WATSON BUILDING

Very Attractive and Spacious.

Design 831, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW--FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This plan contains everything that is required in making a home complete. The wide projecting cornice with large brackets give an individuality to the house which is not possible in the old colonial design, and the expense is not any more than for the plain looking residence. There is a basement under the entire house. Size of house is thirty-five feet wide and twenty-seven feet six inches deep. First story nine feet six inches high and second nine feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $4,750.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 831 for $30.
GLENN L. SAXTON.

Know the Stars in the Dragon?
Winding in and out between the stars of the Great and Little Dipper is the constellation of the Dragon. The tip of the tail lies between the pole star in the Little Dipper and the pointers in the Great Dipper, but much nearer the latter and only a few degrees below the pointers. The rest of the constellation, outlined with faint stars, curves downward and around the Little Dipper, when with a faint coil it terminates with the two bright stars Gamma and Beta, which mark the head of the Dragon, or, in fact, its eyes. Aratus in describing the constellation speaks of the Dragon as "with eyes oblique retorted, that astute east gleaming fire."
Its leading star, Alpha, near the tail of the Dragon and halfway between Mizar (the middle star in the handle of the Great Dipper) and the lowest star in the bowl of the Little Dipper, is known by the name of Thuban. Four thousand years ago it was the pole star.—Mary Proctor in Chicago Tribune.

Does Your Cat Cough?
Poor pussy! As if the immemorial charges against her of keeping us awake at night and of eating canary birds whenever she gets the chance were not enough, the doctors have just discovered that for years she has been responsible for the spread of diphtheria. Dr. G. J. Auburn of Manchester, England, having traced an epidemic of this disease in a suburb of that city to a pet cat belonging to one of his patients, has found, after much clever investigation, that all cats are peculiarly susceptible to diphtheritic affections of the throat. He has therefore recently been warning all families who own cats to watch them carefully and if they develop coughs to forbid their being hugged and petted. Dr. Auburn further recommends that if the cough persists and the cat begins to grow thin to have the animal destroyed at once. The only really safe way, he says, is to let the first wheeze be pussy's death warrant.—New York World.

Left to a Worse Fate.
The business man was sitting in his office thinking of starting for home when a suspicious looking person came in with a leather bag in his hand.
"If you don't give me $5," said the visitor, coming at once to the point, "I will drop this on the floor."
The business man was cool. "What is in it?" he asked.
"Dynamite," was the brief reply.
"What will it do if you drop it?"
"Blow you up!"
"Drop it!" was the instant command. "My wife told me when I left this morning to be sure to send up a bag of flour, and I forgot it. I guess it will take just about as much dynamite as you have there to prepare me for the blowing up I'll get when she sees me!"
"I'm a married man myself," said the dynamiter and quietly slipped out.—Illustrated Bits.

Shield at the Price.
A noted painter said at the Art club in Philadelphia, apropos of picture prices:
"I am glad there are not many buyers like an old farmer in Center Bridge. A very distinguished artist, sketching in Center Bridge, made a study of the farmer's barn. The farmer happened to appear and said he'd like to have the sketch.
"If 'tain't too dear," he added cautiously.
"Oh," said the artist, who makes $12,000 a year, "I won't charge you anything for the sketch, but—"
"His eye lighted on the pigpen.
"But I'll tell you what. You can give me one of those nice little pink sucking pigs there."
"Why, man," said the farmer with a frown, "do ye know what them pigs is worth? They're worth a dollar apiece."—Exchange.

Strong on Length.
Richard Carle engaged as cook a Swedish giantess who proved unsatisfactory. On departure she asked for a written testimonial, and Dr. Carle presented her with the following:
"To whom it may concern: I have lately had in my employ Hulda Swanson, who was engaged to cook for a family of three and do such other things as would be possible when not cooking. Under this head might come a little dusting and dishwashing and answering the doorbell. Taking all these things into account, I wish to say that Hulda is absolutely the tallest cook I ever saw."—Success Magazine.

The Poet Again.
He had long hair and a pensile look. He wrote a poem entitled "Why Do I Live?" He signed it Augustus and sent it to a magazine.
The editor wrote him as follows: "My dear Augustus, the reason why you live is because you sent the poem by mail instead of bringing it personally."—Paris Modes.

