Lakeview, Oregon, Thursday, August 17, 1911

The Examiner has made arrangements for publishing eight business advertising articles, the first of which appears in this issue. They are written by an advertising expert, and are certainly worthy the careful perusal of everyone who has anything to sell.

Congressman Berger has introduced an old-age pension bill, with a minimum of $4 weekly to each man or woman who comes within the provisions of the bill. Should the bill become a law Mr. Berger estimates that $47,000,000 will be necessary to pay the pensions, a sum which he states is less than is now expended in various forms of charity, such as poorhouses and the like.

Oregon may very likely be given first choice in locating its state building on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. Due to the good feeling that prevails between the two Pacific coast states and the help given San Francisco by Oregon in being made the Panama Exposition city, a sentiment favorable to letting Oregon place its state building anywhere it wishes on the entire exposition tract has developed and will probably develop into a definite promise.

President Taft will designate Thursday, November 30, as a Thanksgiving day this year. It always has been the custom to fix the day Thursday in the month. This year there has been some doubt because November happened to include five instead of four Thursdays. The White House has been besieged by theatrical managers and those in charge of college football games to settle this doubt so that definite arrangements could be made for the array of special performances and sports that mark the day.

Very few if any of the friends of President Taft believe that he should sign the tariff bills as passed by the present Congress, but what a pretty pickle his enemies would be in if he should happen to permit the bills to become laws? But then they do not see a moment except that he will sign them, hence their activity. However the President will have the last say in the matter, for he will no doubt ask Congress to frame and pass a suitable tariff bill at the next session of congress, and then perhaps political affairs will assume a different hue.

Unless the county officers in this state remit the second installment of money collected for taxes within a few days, State Treasurer Kay will be compelled to stamp warrants "Not paid for want of funds." Only a few thousand dollars are now in the general fund. The counties have collected 89 per cent of the taxes for the second half, but are slow in making remittance to the state. The state falls short in its fund early this year, on account of the fact that the Tax Commission failed to estimate the amount required to meet payments from appropriations made by the last legislature.

A speech that went far toward subduing antagonism to the methods of the Department of the Interior marked the visit of Secretary of the Department, Walter L. Fisher, to Denver. "I am a conservationist, but I want to define conservation," Fisher said. "I am for the development of the West for the West, and I am trying to find out what the real West thinks it wants in the development of the public domain. I am against the principle of compensation to the Federal Government for the use of the resources of the public domains, except as it will aid in the development of these resources."

The announcement that President Taft will designate the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day recalls the time when Oregon had two Thanksgiving days in one year during President Cleveland's administration and while the late Sylvester Penney was Governor of this state. Mr. Penney had decided opinions of his own, and without awaiting the proclamation of the President designated the fourth Thursday in the month as Thanksgiving day. Later the President designated the last Thursday in the month as a day for Thanksgiving, thus giving Oregon two Thanksgiving holidays in one year.

Not content with knocking their own town and country, the Alturas papers are now transferring their efforts to Lakeview. Last week one of them stated that the "Citizens of Lakeview are beginning to see through some of the methods of Oliver and Dunaway," and "Just wait until that delectable pair show their hoofs and horns. There'll be a howl then, and a prolonged one." It might be incidentally stated that Messrs. Dunaway and Oliver have acted in a straightforward, businesslike manner with the people of Lakeview and in appreciation of his work Mr. Oliver on the occasion of his last visit was tendered a dinner by the right of way committee. There is no misunderstanding whatever, and Mr. Oliver's reasons for desiring the location of the depot grounds at the point he selected were satisfactory to all. Even should everything occur that the disgruntled Alturas papers hope for there will be no "prolonged howl" go up from Lakeview, for she is not in the weeping class, and if she loses she will not "holler her head off" and herald her woe to an unsympathetic public. She will be game.

NEW STATE FUND FOR GOOD ROADS

Money Collected for Auto Licenses Could Be Used For This Purpose

Salem Statesman: Because of the fact that under the present law the funds collected for automobile and motor cycle licenses are turned over to the general fund of the state, thus affording no permanent benefit to the autoist himself, it has been suggested by several that the money be turned into a good roads fund. This matter was discussed by Secretary of State Olcott yesterday, he being in favor of such a plan if a new law can be passed by the legislature at the next session.

Under the new automobile law through the operation of which the state has been collecting licenses since several weeks ago, a substantial revenue to the state will be made, and would be a fund for good road purposes that could be devoted to considerable use.

It is quite probable that Governor West will act upon this suggestion of a good roads fund as he has already devoted much thought to this particular subject. The plan would be favorable to the large number of autoists of the state as it would mean better roads for them. They would also be paying the money for this purpose and would thus be enabled to see their money put to a use that would be beneficial to them.

PRESIDENT VETOES STATEHOOD BILL

President Taft has vetoed the statehood resolution, basing his objection upon the provision of the Arizona constitution, making the judiciary subject to recall.

"I return herewith unapproved," says the message in part, "the joint resolution admitting the territories. If I signed it, I do not see how I can escape the responsibility for judicial recall in the Arizona constitution."

"This provision, in its application to county and state judges, seems to me to be so pernicious in effect, so destructive to the independence of the judiciary, so likely to subject the rights of individuals to the possible tyranny of popular majority, and therefore so injurious to the cause of free government, I must disapprove the constitution containing it. Could there be a system more ingeniously devised to subject judges to momentary gusts of popular passion than this Arizona system of recall devised as it is. To encourage quick action, and lead people to strike while the iron is hot?"

