Dignifying The Industries

A new illustrated bulletin of 64 pages showing phases of the college work "dedicated to dignifying the industries," has just been issued by the Oregon Agricultural College press.

It contains 8 photographs, in duotone reproduction, with accompanying descriptive matter. The five new buildings erected this year and an architect's drawing of the sixth, the new school of mines building, now in process of erection, are shown together with field, and laboratory work of the students of mining, engineering, domestic economy, forestry, poultry, husbandry, dairying, horticulture, agronomy, animal husbandry, pharmacy, commerce, art and architecture, industrial teaching, military tactics, and much space is also given to phases of student life, extension work, the short summer and winter courses, and investigative work.

Bill Becomes Law

On June 6, President Taft signed the three year homestead bill permitting entrymen on public lands to prove their claims in three instead of five years, allowing five months absence from a claim each year and reducing the acreage to be cultivated on large claims from 80 to 40 acres. The pen used was given to Representative Taylor of Colorado. The bill is designed to so liberalize homestead laws as to check the immigration of American farmers to Canada.

Deeds Are Recorded

Last week the Northwest Townsite Company recorded with County Clerk Payne deeds to the large George Conn ranch at Paisley. This tract comprises 800 acres and contains some of the best soil in that favored section. No important development work has yet been undertaken by the company but it is expected that as soon as all preliminary steps have been disposed of that strenuous work will begin.

Has Reputation

Ft. Bidwell News: I was talking with Margaret Hies the other day about her summer season in Surprise Valley. "Isn't it a little ambitious," I ventured, "to go in for stock productions away up here?" "I've always understood," she replied, "that Surprise Valley is a great stock country."

CONTRACT LET FOR FAIRPORT HOTEL

New Structure Will be Located Within 400 Feet of Lake Shore

V. L. Snelling received a letter today from T. F. Dunaway, General Manager of N.-C.-O. Ry., stating that he had let the contract in Reno for the Hotel at Fairport, the new town on the N.-C.-O. Ry., in Modoc County California, 2 miles southwest of New Pine Creek, Oregon. The Hotel will occupy a corner lot, opposite the new passenger depot to be erected by the N.-C.-O. Ry. and will be about 400 feet from the shores of Sunset lake, a parkway intervening. The plans show a two story building in the Mission style, containing about 35 rooms. The contractor has ordered his building material, and expects to have the hotel fully completed within three months.

This is the first important move on the part of the Fairport Town and Land Company toward the development of the summer resort feature of their Fairport plans, and others will follow.

Wedding Bells

County Clerk F. W. Payne, Monday issued marriage license to Grover Mulkey and Miss Laura Howell. Mr. Mulkey is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Mulkey, of Davis Creek and Miss Howell is a resident of Paisley.

The joyous words that will make the young couple inseparable through life were pronounced last evening by Melville T. Wire at the Methodist parsonage. The Examiner extends congratulations.

I. W. W. Vagabonds

A fair idea of the character, aims and purposes of the I.W.W. vagabonds may be gained from the following interview by a reporter by the Reno Gazette with one of their agitators: "What is the object of the I.W.W. movement?" asked the Gazette representative.

"The ultimate object," said Thomas Glynn, "is to start a revolution in this country. When we want to secure control of all the industries of the country and run them ourselves. We intend to keep agitating until we accomplish our object."

"Are you two men citizens of the United States?" asked the Gazette representative. "No," they replied. "We are both citizens of Great Britain."

"Can you secure work if you want it," was asked. "Yes," they replied, "but we don't want work for the wages now paid. We don't want work we want wages."

"We believe absolutely in the agitation being carried on by the I. W. W. in San Diego, Cal.," Glynn continued, "and we intend to go there and aid in the meantime."

At The Opera House

The production of the Jolly American Tramp Sunday evening at Snider's opera house by the Margaret Hies Company proved to be an attractive performance.

The curtain was raised at 8:30 and the performance completed at an early hour. The bill was lively, replete with good, clean comedy and was well presented by the troupe. This play, while slightly bordering on the melodrama type, had an interesting plot and many witty lines, which supplied with clever acting made it a worthy bill.

One of the attractions of their performances is the specialty songs by Miss Ruby Southstone. She has a very sweet voice, a well chosen list of late songs and the ability to render them in a most charming fashion.

The company next Sunday will put on the old favorite play "In Old Kentucky," which has been a popular drawing card for years. In this performance the troupe will be augmented by two people from San Francisco. It is one in which Mr. Meade and Miss Hies are well up in and it is expected that the play will be well attended.

Monday night, June 17, the Leota Howard Dramatic company will begin a seven night engagement in a repertoire of up-to-date plays.

