ALTURAS WORKING ON RICH DEPOSIT

One of The First Mines in The District Coming To The Front

(High Grade News)

C. W. Canfield, president of Alturas Mining Co., and G. H. Canfield, his son, who is secretary of the company, were in Pine Creek Tuesday for supplies. They are enthusiastic over the showing in the mine.

The Alturas was among the first properties located in the district. The group aggregates 110 acres on Alturas ridge in the geographical center of Camp High Grade and is surrounded by the great mines of the district.

The main shaft is down 105 feet on a large vein the magnitude of which has not been determined. A cross cut will be run from this level to demonstrate the width. The entire vein is mineralized and a rich ore body is anticipated when the water level is reached. Another shaft is down 25 feet from which several tons of ore were taken that returned from $14 to $50 per ton. Numerous cuts, shafts, etc., have disclosed good ore in many places.

The main shaft is equipped with a first class Davis whim. Other improvements are a shaft and storage house 25x46 feet, one of the most complete assay offices ever taken into a mining camp, which is conducted by G. H. Canfield, a graduate of the Vander Naitlen School of Mines at Oakland, where John Hayes Hammond also graduated; also a good blacksmith shop and barn. A force of five to ten men will push work on the property sinking on the main shaft and cross cutting.

The Alturas is one of the great properties of High Grade. It has been worked to a limited extent every year for the past six years and has always made a satisfactory showing, the operations having been carried on intelligently and economically.

(High Grade News)

Mr. August Doring and Richard Willis of Lakeview are completing their large two story building near the corner of Main and Garden streets which will soon be open to the public as a bakery, lunch counter, grocery and meat market, with rooms on the second story.

They have also purchased 50 feet frontage on Main between State Line and Garden street, upon which a large structure will soon be erected to be used as a furniture store. Mr. Willis left for San Francisco Monday to purchase goods and equipment.

Fort Bidwell Wins

(High Grade News)

The baseball game on Saturday between the New Pine Creek and Ft. Bidwell Clubs resulted in a victory for Bidwell boys by a score of 14 to 2. The game was played on the Ft. Bidwell diamond. The Pine Creek boys report fine treatment from their adversaries and a royal good time.

A return game will be played on the Pine Creek grounds in the near future.

The Big Four

(High Grade News)

The deposit of rich gold quartz recently opened up by John P. Bassler in the Big Four continues to be the talk of the camp. At a depth of 110 feet two feet of white and yellow partially oxidized quartz was broken into which runs from $50 to $100 per ton. The deposit is firmly in place and the broken condition of the formation above seems to have disappeared.

All of the developed properties show this characteristic at the surface and the probability is that the cause of this was the violent seismic action during the deposit of mineral and the formation of breccia which occurs in most of the veins of the district. It is probable that when water level is reached in the Big Four both breccia and sulphides may be in evidence. Work will be prosecuted on the mine with energy.

HOAG'S CAREER AS TOLD BY RELATIVE

His Untimely Death Retarded Rush to Camp Long Ago

(High Grade News)

Had it not been for the sudden and tragic death of Daniel Hoag, the famous Indian scout and prospector for whom the old Hoag district was named, the Warner range would have recorded scenes and event of a busy mining camp before Cripple Creek poured its golden treasures into the marts of trade and commerce.

This week New Pine Creek people have been entertained at Wendt's Opera House by the Margaret Iles Co., of which E. H. Meade is proprietor and manager Mr. Meade states that he is a grandson of Daniel Hoag, the first discoverer of gold on the Warner range in the 60's, and relates an interesting story of Hoag's career and death.

In 1849, Mr. Meade states, Hoag left his wife, two sons and four daughters on a farm in DeKalb county, Illinois, and crossed the plains and mountains with an ox team to search for gold. The great gold excitement was on and Hoag was among the most enthusiastic of the prospectors that startled the world with their rich discoveries. He landed at Marysville, Cal., where he lived and mined in Yuba county for ten years with varying success.

