NEW STRIKE MADE IN CONSOLIDATED

Big Force of Men Now Moving Picture Rock in Mountain View

(High Grade News)

Camp High Grade has actually started on its career of real mining and ore treatment.

This week the Consolidated leads the procession in the district both in the matter of rich strikes and in operation. A force of over thirty men now employed in the mine and mill, under the most capable and practical management.

The strike in the Mountain View last week, has proven to be genuine, and the picture ore continues in the ledge which is about four feet wide. Much free gold, visible to the naked eye in this rock, selected samples, run up into the thousands, while the entire ledge is claimed by the operators to run better than $100 per ton.

Manager Binns of the mill is classed among the best mill men in the west, and is more than making good at the Consolidated.

Manager A. J. Cummings, of the mine, has placed the property on a paying basis, according to a statement made by conservative mining men of the district. It is claimed that the recent strike safely place the Consolidated in the list of great mines.

But little has been known and nothing said about the Consolidated until quite recently. The owners are principally I vel headed business men from Detroit, and other eastern localities, who operate upon strictly business principles, and who keep their business to themselves. President Stone and Secretary Levy, both of Detroit, are now on the ground personally supervising the operations.

From now on the Consolidated will be one of the attractions of Camp High Grade.

Fairport the Beautiful
(High Grade News)

An analysis of Fairport, aside from its commercial possibilities and simply from the standpoint of its scenic attractions and its appeal to the tourist will convince any one that in this respect it is in a class by itself.

You can stand in Fairport and see a marvelous panorama of mountains and lake upon every point of the compass. It is a sight which stirs every fiber of your being. To the west are the shimmering waters of Sunset Lake and bounding them a long range of fir-clad mountains which are in cameo like relief against the azure skies; to the north is a poem picture composed of mountains, lakes and emerald valley; to the east and south there is a stretch of peaceful valley and beyond the snow kissed peaks of the Warner range of mountains.

But it is at twilight when the mystery and lure of this spot has its strongest appeal. The silvery waters of the lake reflect all the wonderful mists of the heavens, the western range becomes a soft toned perspective of purple. Back of this the sun, like a huge ball of fire, sinks into the land of Tomorrow; the heavens are aflame with fire and gold. The clouds assume strange, fantastic shapes. You see filmy, evanescent islands arise from opalescent sea and wend craft with sails of silver and gold come out in that enchanted land. Giant sheaves of gold radiate and extend, fan-like across the heavens. And every minute finds the color scheme changing from the light and softer tones to the deeper ones. By the mysterious alchemy of nature silver and gold is transmuted to copper and bronze. The fires in the heavens are dimmed and after a time there is naught but a glow in the western heavens. The flaming seas of fire have been subdued by the mists of the night and there comes to one insistently the lines:

And the night shall be filled with music
And the cares that infest the day,
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs
And silently steal away.

