VICE-PRESIDENT SHERMAN BURIED

Was Fifth Vice-President of United States to Die While in Office

The body of the late Vice-president James Schoolcraft Sherman, whose death was announced in last week's issue of the Examiner, was laid to rest Saturday, November 2, in Forest Hill cemetery, at Utica, N. Y.

Vice-president Sherman was born in Utica on October 24, 1855. He married Carrie Babcock at East Orange, N. J., in 1881. They have three sons, all living and in business in Utica. The Vice-president was an Elk, a trustee of Hamilton College, a member of the Dutch Reformed Church, a member of many clubs, and a business man of wide interests. He was the fifth Vice-president whose death, while in office has shocked the nation. Vice-president King died during Pierce's administration; Vice-president Wilson during that of Grant; Vice-president Hendricks during that of Cleveland; and Vice-president Hobart during McKinley's first term.

Through a proclamation of President Taft all public officials were requested to pay special tribute on the day of the funeral, when nearly all government business was suspended.

Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the Republican national committee, has sent notices to all committeemen to meet in Chicago November 12th to select a successor to Vice-president Sherman on the Republican ticket. The death of the vice-president, it is stated did not affect the validity of the Taft and Sherman electors.

Speculation as to the man who will succeed the late Vice-president Sherman as candidate for vice-president has been the chief topic of discussion among politicians in New York. At Republican headquarters it was reported that Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, or Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, were most likely to fill the vacancy caused by Sherman's death.

Meanwhile Sherman's death places Secretary of State Knox in direct line to succeed President Taft should he die before March 4, 1913. Knox, however, does not become Vice-president, that office remaining vacant until the next administration.

Married in Reno

The Reno Journal says that Leo Dodson and Miss Bertha A. Crowder were married Friday evening, November 1st, at 10 o'clock in that city. The ceremony was performed at the Trinity Episcopal Church rectory by Reverend Samuel Unsworth.

The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dodson of Lakeview, and the bride is a niece of John Crowder of Long Valley and is also a niece of Mrs. W. A. Cobb, of Reno.

The Journal says the young couple will make their home in Lakeview.

THE SWINEHERD.

Hogs should have clean pastures, beds and water, and a variety of food.

If sows are expected to produce a full litter, the spring litter should be weaned when about ten weeks old.

Pigs that show signs of thumps should be forced to take exercise.

Young pigs are peculiarly subjected to various kinds of intestinal worms.

Keep the feed troughs clean. It is a wasteful practice to mix manure with grain.

You cannot fatten a brood sow and fatten a hog alike, and make the best success of both.

As long as the breeding of a sow is profitable she should be bred. It is not advisable to sell off a good brood animal.

HOGGING OFF CORN.

Satisfactory Method of Finishing Swine For Market.

One of the most satisfactory methods of finishing hogs is that of "hogging off." In fact, as a method of fitting for market after the pigs have secured the necessary size and frame it is cheaper than the best methods of dry lot feeding. The hog is his own harvester and feeder. He saves labor, time and fertility. And certainly in these days when labor is scarce, land high and feeds expensive we may well welcome a method with which to reduce the cost of production.

At one time it was the common opinion that much of the corn was wasted. But actual tests disprove this. Indeed, hogs will waste less corn than the farmer, were he to stink it himself. Of course allowance must be made for extremely wet seasons, but in these cases hedges may be used and only about as much corn allowed as can be cleaned up well in about ten days.

Some idea of the economy of "hogging off" may be gained by noting the results of an experiment at the Iowa station. The pigs were turned into the standing corn at a weight of eighty-two pounds during the middle of September, or about the time the corn was beginning to dent. One acre supported ten pigs about two months. At the end of that time the lot in soy beans and corn made a gain of one and a half pounds per day, producing over 600 pounds of pork per acre at a cost of $2.28 per hundred. The second lot in corn and corns gained one and a quarter pounds per day at a cost of $2.41 per hundred. Corn and vetch stood third in daily gain and cost of production and corn alone fourth.

