New Surprise Station

Cedarville Record: W. S. Landborn, the railroad agent at Surprise Station, was here yesterday, getting acquainted with our business men. He informed us that they would be able to handle freight at the new station in about a week. The railroad company has erected a fine large depot and warehouse at Surprise for the convenience of Surprise Valley, at a cost of over three thousand dollars, thus placing railroad accommodations within 17 miles of Cedarville. Our people should appreciate this fact, by patronizing the new station.

Dunn-Mikel

Geo. W. Dunn, division superintendent of the Consolidated Stage Co. between Blv and Klamath Falls, and Miss Gertie Mikel, of Lakeview, were married today, Rev. Dr. Price officiating. Both parties are well and favorably known in both Lake and Klamath counties and their many friends join the Examiner in extending congratulations. George has always been popular with the fair sex and it was generally supposed that he was proof against Cupid's darts, but at last a vulnerable spot has been struck.

DEPOT LOCATED IN WATSON ADDITION

Center-Street Site Chosen and Warehouse Immediately South

A site for the N.-C.-O. depot grounds has been tentatively agreed upon, the location being in Watson's addition. The prospective site lies east of Pine street and south of Center. The depot facing Center.

The railroad company has signified its desire to commence work on the depot immediately, and it is likely that within a few days ground will be broken therefor.

Another Artesian Well

Chewaucan Press: I. N. Hale, the artesian well man who has been drilling for artesian water on his own land at the head of Summer Lake, reports a strong well at 180 feet. The flow is sufficient to irrigate from 80 to 100 acres of land and Mr. Hale is very jubilant over its success. He intends to drill eight more wells, here and there on his own property, after which he will start work on the contracts that are waiting for him with other ranchers.

Every new well that is successfully driven is an additional advertisement of the fact that we are living in the greatest country in Oregon. In most countries artesian water can only be had at great depths, usually a thousand feet or deeper, and only a wealthy man can afford it. But in Summer Lake and Chewaucan valleys it is to be had by the farmer of moderate means and water on some of these lands spells the difference between success and failure. Nature has surely done wonders for these valleys. It only remains for us to do our part and we will have a country that cannot be excelled the world over.

Jim Hill at Burns

President Carl R. Gray, of the North Bank system, has been advised that James J. Hill would come to Oregon to attend the three day session of the Oregon Development League at Burns and that he would leave there immediately after the close of the convention and proceed to Bend, where he would arrive about noon on Thursday, October 5. The program calls for the driving of the golden spike marking the arrival of the Oregon Trunk line to that city, in the afternoon of the same day. Mr. Hill will play a prominent part in the driving of the spike and will leave immediately thereafter for Sookane, where he is due the following day.

Roseburg is getting quite sarcastic and bellicose in regard to the manner in which the morality laws of that dry town are being enforced by the chief of police.

SPECIAL SESSION NOT TO BE CALLED

Restrictions Asked For By Governor West Are Too Great

For a time last week it appeared almost certain that Governor West would call a special session of the Legislature to consider the bills for good roads as outlined by the Oregon Good Roads Commission, which were fully set forth in the Examiner last week. The Governor planned to have the members assemble without cost to the state and to pledge themselves to not consider his vetoes of numerous measures passed at the last session of the Legislature. It was ascertained that it would necessitate the members violating their oath of office if the veto messages were not considered, while many objected to paying their own expenses, and as a consequence the special session will not be held.

That the State Grange is opposed to the movement for an extra session of the state legislature, considering it needless on account of the act of Governor West, is the statement made by C. E. Spence, master of the State Grange. He says the Grangers are in favor of putting good road laws before the people by use of the initiative and that it is their intention to have these come up at the next general election. "The very same men," said Mr. Spence, "who passed the road laws at the last session will compose the extra session of the legislature. As these were vetoed by Governor West, it seems unnecessary for the body to meet, pass good roads measures as they see fit, and have them again fall under the veto ax. It is unreasonable also to expect the members of the legislature to serve without pay."

