SNOWFALL ABOVE NORMAL THIS YEAR

In the snowfall bulletin issued by the district forecaster of Oregon there appears the following:

"More snow than usual fell during January in practically all sections of the state, and, on account of the comparatively cool weather that obtained, more than the normal amount remained on the ground in the Siskiyou Mountains, in the higher levels along the western slope of the Cascade Mountains, and, in general, in all elevated localities east of the summit of that range. Below the 1000-foot level west of the Cascade Range the snowfall, although heavy, soon melted and the ground generally was bare on January 31; this was also true of agricultural sections east of the northern Cascades where only small patches of snow on northern slopes remained unmelted, and the ground was not frozen enough to keep most of the melted snow from being absorbed by the soil. The weather has prevented the solidifying of the snow blanket to any great extent, but high winds have caused the snow to drift even in the usually sheltered places among the timber. Conditions generally are quite favorable and indicate that nearly a normal amount of water may be expected for the coming irrigation season."

Your Own Town First

If you have made up your mind to live in a town, then stand up for it, and if you know positively no good, then silence is golden. Do all you can to help along every man who is engaged in legitimate business. Do not send away for everything nice you want and still expect the home men to suit the whim of one or two possible merchants. The success of your fellow townsmen will be your success. No man liveth to himself and no man does business independent of his fellow business men. Take your home paper. Do not imagine that the big dailies fill up all this space. There are many little crevices of good cheer, social sunshine, personal mention, in the home papers that the big dailies do not print. Then do not abuse your neighbor. The main difference in the number of his faults and your own is that you see through a magnifying glass as a critic. The ill omened, the croaker, can do more harm in a minute than two good citizens can repair in a month.

THE BEST COUGH MEDICINE

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since I have been keeping house," says L. C. Hames, of Marbury, Ala. "I consider it one of the best remedies I ever used. My children have all taken it and it works like a charm. For colds and whooping cough it is excellent." For sale by all dealers.

REMODELING AN OLD DAIRY BARN

Frequently a farmer or a dairyman asks help or advice in remodeling an old barn, writes H. E. McCartney in National Stockman. Recently the writer was called out on such an errand. The barn was found to be a very substantial frame affair, once a beef cattle feeding barn, but a few years ago put to its present use. The chief faults of the barn from the standpoint of a dairy barn were:

There was an insufficient supply of light. There was really no light on the south at all. The mangers were of lumber and built rather high, so that the cows breathed against them instead of above them. The stall partitions were of lumber and rather high, making them not only insanitary, but very serious obstructions to light and air in the barn. Then there was no system or effective means of ventilating the building. Such conditions exist in a great many barns, but they may be overcome quite readily when it is undertaken systematically.

The plan worked out for the renovation of the barn in question and which the owner expects to follow is to discard interior furnishings of wood. All the high wooden mangers and stall partitions will be torn out and floors and mangers of cement constructed. A single curved iron pipe will be used for stall partitions. Thus the interior will be made light, sanitary and easy to clean. The south end and the east and west sides of the barn will be opened up and almost continuous glass 12 inches high put in. Then for ventilation two open shafts will be constructed in the middle of the barn and from some distance below the ceiling to the roof. Fresh air will enter through the outside windows and the foul air pass out through the central shafts.

Guernsey cattle are gaining a great reputation in this country for milk and butter production. The cows are economical producers, and their vitality and constitution make them satisfactory on the average farm. Guernsey cattle are very persistent and will rapidly improve the milking capacity of native herds on which they are crossed. Glencoe's Loppop, the Guernsey cow shown, is one of the most famous cows of her breed. She was first in the aged cow class at Chicago in 1912 and has won many prizes in competition with the best in the land. She is owned by W. W. Marsh, Waterloo, Ia.

Along with cleaning up the barn we may well consider cleaning up the yards. Clean milk cannot be secured from cows running in a dirty yard, for if the yard is dirty the cows will do so. Frequently we find cows during a wet season almost to their knees in manure and filth. Such conditions are unhealthful for the cows and mean contamination of the milk. The manure had best be hauled to the field as fast as a load accumulates. The cows should have a dry, clean place to run during the day. It means better milk and more milk and more healthy cows.