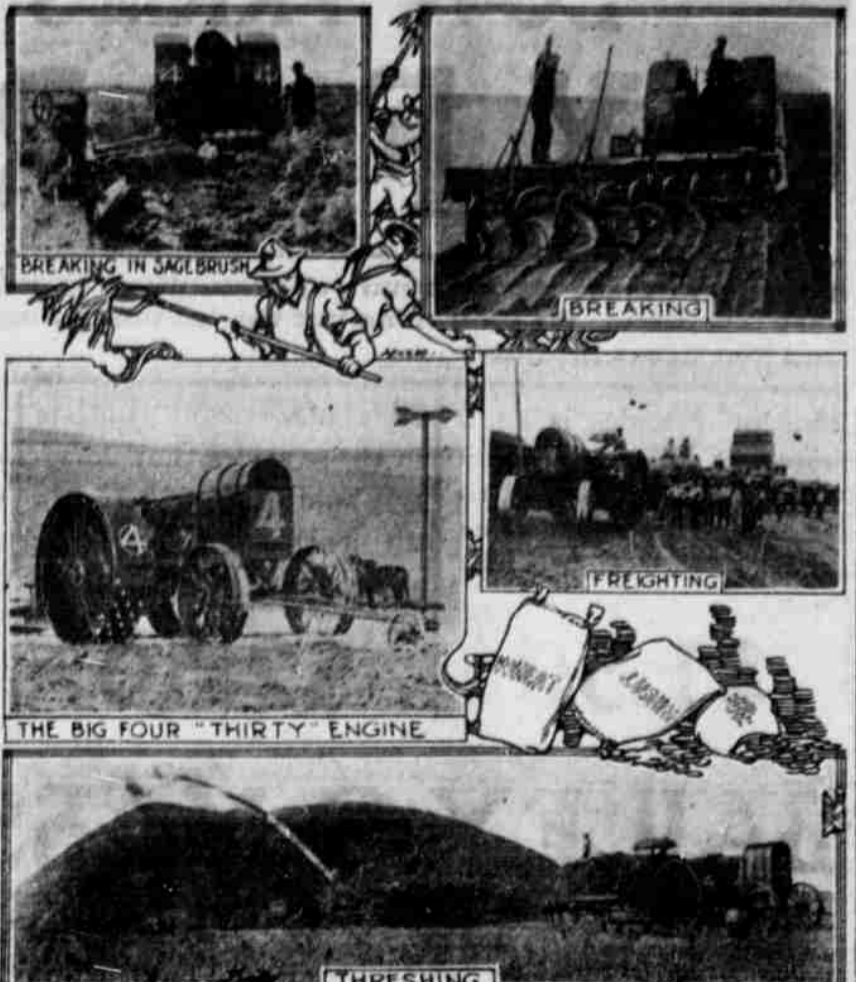

Such scenes have the soothing, soul satisfying quality of prayer and a benediction. It brings the observer in touch with the Infinite, driving out for the time, at least, every sordid thought, every paltry scheme. It is the word of the Master painted in a language that savage and Christian alike can read, and in reading, understand.

The writer has seen the glory of the sunsets of the deserts and in many places in the world, but nowhere anything to compare with the splendor and beauty of those which you can see beyond the waters of this inland, Sunset Sea.

The Creator was lavishly generous with this valley of wonders. She has a thousand charms with which to cheer the heart and please the eye of mankind and the majority of them will be found here in some form or other.

Where else can you find such incomparably scenery, such wide sweep of valleys and lake, such mountains. Where can you find better boating, fishing and bathing, where can the

OFFERS BIG PRIZE FOR BEST WHEAT

THE WORLD'S GREATEST WHEAT PRIZE $5,000.

Five thousand dollars for the best five bushels of wheat, any variety, grown in the American Northwest is the prize announced as the grand champion sweepstakes to be awarded at the Northwestern Products Exposition to be held in Minneapolis, Nov. 12 to 23.

This is the world's greatest prize for wheat—twice as large as any prize ever offered in Canada, five times as much as any prize ever offered for any class of grain in the United States.

Announcement of this award has just been made by the Northwest Development League, under the auspices of which organization the seven states give the products exposition. The states included in the American Northwest, as represented by the League, are Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

The prize consists of a Big Four "30" farm tractor manufactured by the Gas Traction Company of Minneapolis and Winnipeg and a set of plows manufactured by the Emerson Brantingham Plow Company of Rockford, Ill. These companies, desiring to encourage farmers in of the Northwest to grow more and better wheat, have given the league the outfit for certain considerations and the seven states will compete for the sweepstakes prize.

Winning this prize means that wheat awarded prizes at seven state fairs and scores of county fairs will be selected by a process of elimination and finally entered at the Northwestern Products

Exposition in the grand champion sweepstakes class. There will be nothing in the rules, however, to prevent a grower exhibiting wheat which has not been shown at any fair, but will be entered for the first time to win the $5,000 prize.

Judging of the wheat will be done by the accepted authorities in wheat judging in the United States. Five bushel samples of threshed grain will be required and they must be exhibited with ten bundles from the same field which must be from six to ten inches in diameter. The threshed grain will be judged, not only by its external appearance, but a certain part will be milled and baked into bread, a given number of points being allowed for the results in the milling and baking tests. The Northwest Development League will undertake to deliver the farm tractor and plows to the winner free of cost.

The Big Four "30" Tractor and plows were selected for prizes because of their practicability. There is no agency which is playing a more important part in the development of the Northwest than the modern farm tractor. All over these seven states the giant horses are cutting the broad prairies into fertile farms. The wheat fields are already dotted with them. Every tractor placed in the Northwest will turn hundreds of acres of prairie into productive farms, making homes for settlers, creating traffic and new wealth.

hunter find better duck and wild geese hunting, to say nothing of deer? Nature is here expressed in all of her most capricious and fantastic moods. There are trails winding above canyon and precipice, trails shaded by giant firs and pines, trails which cross mountain streams, cold as lee and filled with the game rainbow trout. They take you to the top of the world where you can see a thousand square miles of undulating hills and misty valleys.

You will find wonderful caverns made by the erosion of the lime rocks; you will see unscalable cliffs towering toward the heavens; you can look down into the depths of canyons far below and all the time you are breathing an air which is a tonic itself.

The auto enthusiast can reach the world famed Crater Lake in an easy trip. Crater Lake is called one of the scenic marvels of the world, its waters are the deepest blue.

A short distance from Fairport are the Lakeview Hot springs, famous for their medicinal value. Everywhere are roads leading to points of interest to the pleasure seeker and the tourist. With a small motor boat one has nearly two hundred miles of shore line before him. In fact every day of the week and the month you can vary the scenic menu, always you will find something new, strange and beautiful. And the valley will supply you with the finest fruits and vegetables. The apples, peaches, plums, cherries, pears and all the smaller fruits like strawberries, raspberries, dewberries, etc., are exceptionally fine. A day is coming when the strawberries of this section will be known all over the country.

And this is in brief a picture of Fairport. The pen has its limitations and can not do its subject justice. During the last four months there has been an influx of world-traveled men from all parts of the globe to the camp of High Grade near by. They are a unit in their expressions of appreciation for this country. They say that they know of no place to compare with it. We predict for Fairport a great future. Its growth is sure because it is backed by the things which make successful places.
