REMINGTON-UMC

AUTOLOADING SHOTGUN

For singles-trap or field—just toss in a shell, press the button and—"PULL." The side bolt makes it easy. You don't have to tug at the barrel or watch an on-and-off device. The action stays open after each single shot is fired. It always stays open when the magazine is empty. Five shots—three to get the cripples—each under absolute control of the trigger finger. The recoil reloads for you—licks another shell in; takes the strain off the gun—the discomfort out of the kick—all without diminishing the drive behind the shot.

Simple take-down—a few turns of the readily handled magazine screw-cap makes cleaning, carrying and interchange of barrels quick and easy.

Send for a motion picture booklet telling how the kick is used—how a friction device found only on the Remington-UMC Auto-loading Shotgun takes the punishment out of heavy loads.

EAST COMES WEST FOR PRIZE STOCK

For 50 years they have been producing in western Oregon and Washington long woolled sheep of exceptional quality. The industry has been treated by the farmers of the far west as incidental to their field agriculture. During all of this time they never have apparently appreciated the fact that they were particularly favored in the way of climatic conditions for the production of a quality of sheep of the Cotswold, Lincoln and Leicester breeds that is so much in demand in Ohio, New York and other states further east.

During all of this time the sheep fanciers of the eastern states have been making annual tours to England and importing from there sheep of those breeds to make up their show flocks and to introduce new blood into their flocks.

Last fall Mr. A. E. Chamberlain, Development Commissioner of the Great Northern Railway, a stranger to all of the western breeders who was visiting the Oregon state fair, noticed the superior quality of the Oregon sheep of these breeds and induced one of the breeders, Mr. F. A. Koser, of Rickren, to bring a small flock to the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago. Mr. Koser was a novice in the showing of sheep and found himself in competition with the best that could be brought in England or Canada or were produced in the United States. And they were dressed for the show while his were from the pasture.

Notwithstanding this handicap he succeeded in winning his full share of the prizes. Mr. Frank Harding of Waukesha, Wisconsin, noticed the quality of these sheep and this year instead of importing he came to Oregon for his show flocks. He has just concluded a round of the state fair circuits and has certainly won his full share of the prizes. There is no use of a farmer raising high priced extra quality live stock unless he lets those who want to purchase that class of stuff know that he has it. Judicious advertising is as necessary to the success of the breeder as it is that he have the stuff to sell.

The best advertising a breeder can get is by taking stuff where other breeders are and showing them what he has.

Mr. Koser did this. The result will be a development of a large trade between the eastern states and the western slopes of Oregon and Washington in sheep of these breeds.

And Mr. Chamberlain says that they are breeding or these same slopes dairy cattle of a superior quality, as are their long woolled sheep. Why don't they bring some of them over the mountains and let the eastern breeders see what they have?

But why shouldn't they have a superior quality of dairy cattle? They have the climate and conditions under which the dairy breeds of cattle and different breeds of long woolled sheep were developed. They have green feed or grazing for this stock the year around, and it was just such environment that contributed to and made possible the development of these different breeds to their highest type of perfection.

With such conditions as they have in western Washington and Oregon there is no necessity of our having to import long woolled sheep or dairy cattle from Europe. If the farmers of this part of this country who are favored with such excellent conditions will produce the stuff, the eastern man will certainly buy it, and at very profitable prices.

"Woman's Rights"

(Paid Advertisement)

There are over 100,000 women in Oregon. The majority of them do not want to vote. A small proportion in any given community is asking for the ballot. Is not that true in your town? What do the rest want?

Many of them are actively opposed. To put upon these women a responsibility from which they have hitherto been exempted and which they do not wish to assume is not "Women's Rights."

Many of them are indifferent. The indifferent male vote is one of the serious problems of the present electorate. Would you add to it a large body of votes avowedly indifferent?

