Railroad Business Good

A message from Reno, Nevada, to the Sacramento Bee says: When asked if a report what the Nevada-California-Oregon Railway company intends to discontinue its regular daily passenger train service and supplement it by running a train north from Reno one day and back to Reno the next. Manager T. F. Dunaway, of the Nevada-California-Oregon Railway company said: "I have never heard of any such move on the part of the railroad. You can say for me that the report is absolutely without foundation. We have no idea of doing any such thing."
At the present time the N.-C.-O. is doing more business than it has for years and it is probable that it will have to run more trains in the near future. These new trains, if run, will be for freight, however, and not passengers.

Shipping in Sheep

Four carloads of sheep, shipped by Franzsen of Reno, go north on the N.-C.-O. railway to Madeline, Cal., for the winter feeding in preparation for the spring market. The district to which the sheep are destined is long on feed this winter and will be the center of considerable stock feeding. Two cars of sheep will leave the city tonight on the Nevada stock special, shipped by Rothblom & Co. Other shipments are expected to go with this train.—Nevada State Journal.
It is likely that some sheep will be shipped to this valley to be wintered. There is an abundance of hay here and the N.-C.-O. railway has established a sufficiently low rate to justify shipping stock in for this purpose.

Would Favor Farmers

Senator Smith of Georgia is doing all within his power to force through the Lever agricultural education extension bill in the U. S. Senate. This bill would provide instruction in agriculture and home economics to farmers through demonstration. The bill would appropriate $10,000 annually to each state having a land grant agricultural college for the purpose of establishing an extension demonstration. An additional total appropriation of $300,000 to begin on January 1, is proposed, which would be appropriated among the states according to rural population. This appropriation would be increased $300,000 until the maximum of $3,000,000 is reached in 1923. Senator Smith said "the greatest power and the chief hope of this country are found in our farming population."

Oregon's Sheep Industry

There are 2,225,000 sheep in Eastern Oregon. There are sheep on 6218 farms in Oregon, or on 14 per cent of all the farms in the state. These are figures shown in the report of the State Board of Sheep Commissioners which has just been made public.
Oregon, states the report, stands sixth in the sheep producing states. There are 10,000 people directly interested in handling Oregon sheep and 40,000 people, more or less dependent on the industry. It is estimated that one man is required to handle 400 sheep, making a total of 45,562 people intimately connected with the industry.
A total of $2,265,000 is paid to labor for the cost of caring for the sheep and the annual income from the sheep is estimated at $8,000,000. Sheep and equipment are valued at $23,407,000.

Business Normal

Regardless of the wails among some of the local dealers prior to Christmas time in regard to business being dull the closing scene finished with the usual rush and clamor expected at that time of season. Many of the large stocks of Christmas goods looks very slim, and those who delayed their shopping until the last had occasion to regret it.
