Surprise Valley Record: George Fisher returned from the lower country last week, where he had been to sell some horses. We understand that he was not successful in disposing of all of them as the demand for horses is not strong now.

R. M. Boller, of the City Transfer company, now has his entire outfit here and is ready to handle all sorts of business in the truck and transfer line. As soon as the railroad establishes regular train service there will no doubt be a great increase in that line of business.

Twenty-five acres of land with $2,500 of buildings, formerly part of the Jackson county poor farm, has been deeded to the Oregon Agricultural College by the county for use for the new Southern Oregon Branch, Experiment Station, eight miles south of Medford and half a mile east of Talent on the main county road.

Bob Baldwin, who is doing the plumbing work on the new high school house, says he is keeping up with the carpenters, but has little idea when his work will be completed. Lathers are at work lathing the walls of the basement, preparatory to plastering that part of the building, and, as there are no stoves in that department it is pretty cold work.

J. Fred Hanson, the grading contractor, it turns out, was born in Glenwood, Iowa, and the writer knew him as a child and until he was ten or twelve years of age. His father and grandfather were in the mercantile business there and among the best people. For thirty years the two of us had not met, and when we did Mr. Hanson instantly remembered the writer as of old. Truly this world isn't so big, after all.

Surprise Party

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church met in regular session yesterday at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Wallace to surprise her mother, Mrs. Mull, who is quite aged and has been for many years one of the mothers in Israel. Those present were Mesdames Dan Chandler, D. Amick, Tom Bernard, E. Woodcock, W. P. Hervford, W. Bernard, H. Bailey, W. Dyer and M. Russell. After transacting the usual business which called it together the Aid adjourned for two weeks, to meet next time with Mrs. W. Bernard.

Again Made Good

A largely attended and eminently successful masquerade party was given Christmas evening by the Wizards at their hall. Some twenty-five of the participants wore masks, many of which were quite unique and fanciful—some being funny and grotesque. The committee appointed to award the prizes for the best masked characters, consisting of Mrs. Lee Beall, Mrs. Fred Reynolds and Mrs. Josie Storkman, selected Will Post, who represented Uncle Sam, and Miss Bertha Metzker, in the character of a Spanish dancer, as entitled to the honor. The music was furnished by the Wizard orchestra, consisting of Chas. Gott, violinist, Chas. Wallace, trombonist, and Mrs. Eva Rice, pianist. Some sixty couples participated in the dancing, while the list of spectators were very numerous.

Lakeview Lodge No. 71, A. F. and A. M. and the members of Chapter No. 5, O. E. S., held a joint installation of officers, concluding with a banquet at the Colorado Cafe. The affair was a most pleasant and agreeable success.

It's Best To Work

Walt Mason: Bill Jonesby snorts around and kicks and fusses over politics. It Clinkenbeard to congress goes, there'll be an end to all our woes. When we our senator select by voting for the same direct, all troubles in this world will cease, and life will be as smooth as grease. When this man's theories are in force, and that man's pipe dreams we endorse, then joy and comfort will abide throughout the whole blamed countryside. And thus Bill Jonesby wastes his time, and never puts away a dime, and when he's sick or out of work, perhaps he'll sit up with a jerk; and wish he'd let the statesmen go while he was salting down some dough. For congress will not pay the bills when you are needing beef and pills; and senators will not come down to square your credit in your town; and theorists with lofty views won't bring your children pants or shoes. Your destiny is in your hand get down to work to beat the band, and save a little of your wage against the day of stress or age, and let the statesman chew the rag and rant about our country's flag.

That Court House Clock

A newcomer in town, who has been stopping at the Lakeview caravansary for a week, complains that it has been almost impossible for him to procure any continuous sleep these nights. for the reason that he cannot get accustomed to the action of the town clock. It seems that he had been living in a town where they had a fire alarm bell with much the same quality of tone as that of our clock, and he says that every fifteen minutes, when the clock has struck the quarter hour it would so startle him and arouse him as to get him thoroughly awake before he could realize that it was the town clock instead of a fire alarm; then when he managed to get his scattered senses together enough to know just what was the matter, he would lie down again and just get into a doze when another alarm would suddenly rouse him to a sitting posture; and so the process was kept up for every night of the past week. Sunday night he said he did get about two hours of continuous sleep, and he has some hope that the nightmare of horrors he has undergone is measurably at an end. The fact was, he said, he had about come to the conclusion that he would either have to leave town if he would get any sleep or move his quarters to a remote part of the town where the striking of the clock every fifteen minutes cannot be heard. He says the tension has been fearful, and almost unfitted him for any kind of business during the daytime; and he became so overcome from the loss of sleep that he moves around in a nervous, half dazed condition, and if he sat down for a few minutes would drop into a doze. But he laughs about the matter now that he thinks the worst of his troubles is over, and he has no idea of petitioning the county court to abolish that clock. The people of the town are very thankful to have that clock and as a result of its timekeeping qualities are probably more punctual in their appointments than any other place in Oregon, but then—

When Things Go Wrong

There are times in the newspaper field when things of local importance will not happen, so that the local scribe, whose business it is to take account and make mention of such events is left stranded, as one might say; he has nothing to write about save the small happenings of every day life. Then again, as if one thing of startling significance brought on another, so many things take place that to give due prominence to each stirring event the small items are crowded out. It is just so in the business world. There are occasions when there's literally "nothing doing," when people will not come in and buy, and the goods lie idle on the shelves and the help in the stores wait in idleness, or, at best, are compelled to busy themselves with trifles, to keep up an appearance of doing something when somebody chances to go by. One is reminded, on such an occasion, of the story of a French commission merchant in an eastern town, who came down to his store a trifle late one morning to find his clerks and helpers sitting idle—waiting in vain for customers. His ire was kindled at once, and he broke out with a shout of anger: "Vy not rolle de box? Vyat rolle de box in de store den rolle de box out de store! Alle time rolle de box!" It was anything with him to keep up an appearance of business, even though there was absolutely nothing doing to bring in a penny. So the newspapers man must fill up his columns with something of very little importance when he lacks anything in the sensational line.

Buckaroo Hurt

Silver Lake Leader: Harry Arnold, an employe of the ZX ranch, is nursing painful bruises as the result of a fall with his horse Wednesday morning. Riding a green horse, Arnold roped a cow and when the rope tightened, the rider, horse and cow plunged down hill en masse. Fellow buckaroos found Arnold at the bottom of the animated tangle. Dr. Thom dressed the wounds which are not dangerous.

New City Editor

C. W. Sherman, Sr., who has been engaged for nearly a lifetime in newspaper work, has accepted a position on the Examiner as city editor. During the past Summer Mr. Sherman was engaged on the Klamath Falls Daily Chronicle, but in the Fall went to his ranch near Dairy, and from there came to Lakeview. He will devote his entire time to gathering the news, and the Examiner trusts that its many friends will favor him whenever possible.