"The supporters of such a system seem to think it would work only in the interest of the poor, unwise, weak and oppressed; that it would strike down only the judge supposed to waver toward corporations or be affected by the corrupting influence of the rich. Nothing is further from the ultimate result."

"The motive this measure would offer unscrupulous combinations to seek the control of politics and the judges is clear. These would profit by the recall. Don't they include those having money enough to employ fire brands and slanderers in the community, the stirrers-up of social hate? The character of a judge would then deteriorate to that of the trimmers and time servers, and independent judicial action would be thing of the past."

The news that artesian water is to be had in these two valleys is already exciting the curiosity of the homesteaders. They will soon be coming in bunches.

Among the many who can show splendid gradens, J. A. Drumm has no reason to take a back seat. His corn, vegetables, watermelons, etc., are things to be proud of. The strangers who go to see them, at once made up their minds that they want to live here.

A Good Scrapper

Klamath Chronicle: Hon. W. Lair Thompson, accompanied by his wife, are in the city en route to the outside. Mr. Thompson is one of the leading legal lights of Lakeview and was the successful candidate for representative in the Oregon legislature from this district at last election. He made one of the greatest fights for the rights of this section of the country of any man in the house at last legislative session and was considered one of the most able men there.

RAILROAD AT DAVIS CREEK

crosses have been burned up in the middle west, there has been no drought or crop failure in this section. The farmer here has just finished cutting one of the best crops of hay the valley has ever known. All the fields of grain are in splendid condition and promise a bountiful harvest. The potato and vegetable crop speak for themselves, and the fruit crop promises to be one of the best ever produced.

Susanville and Lassen county offer a remunerative field for the merchants of this section and their main source of supplies could be shipped direct from this city.

Goose Lake valley is an old settled community, but on account of lack of transportation facilities it has necessarily been given principally to the stock raising industry. The valley is about fifty miles long by ten or twelve miles wide. In the center is a majestic fresh water lake seven by thirty-five miles. Surrounding the lake are the agricultural and fruit lands, while still further back rise the mountains for the most part covered with a heavy growth of commercial timber.

Lying at an altitude of 4800 feet above sea level, the air is crisp, clear and bracing. Numerous streams of pure, crystal water emerge from the canons, and mountain gorges furnish water for domestic use and irrigation. The soil is deep and rich, and produces abundant crops of anything that can be grown in the temperate zone, either with or without irrigation.

The large tracts are being gradually subdivided into farms and sold to settlers and home seekers. With the population that the country is capable of sustaining it means that every foot of available ground between the mountains and the lake will eventually be farmed intensively.

Transportation men have estimated that in the very near future Goose Lake valley will produce 50,000 car-loads of wheat per annum. When to this is added the yield of hay, grain, vegetables and byproducts, some idea of the agricultural possibilities of the land may be realized.

The Goose Lake valley offers to the settler from the east and middle west a opportunity of securing a home in a country extremely rich and fertile. There is hunting and fishing, boating and bathing, mountain climbing, camping out, horseback riding, and a summer hotel is soon to follow. Only recently a gentleman from Omaha selected a site on the shores of Goose Lake where he intends building a summer home, and a yacht has been ordered for 1912.

Every forty acres of land in the agricultural section of Goose Lake valley will support a family. As there are upwards of 100,000 acres, it means that eventually there will be in the valley in excess of 10,000 people, and this does not include the added population of the towns and cities. The larger portion of the products from this district will be shipped to or through Reno, which will in time, on account of its geographical location, become the distributing point for this output.

After Hounds

Persistent reports from all over the state have reached the office of Game Warden William S. Finley to the effect that the laws prohibiting the hunting of deer with hounds are being violated. At the present time, deputies are hastening to the various grounds where deer are known to gather, with explicit instructions to arrest such violators and prosecute them to the full extent of the law. Mr. Finley states that he will overlook no opportunity to punish deer hunters who use hounds or other dogs for the pursuit of deer, as the extinction of this animal is assured unless strenuous measures are adopted immediately.

Railroad For Surprise

Several papers in the surrounding counties have been publishing the report of a railroad meeting held at Cedarville and stating that a railroad was soon to be built. A meeting was held here some days ago, says the Record, but we were requested to say nothing of the proceedings. We did not—but as others have made the announcement, we feel at liberty to briefly state the proposition, which is that the people of Surprise valley are to raise $400,000, then bonds for a like sum will be issued, making $800,000 as a nucleus to work on. Further dependent await not.

New Road From Mines

Surprise Record: The new road being built from the Hoag Mines to Pine Creek will effect this valley, as all the freight and passenger transportation, as well as the general travel to and from the mines will go by the way of the railroad at New Pine Creek. Bidwell will doubtless lose more than any other place, as Pine Creek being a railroad town will probably draw all that was expected for Bidwell. This means that if a large force of men is put to work in the mines Surprise valley will lose the largest portion of their trade.

West Side Fruit

A. P. Koozer, of the West Side, a few days since had on display at Bieber's Store branches of gooseberry and currant bushes that were literally covered with fruit. And not only that but the quality, size and general appearance could not be surpassed. They not only attracted attention from passersby but were conclusive evidence of what may be produced on the dry lands of the West Side without irrigation.
