In that period there were 96 convictions, with fines averaging $25 each. Of these seven were for taking small trout. Thirty two convictions were had for fishing and hunting without a license. The Commission's fund was increased $800 by the collection of these fines alone.

Three persons were convicted for failure to screen ditches, and paid a fine of $50 each. Eight persons paid $25 each for violating of the law against fishing at night. Eight persons were fined $50 each for dumping sawdust into streams. L. R. Bunyard, of Harney County, paid a fine of $150 for this offense. Williams Brothers, of the same district paid a fine of $100. Four convictions were had for foul hooking of salmon, the aggregate of fines being $200. Dynamiting streams cost three persons fines of $50 each. Hunting deer with dogs brought in three fines of similar amount. Three fines of $25 each were imposed for killing ducks. Four convictions were had for killing of does, the fines amounting to $200. Other fines of $50 each were imposed for such offenses as selling salmon without a license, killing grouse and quail, mutilating deer and killing beaver.

GOLD PRODUCTION SHOWS DECREASE

In Oregon, according to Charles G. Yale, of the United States Geological Survey, the total value of the mine production of gold, silver and copper in 1910 was $700,676, against $827,001 in 1909, which, however, also includes the value of the lead produced that year. The ore treated in 1910 was 82,132 short tons against 69,281 tons in 1909. The production of gold decreased from $781,964 in 1909 to $679,488 in 1910; that of silver increased from 27,827 fine ounces, valued at $144,70, to 359,78 fine ounces, valued at $194,28; that of copper fell off from 235,060 pounds valued at $30,550, to 113,861 pounds, valued at $1,760; and that of lead declined from 400 pounds in 1909 to nothing in 1910. Baker County led in gold production with an output of $401,002, mostly from deep mines, followed by Josephine with $150,048 from both placers and deep mines. All of the copper production and 29,835 ounces of the silver output also came from Baker County, whose output of gold, silver and copper was valued at $418,873 in 1910. The combined gold output from southwestern Oregon in 1910 was $209,324, of which $130,103 was placer gold. The placer output of this region decreased $551,491 in 1910. The mines of northeastern Oregon produced $470,164 in gold in 1910, of which the placer yield was $40,822 and the deep mine yield $429,324. The placers of this region showed an increase of $4,756 in 1910 and the deep mines a decrease of $42,311.

CONTRACT LABOR IN OREGON ENDS

Salem, Oct. 3.—Contract labor in Oregon came to an end Saturday night when the Lowenbergs & Going Company, stove manufacturers, who have been at the penitentiary employing convict labor for the past 25 or 30 years, was ordered to discontinue because of failure to make payments. This announcement, made today, is especially important at this time, as it means the release of hundreds of convicts from the stove foundry work to the work of crushing rock for road building throughout the state and for much needed repair work about the state institution. Now that the brick demand can be supplied by the yards operated with free labor, no more penitentiary labor will be placed upon the open market. There have been employed in the stove foundry about 200 convicts. Before leaving for two days' rest and recuperation at Seaside today, Governor West gave out the following statement: "The labor released can be employed in many ways at present, as there is much repair work and cleaning up to be done around the prison and other state institutions. As soon as equipment can be secured and installed in the buildings for the purpose of manufacturing such articles as can be used and are needed at several state institutions men can be easily employed. "We have now under way the matter of establishing rock crushers in several counties where at least some men can be employed during this winter crushing rock for road building."

Gold coins and bullets were mined from the site of a famous Idaho mining camp recently.

OREGON POLITICAL BATTLE-GROUND

"Oregonian": That overworked expression, "The eyes of the country are on Oregon," will be particularly applicable next Spring. Especially will it be true as applied to the aspirants for the Republican and Democratic nominations for President. Oregon is one of five states in which the electors in the primary election early next year will express their preference for President and vice-president.

The quiet, together with the dates of the primary election in each are: North Dakota, March 9; Wisconsin, April 2; Nebraska, April 17; Oregon, April 19, and New Jersey, May 28. This activity is particularly noticeable among the prospective Democratic candidates. They are desiring of insuring for themselves, by working through effective organizations, which are being formed in those five states, the biggest possible popular vote expression from the Democratic voters in the primary election for the effect the result may have in determining Democratic sentiment in the states which will select delegates to the National convention later.

Oregon Democrats are divided as to a choice for President. Some are supporting Governor Wilson, while others prefer Governor Harmon. Immediately following the visit of Governor Wilson a few months ago, the Democrats for a time appeared to be carried away by the New Jersey man. But after sober reflection that enthusiasm has abated somewhat and some Democrats who two months ago were shouting for Wilson are now inclined to look to Harmon as the man to lead the party.

The more conservative Democrats at no time have favored Wilson, whom they regard as the political pupil of Bryan. They have insisted that the party should name for its candidate a man who can count upon the support of the rank and file of the party and be reasonably certain of carrying some of the large doubtful states of the East, which is essential to victory.

At the same time the more radical Democrats are not satisfied with Wilson. They are demanding that their candidate must stand for the initiative, the referendum and the recall. Wilson professes to stand for these measures of popular legislation as they are enunciated in the so-called "Oregon system," but he has blazed at the application of the recall to the judiciary.

The arrival of Lieutenant Governor Nichols, representing Governor Harmon, with the message from the east that the Democrats must nominate a man who can carry Ohio and some of the other large states of the east, has also given the Democrats food for thought. Oregon Democrats want to win, and they are desirous of assisting to pick a winner. Although satisfied that Wilson will be strong in some of the insurgent states, they have serious doubts if he can carry the large doubtful states where the Democrats must go for the necessary electoral votes in addition to those of the South to win.

Senator Chamberlain has announced himself as favoring Wilson, but other members of the party who have work ed shoulder to shoulder with the Senator in former conflicts are inclined towards Harmon. Governor West exploded the story that he intends to use his convict labor policy as a stepping stone to the United States senate in an address delivered before the Progressive Business Men's club at the Hotel Portland, recently.

"I have no political ambitions," he said with unusual warmth. "My treatment of the convicts has lost me most of my political friends, but is gaining me friends among the business men and taxpayers. I expect some thing to happen; I expect to be crucified because of this. But in spite of all opposition I will succeed, because it is right and all hell can't stop me. "I don't intend to be a candidate for senator. I will not be. I wouldn't make a good senator. There are dozens of men better than I, who can go back to Washington, wear plug hats and frock coats and play poker with the other senators. I want to stay in Oregon with the people I like, and where I can do the most good. I hope to get my 'crazy ideas' worked out before my term of office expires, and nothing could induce me to wish or try to remain in office except unfinished business or if some of the opposition against me should force me too much."
