Klamath Herald: Owing to his indisposition, Judge Henry L. Benson in the circuit court has decided to take a respite, and announced to the jurors of the present panel that they would be excused until next Wednesday morning. The judge has been suffering from a bad cold, and feeling unfit to go on even with the case now on, but has desired to hold out rather than to interrupt an action for which a jury has been drawn and the testimony begun.

Again a "Telegram Coast Special" has gone wrong. In an article in the Portland Telegram giving an account of the Lakeview fire it stated the Court house and Herald office went up in smoke, besides containing a picture picture of that portion of the town marking the fire area by the court house. Such information is very misleading and the report of the court house being burned caused a great deal of excitement among the north end residents who feared that the county records had been destroyed.

The team attached to the Western stage took a lively spin about town Tuesday morning previous to their departure with the mails. Driver Walt Tindall steered them around through the highways and byways and finally brought them to a halt in the Drenkel addition. One tire came loose and a bride was pulled off one of the wheels, which made the case all the more interesting for Tindall. After running a mile or so the team was brought to a halt, repairs made and the stage left but a few minutes behind the schedule time.

Plans are now under way here for the organization of a Gaelic Football Association among the local Irish boys. A large number have already contributed for the purchase of the necessary equipment, and more are signing up from time to time. A meeting of the association will be held in the near future, as soon as the rules and bylaws are received, and officers will be elected at such time to serve during the football season. Similar associations are to be organized at Plush and Paisley, and as considerable interest is being manifested in the movement at the various places, it is thought that some lively matches will be seen here during the coming summer and fall. For the present all business for the local organization is being managed by Ned Lynch.