This section was treated to a nice warm rain fall last Sunday evening which deposited a good supply of moisture in the ground. We received another pleasant dose Tuesday afternoon. The showers are of wonderful benefit to the country.

Smoking That Maddens.

Marihuana is a weed used by people of the lower class and sometimes by soldiers, but those who make larger use of it are prisoners sentenced to long terms. The use of the weed and its sale, especially in barracks and prisons, are very severely punished; yet it has many adepts, and Indian women cultivate it because they sell it at rather high prices. The dry leaves of marihuana alone or mixed with tobacco make the smoker wilder than a wild beast. It is said that immediately after the first three or four drafts of smoke smokers begin to feel a slight headache; then they see everything moving, and finally they lose all control of their mental faculties. Everything, the smokers say, takes the shape of a monster, and men look like devils. They begin to fight, and, of course, everything smashed is a monster "killed." But there are imaginary beings whom the wild man cannot kill, and these inspire fear until the man is pale stricken and runs.—Mexican Herald.

The Curse of Cowdray.

Cowdray, once the estate of the earls of Egmont and now in the possession of Lord Cowdray, better known as Sir Westman Pearson, is the subject of a very interesting superstition. Shortly after the dissolution of the monasteries Cowdray was conferred upon Sir Anthony Browne, the father of the first Lord Montague, who had already been given Battle Abbey as a reward for his services to Henry VIII. The story goes that Sir Anthony, who had destroyed the church and the cloisters in Battle Abbey, was visited in the great hall as he was holding his first feast by one of the dispossessed monks, who after solemnly cursing him, prophesied that his family should perish by fire and water. Two centuries and a half later the prophecy was tragically fulfilled. In 1783 the house was destroyed by fire and within a week of that disaster the last Lord Montague lost his life in Germany in an unsuccessful attempt to shoot the falls of the Rhine.—London News.

Belts by the Pound.

A western senator of ample physical proportions was endeavoring to obtain a belt at a Washington haberdashery. He was having a difficult time in selecting a belt whose design struck his fancy as well as of proper requirements for his girth.

"How much is that one?" he demanded of the clerk, who was entirely unaware of the distinguished character of the patron.

"That is $4.," said the salesman. "Four dollars?" exclaimed the senator. "Isn't that an awful price for a belt?"

"Yes, sir," admitted the man behind the counter; "but, you see, sir, after they get into the regular size we charge for 'em by the pound."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Very Brief.

A record of brevity in a holiday correspondence was established by a Frenchman in the eighteenth century. Voltaire and Piron, the epigrammatist, exchanged challenges to write the shortest possible letter. So, when Voltaire was starting on a journey, he wrote to Piron, "Eo rus," which is the complete Latin for "I am going to the country." Piron's answer was just "I"—complete Latin for "Go!"

In business correspondence the record is divided between Victor Hugo, who, anxious to know how his "Les Miserables" was going, wrote to the publisher, "?" and the publisher, who triumphantly replied, "!"

A Servile House of Lords.

When King Henry VIII's name was spoken in his presence in the house of lords every peer prostrated himself with Asiatic servility. An entry in the records of the house gives the substance of a speech delivered by the chancellor on Jan. 16, 1541, in which the king's goodness and wisdom are extolled, and it tells us that whenever his majesty was mentioned, "which happened often," all the lords prostrated themselves, bowing to the ground as one man.

The Important Personage.

"Are you the owner of this place?" asked the book agent. "I am," replied Farmer Cornstassel. "Anything I can do for you?" "No. The chances are that you are too hard worked to have time to read anything and that you haven't any spare change anyhow. Let me talk to the hired man."—Washington Star.

Poor Simile.

"I never saw any one so timid as Henpeck is," remarked Wigger. "Why, he's like a mouse in his own house." "Nonsense!" exclaimed Wagger. "His wife isn't the least bit afraid of him."

Distilled Gold.

The investigations of a French chemist show that gold in the electric furnace boils freely at a temperature of 2,400 degrees C. In two or three minutes, it is said, from 100 to 150 grams of gold pass into the state of vapor. In condensing upon a cold body this golden vapor forms filiform masses and cubic crystals. At its temperature of ebullition gold dissolves a little carbon, which at the time of resolidification is deposited in the form of graphite. In an alloy of gold and copper, copper distills first. In an alloy of gold and tin, the tin distills more abundantly than the gold, and when a large quantity of these mixed vapors is taken the tin burns on contact with the oxygen of the air, forming oxide of tin, colored purple by a fine dust of condensed gold. This is one method of preparing the color known as "purple of Cassius."—Harper's Weekly.

The Obstacle.

"Why not get your cap for that young fellow? He's single and well off."

"Yes, he's single, but he knows he's well off."