Hoag then came over to old Ft. Bidwell with W. B. Whittemore and four others and engaged with the government as an Indian scout. He ceased writing to his family and they mourned him as dead. His services in the employment of the government took him on hazardous trips in the mountains where he divided his time hunting Indians and gold. It was while on these expeditions that he discovered the rich gold quartz in the Warner range which he carried to Ft. Bidwell, showed to his friends and assured them that he would make them all rich.

Shortly thereafter the Indians were reoperted to be getting ready to go on the war path. A detachment of soldiers was sent out from Ft. Bidwell, with Hoag to act as scout and guide, to quell the uprising. Hoag was riding fifty feet in front of the squad when the sharp report of a rifle rang out and he dropped to the ground with a bullet in his head and immediately expired. His remains were taken to Ft. Bidwell and buried and a soldier arrested for complicity in his murder and confined in the guard house. That night the soldier escaped and has never been heard of since.

Two years ago Mr. Meade was in Fort Bidwell and heard the story of Daniel Hoag. That was his grandfather's name. He made inquiry and learned that the old Indian scout was his grandfather. He immediately wired Mrs. Charlotte Kilts, his aunt and Hoag's youngest daughter, then living in Chicago. She came to Fort Bidwell and the two investigated the case. They found that Hoag had willed most of his property to W. B. Whittemore, now deceased, and that the will had been denied probate in Yreka, the county seat of Siskiyou county, Cal., of which the present county of Malheur was then a part.

Numerous parties have searched for the ledge from which Hoag secured his Bonanza specimens, but none like them have ever been seen in the district before or since. They ran up into the pictures and were beautiful samples.

And now while Daniel Hoag slumbers on his couch of last repose in the Soldiers cemetery at Ft. Bidwell an army of prospectors are busy seeking to relocate the rich ledges he discovered.

Big Four Strike PLEASES MINERS

Two Feet of Honeycombed Quartz Runs Well In Gold

(High Grade News)

The Big Four Mine which lays in the center of the district with the Seven Lakes Co. property on the south which has an excellent showing for the development done and who are driving a tunnel to cross a ledge some six feet in width which shows values from $1 to $5 on the surface. On the north side of the Big Four lies the famous Sunshine mine which has shipped and stored large quantities of very valuable ores in New Pine Creek. As my time was very limited I did not examine any of the other mines in the district. But Mr. Bassler, of the Big Four being kind enough to let me make a thorough examination of the Big Four. The foot wall is perfect, but above the hundred foot level the hanging wall is broken, but going through the hundred foot level east I find a perfect hanging wall twenty feet from the main working shaft going east. I also find the hanging wall to be perfect. But up to this point the hanging wall was broken.

The ledge is widening very fast since they found the two perfect walls the ledge is in place and is fast crowding out a porphyry horse. The ore has shown a marked increase in value since encountering the permanent wall the ore at the present time carrying about $43 value and increasing every day. Mr. Bassler expects to have his five stamp mill in operation within the next two or three weeks then he expects to commence shipping and also driving the drift at the hundred foot level east and cross-cut the big porphyry dike some fifty or sixty feet beyond.

Mr. Bassler has the right ideas and with time will make a wonderful mine out of the Big Four.

A Gruesome Find

(High Grade News)

Not only yellow gold but the skulls of dead men as well are found in Camp High Grade.

Last week Gus Nugent and two companions prospectors stumbled on a human head near the head of Crane creek, but ten miles northeast of New Pine Creek. They kept the skull about their camp for a few days and on Monday brought it to town and turned it over to Dr. O. E. Patterson. No other portions of the skeleton were found by them and they will return to make further search.

On the left parietal bone was an oblong displacement of bone tissue which had apparently shattered the outer table and produced a depressed fracture of the inner table, probably resulting from a glancing bullet.

A little over the temple in the right side of the temporal bone is a clean cut round hole in which a 22 caliber bullet fits comfortably.

Dr. Patterson's theory is that the victim was a white person and probably met with death by the bullet of an assassin from the evidence presented by the location and character of the marks on the skull.

Dr. Patterson reported the matter to the district attorney who will make an investigation.