W. R. Davis Yet With Us

Nearly a year ago the death of W. R. Davis, of Lower Klamath Lake, was reported by the Klamath papers and republished in the Examiner at that time. A couple of weeks ago the Examiner man was at Klamath Falls, and while there should meet none other than Mr. Davis himself. Explanations followed, and while Mr. Davis had heard of his reported death he most strenuously denied its correctness. He is now residing at Ashland, and his many friends in Goose Lake Valley will be pleased to learn that he is not only alive but enjoying the very best of health. Mr. Davis is a very warm friend of the editor of the Examiner, and therefore to meet him in the flesh and blood, after having considered him dead for a year, was most pleasing.

A Watermelon Raid

A party of Bend people last week raided a watermelon patch at Summer Lake. According to a correspondent of the Chewaucan Press, the realization did not come up to expectations. Someone with a nose for fun, a baby cannon and plenty of noisy black powder cartridges, hid in the corn near the melon patch, and just as the Bend bunch was lugging away the loot the joker uncorked a fusillade that sounded like the crack of doom. After razing half a mile, while the firing continued, the women of the party tumbled down an embankment, rolling neck deep into the river. The men were among the also rans. They're still looking for the joke—and joker.

Southern Pacific Employee Walks 203,670 Miles in Thirty-one Years

Walking eighteen miles each day for a period of thirty one years through the snowsheds of the Southern Pacific Company at the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains, during which time he has had to fight several desperate battles with bands of trappers and has had to battle with the severe winters of the high Sierras, is the record of Manuel K. Silva, whose name has just been placed on the pension list of the railroad. Silva describes the hardships endured in that cold and sparsely settled section in a manner that would make the fingers of the news writer itch for a pencil and a wad of copy paper.

"I have walked eighteen miles every day for thirty one years, a beat of three miles, over which I made three round trips every night. Figure it out. Sixty five hundred and seventy miles a year and 203,670 miles in thirty one years. More than eight times around the world."

Silva is a native of Portugal and is now on a visit to that country with his wife. He entered the Southern Pacific service as a section laborer in 1879 and a year later became a shed watchman on the night shift. He has worked faithfully and steadily since assuming that position and was absent from duty only twice because of sickness. The duties of shed watchman are more responsible than one would suppose, and Silva held the position for thirty one years without a complaint being registered against him. He has been retired and pensioned although he is only 61 years old and upon his return from the old country will settle in the mountains for which he has developed such a fondness.

One of the most interesting films that the writer has ever seen was shown at the Sunday evening moving picture show at the Opera House. The film was entitled "The Rustlers" and showed a band of these men at work rounding up horses on the range. Other peculiar characteristics of their mode of living were also shown.

The ladies of the Catholic Altar Society held a well attended meeting at the church building Thursday afternoon last, and made many arrangements towards fixing up the new church for the arrival of Bishop O'Reilly, who is expected here October 15. An altar is being constructed, and carpets and other necessary paraphernalia have been ordered.

Klamath Herald: O. T. McKendree came in from Lake county Saturday to meet a band of sheep which he expected to arrive from the Blv country. They never arrived, however, and now Shone is trying to locate the dear little lambs, which are supposed to be somewhere in this county or the next. He says the sheep are not lost, but he don't know about the herders.

Among those who will leave for Burns Saturday are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Shirk, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lair Thompson, F. P. Licht, J. F. Hanson and G. W. and M. B. Rice. They go to assist in representing Lake County at the meeting of the Oregon Development League, and will no doubt give a good account of themselves. They will also probably take in Railroad Day at Bend, which will also be held next week.

Mrs. Jonas Norin, Lake County's popular candidate in the Klamath Herald's auto contest, lost out by less than 22,000 votes, her vote being 2,508,415 as against 2,536,275 for Mrs. W. I. Clarke, the winner. One five years' subscription would have changed the result in Mrs. Norin's favor. Mrs. Don J. Zumwalt received 2,220,300 votes, none of the other candidates reaching the million mark. Mr. Norin was present when the votes were counted, and expressed the opinion that everything was conducted fairly.