The demand for woman suffrage is the demand that women shall assume an equal share with men in the responsibility of carrying the government of the City, the State, the Nation. It means she shall enter, with him the political arena. For it is an arena. Politics is not a conflict of opinions, it is a conflict of wills. It carries with it public debates, public marchings and counter marchings, public discussions of public questions, and of the character of public candidates, and all the other incidents of a campaign.

It is not democratic, nor just, nor fair to graft this large body of women into this campaign against their wills.

This is the sixth time the voters of Oregon have been asked to vote upon this question in spite of the fact that every two years opposition to it has increased, so that in 1910 suffrage

ANOTHER MYSTERY OF CRATER LAKE

Oregon Journal: Captain O. C. Applegate has received a letter from J. W. Hillman of Hope Villa, La., the discoverer of Crater Lake in which the writer recalls his trip to the lake 59 years ago, and the impression it gave him at that time. Mr. Hillman was one of a party of mineral seekers and was engaged in business at the time in Jacksonville, Or., with Alexander Martin, Sr., now president of the First National Bank at Klamath Falls, to whom he refers in his letter as "Jerry." Among other things in his letter he says:

"I was very much pleased with yours of July 13, as Jerry had never mentioned you in one of his letters to me, and the postal cards were reminders to me of days long past, only there was no hotel at that point when I first saw it. Wizard Island looks very natural to me, as everything connected with the discovery does.

"There is one thing connected with the discovery never mentioned in writing, although I have spoken of it in telling of the peculiarity of the lake, and others may have imagined to be a same thing that all our party did. We rode past Wizard Island looking for an outlet of the lake, I was in the lead and although the snow was down to the water in many places on the banks, yet opposite the island the land was bare, and just after passing the island I thought my mule flinched as though in fear. I placed my hand below my knee and told the boys we were near a fire. A perceptible heat was arising from the surface. It might have been imagination on my part, but it so, the whole party had the same imagination, for all agreed with me.

"I never mentioned the fact in writing about the lake, for fear of being called a visionary, and it looked so visionary that I hated to write about it, for I knew that it must have been there for thousands of years since the lake was formed and the cooling process should have been completed by that time.

"I also think I was the first white man to dip water from the can on a Rogue river. It was on our return trip. I think this was the first time I have ever written about it, but I have often told about it."

PLAYGROUND PARAGRAPHS.

The universal impulse to play is a divinely ordered thing. If God gives the instinct man ought to provide the playground.

Man plays only where he is a human being in the fullest sense of the word, and he has reached full humanity only when he plays.

It would be difficult to find any point at which in our large cities a dollar will go further in the making of those things for which the city exists than in the provision and maintenance of playgrounds.

In these playgrounds and in their work lies the beginning of social redemption of the people in large cities. They furnish the spectacle of a city saving itself; of the people of a great city finding nature and God by finding their neighbors and themselves.

Here lies the function of the playground. It gives the individual the opportunity for mastery of his body under conditions of increasing difficulties in its varied physical activities. It also gives the opportunity for the social experiences of democracy of self and group government. It is the school for physical and social self discovery and self direction.

There is another point of view which maintains that no matter how great the cost the value of the boy saved is inestimably beyond it. This point of view is suggested by that Master of practical life who knew full well the value of money, even the widow's mite. For what shall it profit a city if it gain the whole world and lose the souls of its children?

The University of Oregon Library has received from Rome a large collection of the well known Anderson prints, which will be loaned upon application to any woman's club or other organization in Oregon that may have occasion to study the masterpieces of Italian sculpture, painting and architecture.

They are intended primarily for the use of study clubs throughout the state working in connection with the correspondence study department.

carried in only one county in Oregon, and in that one by five voters, the total vote being 35,270 for suffrage, the smallest vote for it since 1900, and 59,065 against, a majority of 23,795.

The Oregon State Association Opposed to the Extension of the Suffrage to Women asks that you give this matter your earnest consideration, and defeat it this time by so great a plurality that the suffragists both local and imported, must bow before the will of the people of Oregon, and acknowledge that the majority rules in America.

The State Association Opposed to the Extension of the Suffrage to Women.