Buy the Herd Boar Early.

One of the greatest advantages that the farmer can have in the early purchase of his herd boar lies in the fact that he has first choice from among the animals offered. No breeder has yet succeeded in producing a perfect lot of pigs. The most successful breeders are those who produce the largest number of good pigs, but all breeders produce inferior pigs and those which have only a mediocre quality. The farmer who waits until he is ready to use the boar before buying him is forced to take what is left of the breeding herd after all other sales have been made from it. He may possibly get a good animal, but the chances are against him, and the small cost of feed which the boar consumes during the months before he is actually used is more than offset by this opportunity for first choice and by the fact that the farmer can train the boar himself and fit him to his environment in his new home. There is profit to be had in buying the boars young for these reasons, as well as for the added and important reason that he does not cost so much when bought young as he does when grown to maturity.

Serum For Calf Scours.

In the past considerable loss has been sustained by Wisconsin cattle breeders from a fatal disease of calves known as white scours or calf dysentery. The veterinary science department of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin calls attention to a serum which has been found especially reliable as a preventive treatment for this disease. White scours occur in the newborn calf and is manifested by a very profuse, malodorous white diarrhea, which usually results in death within a few hours. On account of its infectious nature affected calves and their dams must be isolated to prevent the disease from spreading to other animals. Careful disinfection of the udder and contaminated surroundings must not be neglected.

SUGGESTIONS FOR GARDEN CONTESTS

Practical Soil Cultivation Should Be Mastered When Young

In response to a request for a donation for the School Children's Industrial Contests, Superintendent Alderman's office received the subjoined letter from one of the most successful farmers and stockmen of the state, a man who landed in this country with no capital except his knowledge of how to farm. The fact that he has made a financial success and is now the owner of more than one good farm, is splendid evidence of the value of early instruction in agriculture, such as he tells about getting when a small lad. It contains so much good, common sense and suggestions worthy the consideration of every parent that Mr. Alderman thought they should have the benefit of it.

The letter follows:

"In reference to children growing gardens, I have taken particular pains to note how parents act in my neighborhood toward teaching their children how to plant, cultivate and care for gardens. I find they are so busy with their spring farming that the garden or the home is neglected until seeding is over, and think I never see the children giving any assistance. In short, the parents never give their children any instruction nor encourage them to produce anything to exhibit. Being statistical crop correspondent I take special notice of this fact. How different when I was a boy back in Scotland, where gardening was considered very important on the farm. Men made a business of going from farm to farm to 'dive', dig or spade over, the farmers' garden. Father would have us boys viewing the man with the short handled spade, pushing in the manure ahead and turning each spadeful as level and even as a plow. Then we would be taken to a corner and by actual experience make a garden of our own. This old man that came year after year to our farm to make garden was instructed to show us boys how to mound up the seed beds, how to sow the seeds with two fingers and thumb in drifts, how to use the rake-in covering; in short, how to make garden from start to finish. Father trained us for farmers; how to sow seed with the two hands, how to mow, to hoe potatoes, to 'single' turnips, etc. He just devoted all his time to our farm education when we were not in school. This early training was worth a great deal to me when I came to this country. Then mother trained the girls in dairying and everything pertaining to woman's work on the farm. Father and mother looked at this matter as a duty toward their children, and we enjoyed the work. Now, unless parents give their children instruction and encouragement it will be up hill business for you. Many farmers do not know how to make a good garden. I know this to be a fact, as very few can furnish even new potatoes for the table at threshing time. I strive to have new potatoes by May 24th, when the average farmer is beginning to make garden. What is to be the remedy? The children have to get their instruction from some other source. In rural districts it could be possible to get these instructions along with their books. For example, take my school district, Enterprise. There is a new school house close to the county road. The children use the road for a play ground. There is an acre of fine land lying idle—yes, worse than idle—growing weeds, briars, etc. Why could it not be possible to stake off lots for all the children, letting the boys grow vegetables and the girls flowers. If the teacher is not capable to give instructions let the directors of the school district take turns on Saturday or other days, or if this is not convenient let them appoint someone to give instructions in garden work at stated times, and instead of plowing a larger garden I would start with a square rod or more and get the child to make it from start to finish, cultivation and all, and as they get interested in plant life, increase the space. I give these suggestions for your consideration along with a $20 Collier paper for the children, the same as I gave last year."

