Lakeview, Oregon, Thursday, January 16, 1913

FUTURE IS BRIGHT

The year 1913 has dawned upon Lakeview and the Goose Lake Valley with the outlook much brighter than any in its past history.

Lakeview's building record the past year was heavy and very flattering as to future indications of advancement and prosperity. Many improvements during the year is very noticeable since the New Year chimes of 1912 sounded and the 1913 twelve month begun. The new Heryford building which is practically completed would amply serve the needs of a town many times the size of Lakeview, but that it will prove a paying investment for its promoters is evidenced by the many leases that have been taken for quarters and offices in the building.

The first National Bank and Lake County Loan and Savings Banks have been among the many to branch out and prepare to meet the country's growth as well as the banks' increasing business. The Bailey & Massingill store has added new lines to the regular stock and made other important changes and improvements in their store. The Lakeview Mercantile Co. is making preparations to open one of the largest and most complete merchandise and department stores in this section of the Northwest. Many improvements in other local business establishments and residences have taken place during the recently passed year.

That which comes as the most important epoch in the history of the country generally is the late-announcements of the proposed extension of the Oregon Trunk railroad south from Bend. What this means to the country can be partially judged by the past actions of Mr. Hill as an empire builder through all the territory touched by his lines. We are also told that this year we may expect to see the completion of the Oregon Valley Land Company's irrigation system on the West Side. The completion of this project means a large influx of settlers, who will move on their land and place it in a stage of cultivation. It is stated also that Mr. Wheeler, who is constructing an irrigation system on Dry Creek, is in a position to clearly see an early completion of his enterprise.

The County is out of debt and the 1913 tax levy, as stated last week, is only eight and one-half mills. The future in all looks bright and let each do his or her part in working for the accomplishment of big results that spell prosperity to the entire community.

THANKS

Development News

Certain measures believed to be of benefit to the state as a whole are favored by the Oregon Purebred Livestock Association, which will present them to the coming session of the legislature. Among these is the livestock sanitary bill, which has the approval of the Grange, the woolgrowers, dairy association and the Consumers League. The association also asks that $5,000 out of the Panama-Pacific Exposition appropriation be set aside for the livestock premiums to go to Oregon exhibitors.

An appropriation of $10,000 is asked for purchasing livestock for the Oregon Experiment station; this is to be a continuing appropriation. It is recommended that the premium fund for livestock at the state fair be raised and that an annual appropriation of $3,000 be made for the annual dairy show at Portland. It is also thought best to do away with district fairs and establish a county fair in each county. It is recommended that no state fair be held in 1915, but that this state join with the Panama-Pacific Exposition to hold the biggest stock show San Francisco has ever known.

INFORMATION ON ANTHRAX DISEASE

Treatment is of Little Avail So Careful Precaution Is Urged

As promised in last week's issue of the Examiner we reprint the following concerning the disease of anthrax, which is said to be in existence in the Bly country, taken from the Department of Agriculture Book on Diseases of Cattle.

"Anthrax or charbon, may be defined as an infectious disease which is caused by specific bacteria, known as anthrax bacilli, and which is more or less restricted by conditions of soil and moisture to definite geographical localities. Smaller animals such as mice, rabbits, etc., speedily succumb to inoculation. Dogs and hogs are slightly susceptible, while fowls are practically immune.

"The cause of the disease is a microscopic organism known as anthrax bacillus. Like all bacteria, these rod-like bodies have the power of indefinite multiplication, and in the body of infected animals they produce death by rapidly increasing in numbers and producing substances which poison the body.

"The symptoms in cattle vary considerably according as the disease begins in the skin, in the lungs or in the intestines. They depend also on the severity of attack. Sometimes the animal dies very suddenly as it trom apoplexy. Such cases occur in the beginning of the outbreak. The animal, without having shown any signs of disease, suddenly drops down in the pasture and dies in convulsions or an animal apparently well at night is found dead in the morning.

The second type, without any external swellings is the one most commonly observed in cattle. This disease begins with a high fever, all feeding and rumination are suspended.

Chills and muscular tremors may appear and the skin show uneven temperature. The ears and the base of the horns are cold, the coat starting.

The animals are dull and stupid and manifest great weakness. To these symptoms others are added in the course of the disease. The dullness may give way to great uneasiness, champing of jaws, spasms of the limbs, kicking and pawing the ground, and the breathing may become labored.

"The third type of the disease includes those cases in which the disease is prolonged. It may last from three to seven days and terminate fatally or end in recovery. In this type which is rarely observed, the symptoms are practically as described in the acute form only less marked.

"The disease may become stationary in a given locality and appear year after year and even grow in severity if the carcasses of animals which have succumbed to it are not properly disposed of. These should be buried deeply, so that the spore formation may be prevented and no animal have access to them. By exercising this precaution the disease will not be disseminated by flies and other insect pests.

"Treatment proves of very little avail, except perhaps in cases which originate from external wounds. The swellings should be opened freely by long incisions with a sharp knife and washed several times daily with carbolic acid solution, one ounce to a quart of water.

"Care should be taken to disinfect thoroughly any fluid discharge that should follow the incision.

"Since treatment is of little avail in this disease, prevention is the most important subject demanding consideration."

In further treating on the subject of prevention the book dwells on soil localities and advises the fencing off of stagnant pools in the pastures, and draining of lands. In some cases it is necessary to remove the stock from the pasture entirely and feed them in stables. It is of the utmost importance that carcasses should be properly disposed of, and the best method for this is burying them. Protective inoculation is also advised. This method has been quite extensively adopted in some localities with the proper results.

