doing? In advertising beauty certainly pays, however barren of financial returns it may be elsewhere, says the Oregonian.

The pictures in this pamphlet tell more than the letter press, though that is as precise and informing as words need be. One picture presents a pair of happy porkers with the college students inspecting them. But it is not the pigs themselves which strikes the fancy so much as the legend under the cut. "Mortgage raisers," they are labeled. Is this not suggestive as well as accurate?

Oregon has never yet appreciated the staid and judicial pig at his full value. No animal brings in anything like the same profits for the same expenditure of feed and labor, and yet the Willamette Valley is far from being populated with swine as it would be if the farmers appreciated their blessings better. The Agricultural College, we gather, is making something of a specialty of the pig, as it is also of the Jersey cow, and in due time the Oregon farmers will get the benefit.

Other pictures show young men at work pruning and spraying trees. The women students are caught in the act of preparing and serving food, cutting out gowns and sewing. What could be more practical and useful? At the same time we must not make the mistake of thinking that all this is shorn of ideal values. The college has its artistic side. The higher aspects of work are not neglected, nor do the students leave without gaining that drudgery. The Agricultural College harks back to the fine old theory of the renaissance, that true art proceeds from the workshop.

Many Idle Men

There appears to be a general movement of idle men toward the Pacific coast, according to people traveling from eastern points to California. The sight of so many idle men has caused much comment among the travelers. Many of these men, it is said, have the appearance of mechanics or tradesmen, and profess to be looking for employment. Train men complain that they are experiencing difficulty in keeping these men from westbound freight cars and say that not for many years have they noticed so many loiterers in the vicinity of railroad yards, stations and along the right of way. Upon one or two occasions bands of these men have taken possession of an entire freight train.