Yours truly,
C. D. Nairn.

OLD AGE

Old age as it comes in the orderly process of nature is a beautiful and majestic thing. It stands for experience, knowledge, wisdom, counsel. That is old age as it should be, but old age as it often is means poor digestion, torpid bowels, a sluggish liver and a general feeling of ill health, despondency and misery. This in almost every instance is wholly unnecessary. One of Chamberlain's Tablets taken immediately after supper will improve the digestion, tone up the liver and regulate the bowels. That feeling of despondency will give way to one of hope and good cheer. For sale by all dealers.

CRATER PARK TO GET NEW ROADS

The following concerning development work to effect the Crater Lake National Park comes in a dispatch from Portland under recent date:

With the object of making accessible the principal points of interest in the Crater Lake National Park by the summer of 1915, when the Panama exposition is under way at San Francisco, the United States engineers are planning to start the construction of roads and trails in that wonderland as soon as the weather conditions will permit. Captain H. H. Roberts, corps of Engineers, U. S. A., in temporary charge of the first river and harbor district, says that $47,000 is available for the project, and he hopes that this will be increased by $100,000 or more by next congress. Assistant United States Engineer Goodwin, who has been looking about the construction of The Dalles-Celilo boat canal will have charge of the road building in the park. He arrived from the Big Eddy recently to familiarize himself with plans.

Active field operations will be started about April 1st. It is the intention to utilize the Natron cutoff, built by the Southern Pacific from Klamath Falls to Kirk, a distance of about forty miles. From Kirk a temporary road will be built to the northern boundary of the park.

The engineers propose to do the work by hired labor instead of following the old method of awarding contractors. The project involves the construction of sixty miles of macadamized roads and 100 miles of trails, a task which will require four or five years.

By June 1st the engineer in charge expects to have a large number of teams, probably 100 head of horses, as a part of the outfit which will be employed in pushing the enterprise to completion. Experimental sections of roadways will be built on the start to determine just what sort of finishing material to use on the highways.

IMMIGRATION AID TO BE EXTENDED

In their annual report to Governor West the Oregon state immigration agent makes a number of recommendations for the extension of the work to induce a desirable class of settlers to come to Oregon.

First it is recommended that the office of state immigration agent, now held by C. C. Chapman, manager of the Commercial Club and secretary of Oregon Development League, be consolidated with the commission so that the agent may work under the actual direction of the commission in the expenditure of all funds.

It is recommended that the state legislature appropriate sufficient funds to make possible an annual edition of the Oregon Almanac equal in volume to the edition just published, which was 180,000 copies.

Continuation of the Oregon Statistical bureau, under the auspices of the Oregon Agricultural college with an annual appropriation of $3000, that the high standard of statistical bureau may be maintained.

Preparation of exhibits of land products at shows east of the Rocky mountains, and an appropriation of $10,000 a year for this work is recommended.

One of the most important recommendations, perhaps is preparation for foreign immigration work in advance of the opening of Panama canal. In this connection the report states that no class of citizens is more valuable to Oregon than is the industrious, thrifty foreign-born farmer who emigrates from unfavorable European conditions to carve out a home for his family in a new country. It would be the purpose and duty of the commission to restrict in so far as possible, undesirable immigration and encourage by every possible means the incoming of desirable immigrants, especially the agriculturists.

To attract the desirable class of immigrants it is suggested that an Oregon information bureau be established in a central location in Northern Europe from which information of all kinds could be disseminated. It is estimated that $15,000 a year would cover the expense of such a bureau.

Let the Examiner figure on your next Job Printing.