A Harsh Order.
On the beach near an English town a sign bearing this legend was nailed to a post:
"Notice.—Any person passing beyond this point will be drowned. By order of the magistrate."
A Great Help.
Scribbler—I understand your wife is of great value to you in your work; I had no idea she was literary. Scribbler—She isn't, but she never attempts to straighten out my desk.—Philadelphia Record.

A Bad Man is Worse when he pretends to be a saint.—Bacon.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND
Is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. Not sold by A. L. Thornton.

Little Pitchers.
In a certain small town there are two young women whose favorite occupation is to discuss the affairs of their neighbors. Having met for that purpose one afternoon, they found themselves blocked in the indulgence of their pastime by the presence of the small daughter of the business. A slight indisposition of some sort prevented sending the child out of doors, so they were forced to put up with her presence, doing their best, however, to nullify it.
Something eatable was produced and an absorbing new game invented which she could play quite by herself, so they breathed freely and began.
The talk at length reached a point involving the latest scandal of the neighborhood and the retelling of some inside information which must not become public property. A hurried look at the child on the floor found her apparently so occupied with her game that it seemed quite safe to go on if one observed a decent discretion. Voices were accordingly lowered and direct allusion veiled, but when the matter had been thrashed out to their satisfaction the child raised her eyes and remarked with deliberation and emphasis:
"I hear, I know, I understand, and I'll blab!"—New York Times.

Books and Their Care.
Books on shelves may be seriously injured if packed too tightly. When quickly pulled out for use the top of the book is likely to come off. Moreover, the constant pressure, if too great, will loosen the whole back in time and the friction in putting upon and taking from the shelf mars the covers. On the other hand, a reasonable amount of lateral pressure is necessary. If placed on the shelves too loosely the leaves tend to open and admit dust, dampness and consequent mildew. In the case of heavy volumes the weight of the leaves will be found resting on the shelves if the books are placed too loosely. This is likely to make the backs concave. Badly painted shelves are another source of injury to books. Care should be taken when paint or varnish is used that the surface is perfectly smooth, hard and dry when the books are put in place and that the surface will remain so during variation of temperature or humidity.—House Beautiful.

An Anecdote of Pope.
There is an old anecdote of Alexander Pope concerning one of the old watermen who were employed for many years in rowing Pope on the Thames. Pope was in the habit of having his sedan chair lifted into the boat. If the weather was fine he let down the glasses; if cold he pulled them up. He would sometimes say to the waterman:
"John, I am going to repeat some verses. Take care to remember them the next time I go out."
When that time came Pope would say:
"John, where are the verses I told you of?"
"I have forgotten them, sir."
"John, you are a blockhead. I must write them down for you."
John said that no one thought of saying when speaking of him, "Mr. Pope," but that he was always called "Mr. Alexander."

The Original Encyclopedia.
The first real encyclopedia was Pliny's "Natural History." This work was an extensive one, numbering some thirty-seven volumes and dealing with all the then known facts of the world. Pliny, who died A. D. 79, collected the data for his work in his leisure intervals while engaged in public affairs. The "Natural History" was for its time an amazing production, treated of some 20,000 facts and was of very high authority throughout the entire middle ages. Forty-three editions of the work were printed before the year 1530, and no scholar's library was considered complete without it.—New York American.

Wakeful Night.
A rather imaginative Washington lady decided she had insomnia. She couldn't sleep, she said. One morning she was more than usually depressed.
"What's the matter, dear?" asked the husband. "Another sleepless night?"
"Worse than that," she replied gloomily. "I did manage to drop off to sleep, and I dreamed all the time I was asleep that I was awake."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Made the Rhyme.
"Carpet" rhymes with no single word, but some bold poet dared to evade the difficulty thus:
"Sweet maid of the inn, 'tis surely no sin to toast such a beautiful bar bet; believe me, my dear, your feet would appear at home on a nobleman's carpet."—London Answers.

Cynical.
"The course of true love doesn't always run smooth," sighed the young widow.
"That's right," rejoined the old bachelor. "Sometimes it ends in marriage."—Chicago News.

Many Meanings.
Traveler—Some expressions in the Chinese language have as many as forty different meanings.
Little Miss—Same way in English.
"You amaze me. Mention one."
"Not at home."

The beloved of the Almighty are the rich who have the humility of the poor and the poor who have the magnanimity of the rich.—Saadi.