At the Missouri station hogs weighing 140 pounds were turned into a field of corn in which rye had been sowed at the best cultivation. The pigs weighed 200 pounds when removed, or at 6 weeks per acre, returned $30 per acre.

In a second lot corn and corns were fed. The Whipsawwill variety was used, and they were sown broadcast at the time of the last cultivation of July 17. The feed lasted thirty days, and in that time the pigs had gained fifty-seven pounds each. The important result is that 508 pounds of pork were produced per acre, which at 6 cents returned $31.08. Corn and vetch were also fed with success. Rape may be sown in the same manner as the peas, at the rate of about four pounds per acre. On either soy beans or vetch may be sown at the rate of about one-half bushel per acre. When foreign crops cannot be sown in the corn they may be provided as a separate pasture, or alfalfa or clover pasture may be used as a supplement when it is desirable.

Under ordinary conditions the pigs will take care of the corn without much attention. However, if small pigs are used it may be necessary to assist them for awhile by "turning in" a few older hogs. For this reason 100 pound pigs generally give the best results. Pigs of this size have secured sufficient growth, so that they will not become too chunky and stop growing. Very large pigs, on the other hand, are inclined to break more corn than is absolutely necessary from day to day, hence their gain is not so economical.

The Pure Breed Sire.

The Madison correspondent of Board's Magazine writes: I would like to sell my best sire, a fine, purebred, other than our cows, five that cost the $250 and I had them to my choice young from the Madison and that cost me $250. These cows had five calves each, which I sold at $100 per head, a splendid buyer at $100 per head, or $12 per head above the average cost of their mothers. A good price for common yearling heifers hereabout is $20 per head. These five brought enough in excess of that figure to pay for the BUSINESS BITS.

A merchant is known by the clerk he keeps.

It is the catering to exceptions in any business that kills the pace.

Would you hire yourself for the job if you were the boss? Introspect.

He failed because his business grew faster than his capacity to direct it.

You can't be a good business man unless you have learned to be a good citizen.

All streets, even the alleys and country lanes, lead to the stores that advertise.

A clean and orderly store is the cheapest advertisement ever a merchant had.

You can't plant pigweed and harvest corn. Nor can you in merchandising sow indolence and reap success.

Salesmanship is the fine art of making the other fellow feel as you do about the thing you have for sale.

Were we in the retail variety business we would mark every article in our stock in plain figures. We would do this because we would want to succeed.

SOME GOOD ADVICE.

Intended For the Farmer, but of Use to the Merchant.

A man of considerable experience in retail routes suggests the following series of don'ts for guidance of readers:

Don't retail your goods at wholesale prices and kick the grocer if he does not pay you retail price.

Don't have a different price for each customer.

Don't have your customers make your prices. Be sure you are right, then go ahead.

Don't buy cold storage eggs and sell them for freshly laid eggs. It is an insult to honest farmers.

Don't sell fifty-five pounds for a sixty pound bushel.

Don't put small apples in the bottom of the barrel.

Don't overestimate the quality of your goods.

Don't forget that "here a little and there a little" is the gross profit in the end.

Don't forget that a steady keep at it will win.

Don't talk politics or religion.

Don't sell a fowl for a chicken. It will pay best to reverse the order.

Don't talk about the last customer you called on at the next stopping place.

Don't try to make people believe you know what they want better than they do.

Don't forget, rain or shine, circus or town meeting, to be on hand on your regular trips.

Don't try to sell overcoats in July and linen coats in December. Sell seasonable goods at seasonable times.

Don't forget to say "No" to a doubtful customer.

Don't be afraid to turn your basket of berries bottom side up.

Don't forget to sell No. 1 goods at top notch prices.

Don't forget a bargain counter has its demerits. If you have any admit it and pass on.

Don't forget to suit your trade, and they will pay for it.

Don't forget common sense people still live.

Don't wear your heart on your sleeve. If you have a banknote to meet keep it to yourself.

Don't forget to smile on entering the house and don't forget to keep your place as a salesman.

Don't forget to make friends with all your customers.—Orange Judd Farmer