Obituary

John Hanson, father of J. F. and

Stanley Hanson, of this place, died at his home in Glenwood, Iowa, on the morning of the 2d inst. At the time of his death Mr. Hanson was in his 73d year. His death was caused by heart disease, and came as a surprise to his many friends as he had enjoyed good health up to a few days before his death. Mr. Hanson had been prominently identified with his section, having located at Glenwood during the Civil War. He led an active business life, but soon after the decease of his wife, which occurred several years since, he retired from business, since then he has led a life free from heavy responsibilities.

The Glenwood Tribune pays the following tribute to him:

"Mr. Hanson was a man of large intelligence and he had a wide knowledge of practical things. He had also a fine sense of the beautiful in art, in nature and in human conduct. He held to high rules of life, of thought, feeling and action. In all his relations with the world he was a man of simple candor and of the finest integrity. In his earlier years he was severe toward those whose errors and misguided lives led them into faulty ways of living; but in his later years, with expanded mind and character and with the wisdom of ripe experience and observation, he became tolerant toward human weakness and regretted and commiserated where he had formerly denounced. He had long been a member and one of the chief supporters of the Congregational church. He was a man of unostentatious truly Christian spirit and character—devout, charitable, considerate and kind. Though living much to himself after the death of his wife, and the wide separation of his children in their life pursuits, he nevertheless sought the association of his kind and he was a genial and sympathetic companion. He loved to sit in conversation with old acquaintances and friends and talk over the past and discuss the developments and progress of the age. He was in every respect a citizen of the highest worth and he will long be missed in the community which held him in so much esteem.

Seven children survive, two daughters and five sons, as follows: Mrs. Harvey Moulton, Pueblo, Colorado; Mrs. Ella Drake, Newark, New Jersey; Fred and Stanley of Lakeview, Oregon; Lewis, Leon and Gerard of Los Angeles, California.

Competition Brewing

Direct competition, national in scope, between the Wells-Fargo Express Company and the federal parcel post will go into effect as soon as plans which the company has been maturing, are completed according to an announcement from the San Francisco express office headquarters.

The competition would extend to both rates and services with special regard to eggs, butter, poultry and other perishable food stuffs, to be delivered direct from snipper to consignee, thus eliminating the middleman's profits. Eleven pounds would be the maximum weight acceptable, as with the parcels post.

Mrs. J. L. Clark last week went to Bonanza to attend her sister who is reported quite sick.

High School Notes

Eight grade examinations this week. One more week closes the first semester of this year.

Parents and teachers meeting next Friday night in the assembly hall. Come and take part in the program.

The school board had a meeting last Saturday and expressed themselves pleased with the school so far. We hope to make it better next term.

The town cooking class started Monday with an enrollment of 10. There was room for 24 but only 10 availed themselves of the free cooking course.

Last Friday evening the Literary Society held its first regular meeting in the auditorium of the High School. The following program was given: Song, By High School Students; Recitation, Lucile Bailey; Song, Raymond Dunbar; Recitation, Frances Mayfield; Piano Solo, Ruth Florence; Reading, Forrest Danton. Each number was well presented and showed careful preparation. After the program, Mr. Danton presented the society with a gavel.

The assembled school was favored with a piano solo by Miss Dorothy Bieber last Friday morning.

classes by the first of next week, there will be no night school this year. The teachers are ready and willing to do the work but as they are offering their services free they will not canvas for a class.

Everybody is studying hard now in preparation for the semester exams which take place next week.

The students of the junior and senior classes have begun rehearsal on a play to be given in about six weeks. The play selected is "The Perplexities of Mrs. Briggs," by Evelyn Gray Whiting. The tentative cast selected is as follows:

Mrs. Briggs, a woman of business, Lucile Bailey; Ralph, Marshal Ayres, Jimmy, Freddy Cronmiller; Alvira, Kate Rehart; Melissa, Mabel Vernon. Silas Green, a near relation, Carl Pendleton; Mr. Lee, a wealthy neighbor, James Burgess; Virginia Lee, his daughter, Ruth Bernard; Daisy Thornton, her friend, May O'Shea; Mrs. O'Connor, an Irish lady, Margie Bernard; Mandy Bates, friend of Mrs. Briggs, Rose Grant.

It Would Be H—!

Nature's laws are inherent to the existence of all things, consequently, primitive and anterior to all other laws. Nature's laws do not deceive or beguile; man-made laws invariably do. Nature's laws are impartial and common to all; man-made laws are partial and benefit the few. Nature's laws are just and invariable; man-made laws, to the masses, are oppressive, unjust and eternally being changed. Nature's laws select no special individual or "community of interest" while man-made laws are intended strictly to lay to the wealth producers but are extremely evasive to the idle consumers. The closer man-made laws resemble and conform to the laws of Nature, the more imperfect are they. Adversely, the less they conform or resemble Nature's laws, the more imperfect and unjust are they. Is there any natural law that bestows upon man the right to monopolize land, coal and oil fields, timber, water power, franchises, the exclusive privilege to issue the medium of exchange, or money, etc? If not, then our man-made laws are a long way from conforming to Nature's laws and from perfection. Socialism would do away with all special privilege laws and hug close to the natural or "Divine" laws. That would be h—, wouldn't it? You would never love your wife and children any more. It would give you the "hookworm" and you would be too lazy to chew your grub. Down with such heresy. P.S. What do you suppose would happen to you if you ever should begin to think? Moral: Don't think. Welch.
