Small Forest Fire
A forest fire was reported Sunday evening in the vicinity of Brvant's station, word reaching here by telephone. Supervisor Brown, accompanied by Messrs. Bradley and Billings, of the local Forest Office, went to the scene of the fire as soon as a conveyance could be secured, but on arrival found that the blaze had been subdued by digging trenches around it. The fire covered a territory of about 25 acres, with very little damage.

A Good Position
Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institution of Portland, Ore., operates under supervision of R. K. and wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details.

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold, as that preparation has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended upon. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given to young with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by all dealers.

PLENTY OF CATFISH FROM CHEWAUCAN

Local Market Supplied With Toothsome Fish This Week

The two Heckman boys of the Chewaucan country brought down with them the forepart of the week quite a large quantity of catfish, caught in the Chewaucan river. The fish found a ready sale and certainly tasted fine.

Threshing Nearly Ended

Threshing in the valley will probably be completed this week. The West Side outfit has been at work during the past week in this vicinity and the whistle could be frequently heard as work started up. It has a few small jobs on the West Side to finish up, but by Saturday night all will probably have been cleaned up.

Thurston's outfit is also on the last leg of the campaign and he also expects to get through by the end of the week.

As yet no report has been tabulated as to the amount of grain harvested this year in Goose Lake valley, but it is generally conceded to have been greater than ever before.

BIDWELL DISTRICT ATTRACTS CAPITAL

N. E. Guyot Goes East to Close a Deal With Chicago Men

Reno, Oct. 9.—There is a very pronounced mining activity being evidenced in the Fort Bidwell district and everything points to a rapid development of that district in the very near future.

N. E. Guyot, one of the prominent mining men of that section, and who is well known to all Colorado mining men arrived in Reno last evening on his way to Chicago to close negotiations with a syndicate of capitalists for the development of some of the properties on a larger scale.

In speaking of the Fort Bidwell district and its outlook Mr. Guyot said: "I have no doubt that the Fort Bidwell district is about to demonstrate that it is the greatest camp since Crinple Creek. Within a year there will be from twelve to sixteen producing mines running at splendid profits.

The recent development work done on a score of properties shows that the formation is well defined, not only the porphyry carrying high values but the basalt revealing ore of paving value as well. It is expected that porphyry will show ore, for it is friendly to such formation, but it is somewhat unusual for basalt to show valuable mineralization such as is found in our district.

"Mills are being put up and existing mills are being enlarged to handle the increased output and on all sides are indications of industry and confidence in the future. The Reno people who are financially interested in the district are highly pleased with the outlook and we expect a large influx in the spring. As yet we have had but little snow and that has melted already, so we look for two months of favorable weather yet this year."

Mr. Guyot established the first assay office in Crinple Creek, Colo., was one of the proprietors of the first newspaper, the Crusher in that camp and is admittedly one of the most conservative and experienced mining men, practically and theoretically, in the West. He has with him some very attractive samples of ore which he is displaying at the Golden Hotel during his few days' stay enroute east.

Mrs. McDonough Passes

Mrs. Anna McDonough, a well known resident of Lakeview died Saturday at her home on Main Street of old age and prolonged illness. At the time of her death Mrs. McDonough was 83 years old the last thirty years of which she spent in Lake County. She is survived by one son, John McDonough, who now resides here and several grandchildren. The funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at the Catholic Church with burial in the Odd Fellow's Cemetery.

Handsome Quarters

Auten & Rinehart are now occupying their new store in the Odd Fellows building, although they have not yet succeeded in getting their stock arranged. They undoubtedly have one of the finest store rooms in South Central Oregon, and when they succeed in getting their goods in shape it will be one of the most attractive places of business in this section.

REHART PREDICTS VERY DRY WINTER

Local Forecaster Predicts Less Than Usual Rain-fall This Season

S. V. Rehart has made his annual forecast of weather conditions for the coming Fall and Winter, and according thereto we are to have very little precipitation during the coming six months.

His forecast, which appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle last week, follows: "As this has been the coolest summer on the Pacific Coast for several years, it should be followed by the driest winter season in several years."

This is the gist of the seasonal forecast just made by S. V. Rehart of Lakeview, Or. whose long-range weather prophecies, as published in the "Chronicle" during the last few years, have foretold succeeding conditions with a remarkable degree of accuracy.

"It will be a conservative prediction to make," further writes Mr. Rehart, "that there will be considerable less than normal precipitation upon the Pacific Coast for the winter and season of 1911 and 1912. Under the head of probabilities I will give an outline of the season's character, which, however, I hardly expect to be correct in every particular:

"We can expect a long, dry fall, followed by two successive storm periods of short duration, probably a month apart, with most of the storms during the winter only partly successful.

"Indications also point to a partially dry spring.

"Altogether I do not expect more than about half the rainfall this season than this coast received last season.

"While the Eastern States and Europe are out of the Pacific storm belt, I expect that in those localities where excessive heat and drought was experienced last summer, excessive storms and precipitation will be experienced this winter."

In the last sentence Mr. Rehart exposes his method of forecasting, of which, however, he has never made a secret, but, on the contrary, has been at pains to declare his theory that "the summer makes the winter."

He has been a close meteorological observer, and his chief desire is to attract the attention of the Government weather department and have its trained experts make a scientific test of his methods. "I believe I have discovered the basis for a scientific system of long range forecasting," he writes, "whereby the conditions of the weather can be foretold with considerable accuracy six months in advance."

Many who recall Rehart's previous seasonal forecasts declare that in the past he has "hit it pretty close," and these are disposed to give his prophecy for the coming season, at least, due consideration. They will await the disapproval or the fulfillment of his present forecast with much interest.

"While this forecast is not as favorable as might be wished," writes the Oregon meteorologist, "it is better than the farmers, orchardists, stock raisers, and merchants should be warned of the general conditions that will prevail this winter.

Old Californians and weatherwise persons generally are rather disposed to agree with this view of the situation, not on scientific grounds exactly, but on the theory that California, having been favored with plentiful rainfall for several successive years now, a dry season or two may now reasonably be expected.
