TO EXTERMINATE TIMBER BEETLE

Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. to Experiment On Method

J. F. Kimball, representative of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., informs us that his company is preparing to make a strenuous effort to eradicate the Brevicomus timber beetle which is getting such a start in the timber of this country. This is a pest that has lately become such a destroyer that it is necessary to make some war to extinguish it.

There are different species of the beetle that infests the timber and they have different modes of destruction to the trees. It appears from the close study that has been made by the government and Weyerhaeuser people that the insects are becoming very numerous. From an inspection of a section of land in Klamath County, 177 trees were found to be infested with the beetle, or 5 per cent of the timber of the entire section. Taking this as a basis, it was considered that in eighteen years every merchantable tree on the section would be destroyed.

Mr. Kimball has a plan which he proposes to test. He intends to experiment upon a small area of four or five sections to determine the best means of extermination of the pests. In the districts which they have examined, the vicinity of Pokeganv seems to be the worst infested district and the experiments will probably be tried near there. He is of the opinion that the only effective method to adopt is to cut the trees that are injured and burn them and thus prevent the insects from migrating from one tree to another. Some species of the beetle prey upon the bark of the tree while others or the kind that inhabit these forests do their damage by cutting small channels or canals between the body and the bark of the tree, and thus prevent circulation of the sap.

Mr. Kimball estimates that it will cost the timber interests of this country $100,000 to rid the forests of this beetle. The Weyerhaeuser company owns approximately 300,000 acres in Lake, Klamath, Jackson and Modoc counties and their share of the expense in the insect war will be an enormous sum.

EASTERN READER TAKES INTEREST

Says Commercial Clubs Do Many Things For A Town

Ord, Nebraska, Mar. 13, 1912. Lake County Examiner, Lakeview, Oregon. Dear Sir: I am one of the Lakeview lot and land owners, and also a reader of the Lake County Examiner, and find some things very interesting of late in this paper. I see several buildings that are being built and also a new depot, which will be a credit to your town. I also see you are getting ready to make good roads, this is one of the best things you ever did for your town and country. I also see your Commercial Club is a live one and hope they keep their good work going. I am a member of one in our town and we have a lively little city and we can give credit to our Commercial Club for what work they have done in this line.

I would like to get a little information and if this is not out of your line would like to have you give it to me, as what I have been reading in the Examiner has put me to thinking. Would like to ask as follows:
When is my paper due? When are the taxes due on my lots and ten acre tract, and what do you think as to the location which I have are the lots in a very good part of town and what are they worth at this time and the land which I also have? I am not wanting to sell or trade but am thinking of going out to look things over this fall and would like to have some information as to how things are and the value of what I have there at this time.

Yours truly,
F. J. Vopat.

The building is one of which we are all proud, and it reflects much credit not only upon the enterprize of the community but upon the Board of Directors as well. On every occasion their efforts were warmly seconded by the people and they were not hampered in any way. They were given full opportunity to do as they wished, and that they made good is highly gratifying to all concerned.

Excavating for the building commenced in 1910, at that time A. L. Thornton being chairman of the board of directors, Harry Bailey and Dr. B. Daly being the other members. Mr. Bailey is now chairman and he in turn will be followed by Dr. Daly. All of the members have devoted much time to the work and of course are highly pleased that their efforts have not only been successful but are appreciated by the people generally.

It is quite likely that the building will be dedicated in May, as James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, has announced his intention of touring Central Oregon and visiting Lakeview just as soon as the roads will permit. Plans for the trip are now being perfected, and it will follow practically the same route as that taken by Louis W. Hill in 1910.

A number of stockmen were in from the desert this week, and all report range conditions ideal.

ELKS SEE RENO SIGHTS

and even more than the bunch had any right to expect.

Saturday they were entertained at luncheon by the managers of the Reno Brewing Co., where everything in the market that was good to eat was spread before them, and it might be incidentally added, to drink also. To those who know the bunch, it is useless to say there was something doing all the time and anyone looking for princely entertainers, won't need to go any farther than Reno, provided they don't forget the number of the Reno Brewing Company, Saturday night fourteen of Lakeview's and seven of Reno's boys went through the painful ordeal of having the Antlers fitted on them, and so far none have been heard as regretting gone through the process or being dissatisfied with the work done. After the conclusion of the lodge work some vaudeville actors were introduced and for over an hour entertainment was provided, consisting of acrobatic stunts, music, and other various interesting features. They were then conducted to the banquet room where its seating capacity of 250 was crowded to the limit. The tables were loaded with good things to eat, and it has been whispered, that at each plate was a large stem with something in it and the waiters always knew, without being told when it was necessary to refill them. After everyone had eaten and drunk until they could hold no more, they were entertained by some interesting talks from Reno Elks, and a stranger would have supposed from what they said that there was only one town, Lakeview, and that the best people on the earth lived there.

Sunday at 2 o'clock, p. m., eleven autos drew up at the Overland hotel and everybody from Lakeview was hustled into them and seeing Reno (by daylight) began in earnest. Not only in Reno but the surrounding country as well. The Examiner has been unable to ascertain how much this afternoon was enjoyed by the Lakeviewites, no more than they can express their admiration of George Wingfield as a chauffeur. The boys who were with him in his Pierce Arrow 6 say that when they came to some point of interest, it took two guides to tell about it; one to say "there she is" and the other "there she goes," and that 60 miles an hour was just loafing along so they could light their cigarettes.

The crowning event of the affair was a banquet given the boys, from his old home, by George Wingfield. At six o'clock they again piled into the Pierce Arrow and driven to Mr. Wingfield's residence where one of the most delightful evenings of their lives was spent in eating, visiting and being entertained by the man who never forgets his friends, (or enemies either for that matter) and who always has a good word for Lakeview and its people.

At 7:20 Monday morning the train was boarded for home and the 239 miles were made in about 12 hours without a mishap. Everybody reached home boosting for Mr. Dunaway, the N.-C.-O., the Elks and Reno.

Those who were initiated from Lakeview were: R. A. Hawkins, F. O. Ahlstrom, James J. Judre, Harvey Thrasher, Fred Reynolds, A. H. Hamersley, D. C. Schminck, Stanley Hanson, Henry A. Funk, J. L. Lyon, M. B. Rice, Elmer C. Ahlstrom, Ben Daly and Manuel Sanders.
