SEES MUCH FOR CENTRAL OREGON

That winter grain can be grown with splendid results without irrigation on the plateaus of central Oregon is the conviction of Professor Thomas Shaw, agriculturist of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways. Professor Shaw has just completed a tour of inspection of the central Oregon country, says the Portland Journal. Professor Shaw is the man sent to Montana a few years ago by James J. Hill to report on the possibilities for transforming that state into a grain producer and the 25,000,000 bushels of wheat harvested in that state this season may be attributed largely to the successful experiments carried on by Professor Shaw since 1909. It is said that if there ever was a man who could make two blades of grass grow where but one grew before, Professor Shaw is that man.

"Central Oregon is most wonderful country," said Professor Shaw, "and the possibilities for development are immense. There is no more fertile soil to be found anywhere, for volcanic ash is more enduring than any other soil that we know of and the entire central Oregon country consists of volcanic ash."

"Nearly all the grain crops in central Oregon should be winter crops, not only winter wheat, but winter rye, oats, barley and vetch. The climate may be too severe in a few places but only a few."

"The advantage of winter grain is that it gains enough strength during the wet months to carry it through before the prolonged dry spell of the summer. Winter wheat should be sown the last part of August and the land should be summer-fallowed. It should also be kept plowed and clean. A splendid way to keep the ground clean, too, is to grow a crop of fodder corn. As soon as the corn is cut the ground is ready for the wheat."

"One great weakness in central Oregon is that the people as a rule do not seem to realize the great importance of properly preparing the soil for a crop. It should be kept clean, above all things, and then it will retain the moisture."

"Milo maize, corn, alfalfa, and potatoes should be spring-sown crops. Alfalfa will soon be one of the most important crops of central Oregon. It will be grown for hay and seed. Alfalfa grown on non-irrigated lands produces better seed than that grown under irrigation. Under the dry farming system alfalfa must be grown in rows like corn and cultivated much in the same manner."

"Observations lead me to believe that in central Oregon west of the Cascade mountains there are 10,000,000 acres of land ready for cultivation. These 10,000,000 acres would produce 120,000,000 bushels of wheat, or more than twice as much as is now produced by the entire Pacific Northwest section. Taking these figures into consideration, one can readily see the importance to Portland and to the State of Oregon of the rapid development of central Oregon."

"Central Oregon will some day become one of the most famous wheat producing sections of the world. These are immense areas that can be irrigated by but pursuing the proper methods the day lands will be made to yield large crops. It is all in the working of the soil. This we have proven in Montana and we are now proving it in central Oregon on the sage brush land for we have established an experimental station near Ontario in Malheur county."

Professor Shaw makes his headquarters in St. Paul.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Advice

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, its time to act and no time to experiment. These are common symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. It has cured many stubborn cases in this vicinity.

Can Lakeview citizens demand further proof than the following testimonial?

Mrs. George Bell, Washington St., Klamath Falls, Ore., says: "Some time ago I began to suffer from pains in my back, due to disordered kidneys. The kidney secretions were also unnatural, causing me annoyance. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and began their use. They completely cured me. I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

RECLAIMED LANDS NEED ADVERTISING

According to the Portland Telegram, Director F. B. Newell, of the Reclamation Service, has been taken to task by George M. Bailey, president of the Northwest Townsite Company. When the director says that after the Federal Government has spent $75,000,000 in arid land reclamation work, and yet the farmers of the Middle West and East do not come to take the land for agriculture, "does he not confess his own incompetence?" asks the Townsite president.

"Everytime I walk down the streets of Portland or any other large American city," says Mr. Bailey, "I see the dead walls plastered with large colored, expensive lithographed posters showing how easy it is for the young men of America to see the world by joining the United States Navy. If the Navy Department can spend money advertising for what it wants, why can't the Department of the Interior do the same, and thus put settlers on these irrigated lands?"

"What would you think of any private corporation that would spend $75,000,000 in reclaiming waste land and titting it for cultivation and settlement, and then sitting down and wondering why American farmers who live 2000 miles away do not come and take the land? You would say that what the enterprise needed was expert publicity, wouldn't you?"

"The state of Oregon was given 1,000,000 acres of government land, on condition that it would reclaim it by irrigation. It can either do this itself by creating a department of public works, or it can be sub-let the contract to irrigation companies which is now being done. My own company has a contract with the state, and is now reclaiming 12,000 acres of land at Paisley, in Lake county, Or., under the Carey act, which we hope to have completely settled within the next three years. But if the state of New York can raise $101,000,000 to build a barge canal, why cannot the state of Oregon raise enough money to build irrigation canals, and thus let settlers have the land at the actual cost of reclamation? This can be done, I believe, by adopting a plan which will secure settlers at the same time that the state secures money for doing the work."

"Under the present law, any citizen or group of citizens in the state who believe that they know where some Government land can be irrigated, take the initiative themselves and get up preliminary surveys and maps and lay them before the State Engineer. It is his duty to investigate their scheme. If he finds that it is practical a more detailed map, with specifications of cost, is prepared, and the Desert Land Board requests the Secretary of the Interior at Washington to withdraw the land in question from homestead entry and to hold it thus segregated until the state of Oregon has an opportunity to reclaim it by irrigation. Then the promoters of the scheme go before the Desert Land Board, and if they give a bond and otherwise convince the board of their responsibility, they are given a contract to build the dam, reservoir, canals and other works, and are permitted to charge the settler a fixed price per acre for the perpetual water rights. Of course, this price includes a profit to the irrigation company and this profit is what attracted my company to come out here from Philadelphia and engage in this work."

"But why should not the state of Oregon take charge of this Carey act business?"

"It is time that every newspaper in the country took up this cause of our own land. The American newspapers should carry advertisements telling about the irrigated lands awaiting settlers, and the space should be paid for by the Government at advertising rates, just as the space is paid for in which the Navy Department asks young men to go on board of our big battleships and see the world."

Mining Property Cleared

As has been stated in this paper before, the settling of the attachment on the Consolidated Mines Company of Bidwell, came up in Alturas last week, says the Alturas New Era. All parties interested were present and the mine was sold under attachment. There were several bidders present, but Mr. J. M. Stone, the principal owner of the mine, bought in the mine for $29,500. The attachment was made by James Williams, who held the largest claim against the Mining Company.

Mr. Stone will now get the property in shape, and in the early spring will begin operations anew. This is one of the finest properties in the High Grade district, and will soon be among the leading producing properties of the coast.
