KENTUCKY SALOON
POST & KING, Proprietors

A RULE FOR LIFE.

When you're working work;
When you're playing play;
Always try to have some
Of each every day.

If you make life all work
It's slavery.
If you make life all play
It's knavery.

If you mix the two judiciously
You will live deliciously.
If you're true blue clear through
Life will end auspiciously.

Then as life's sun is setting
Some friend will take your hand
And whisper in your dying ear,
"May my life be as grand!"

SO CALLED NEW BREEDS.

Rooster inventors in England and America seem to work overtime to turn out new brands of poultry.

They call them new breeds; we call them new brands, for they are really old breeds crossed plus more crosses and then some. They put them on the market and then pull off an advertising stunt that would throw P. T. Barnum and his circus posters in the shade. They are always "best in the world," "phenomenal layers," and for beauty and market qualities they have all the other breeds tied up tight in a double bowknot.

When the promoters have filled their pockets with cash and the suckers have their coops full of culls the boom "busts." We have seen many of these "new breeds" come and go and note recently where three of these boomers retired rich after an advertising campaign that for hot air beat the record. As an aftermath thousands of people have a lot of junk, and people fear to buy stock, and thus reliable dealers suffer.

Our readers should note that men who succeed stick to a breed. A western breeder has stuck to one breed over twenty years, has grown rich through his mastery of the variety, and his strain is famed around the world.

There are many Rocks and Duffes and Leghorns and Heels and Minorsas etc., but note how certain strains lead the procession. These have been bred up by men who have stuck to the breed, mastered it and made their own product pre-eminent for certain special ornamental and utilitarian qualities. Yes, the present breeds, most of them old standbys, present room for improvement and promise of more profit, and there is plenty of room for genius to exert itself on them without chasing after new brands, probably to be hamboozled in the end.

Our advice is, beware of boomers. Select a breed that has made good and make a specialty of it, master it, make a strain of your own and make it famous.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Read the following from a Chicago daily and again be convinced that the fools aren't all dead yet:

"The roosters in suburban Chicago are as great a nuisance as phonographs in the city itself. How should the city council prevent the crowing effectively, but mercifully? Two plans are being considered—one to isolate the roosters in boxes which prevent the birds extending their necks, and another to remove one of the bird's vocal cords. The latter plan is considered the most scientific. The removal, it is said, can be performed painlessly, and henceforth a soft and rather pleasing whistle replaces the rooster's morning crow."

Feeding egg stimulant to hens during molt is certainly irrational, cruel and an easy way to kill them or to get them into a condition never to lay again. After the hard laying season they have all they can do to grow new feathers. The molt should be a restful, quiet season in which they should have the best of care.

Some highball late sleepers of Philadelphia are trying to push through legislation to cut off rooster crowing in that city. What Philadelphia wants is not less cockadoodle, but less molly-coddling the poodle and boodling of boodle.

It is often wondered how some men accumulate so much and such varied knowledge. They have never farmed and yet know so much about farming. They have never studied law and yet have so much practical legal information, etc., and besides all this outside knowledge they are experts in their own particular line. This splendid equipment simply comes from close observation, listening and reading, thinking and applying what they learn.

There are at present 10,000 ostriches in the United States, and all but a few are descendants from a single pair imported from Africa to this country twenty-seven years ago. The exceptions are on a new plant near Bloomsburg, Pa., where ostriches recently brought from Africa are being bred successfully.

A goose owned by Hezekiah Senft, Pallingtown, Pa., recently celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday. It made its usual big egg record this year and at present has its twentieth gander affinity.

The experiment stations are supported by the taxpayers of the state, and these people expect their hard earned cash to be expended for the common good. Some of the poultry experiments at these stations show little of the practical, but the ridiculous and fruitless.

Li Hung Chang brought his supply of eggs along from China, and none of them were less than 250 years old. We are told these Chinese preserved eggs are first boiled in fresh oil and then covered with clay and thus keep to the judgment day.

U. S. TARIFF LAW BENEFITS IRELAND

From The Irish News

When the news reached Ireland that President Wilson had signed the Underwood tariff law manufacturers and traders of that country were ignorant of its details. They knew that the law was generally favorable to Irish industry, reducing important duties and abolishing others, but nobody knew exactly how this own business was affected.

It has been learned that in several important respects the law confers big advantages on Ireland. Indeed, with the exception of Canada, no country is likely to benefit more largely than this.

Thus the schedules which embrace flax and its manufactured articles have an important bearing on the great linen industries of Ulster. Hitherto Irish linen goods, owing to their splendid quality, have held their own in the United States despite a heavy burden of tariff. They should receive an immense impetus from the new law, which reduces the duty on nearly all articles woven from flax or hemp by percentages ranging from 35 to 5.

Large reductions are made in the case of woolen manufactures and these should be an immense boom for Irish woolen factories and carpet industries. Even under the old tariffs the carpet industries at Naas and in Donegal had a considerable trade with the United States. The famous poplin industry of Ireland is not so fortunate as the linen and woolen goods. Presumably it will come under the head of silk fabrics, the largest tariff reduction in which is not more than 10 per cent. Under the heading of sundries Ireland notes only one unfavorable item—a heavy duty on ice is made still heavier. On the other hand there are large reductions in the duties on toilet soaps, house furniture, biscuits (a reduction of 50 per cent.) butter, mineral waters. All these goods are extensively produced in Ireland and have, in some cases, a world wide reputation. They should benefit greatly by the improved terms on which they can now enter the vast markets of the United States.

It is in the free list, however, that Ireland will find its most splendid opportunity. Under the new law such articles as eggs, fish, bacon and hams, fresh fish, mutton and potatoes will be free of all duty. With the markets of Great Britain on one side and the still larger markets of the United States on the other, Ireland's future as one of the most prosperous agricultural countries in the world should be well assured.

Henceforth it looks as though the United States will take from Ireland all the bacon, fresh beef and potatoes the island can produce and for which she can find means of transit.

IMMIGRATION BILL HAS POSSIBILITY

From The Irish News

The immigration bill, imposing a literacy test, is being reconsidered by the United States House of Representatives, and Mr. Burnett, of Alabama, sponsor of the measure, says the bill will probably be passed by the House early.

This bill passed both House and Senate in the last Congress, but was vetoed by President Taft, who still left the United States open to the oppressed and any abis-bodied man, no matter how poor he may be. The House overrode the veto, but the Senate sustained Mr. Taft.

Hibernians Elect

From The Irish News

At a recent meeting of Division 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Portland, the following officers were elected to serve during the coming year: President, T. J. Murphy; vice-president, J. D. Walsh; recording secretary, Edmund J. Murnane; financial secretary, Frank J. Riordan; treasurer, Andy Weinberger; sergeant-at-arms, J. D. Doyle; inside sentinel, Dan Smith; standing committee, T. I. Maoney (chairman), James Foley, P. Murray, Tom Keane and F. Mallon.

COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN

Never give a child cough medicine that contains opium in any form. When opium is given other and more serious diseases may follow. Long experience has demonstrated that there is no better or safer medicine for coughs, colds and croup in children than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is equally valuable for adults. Try it. It contains no opium or other harmful drug. For sale by all dealers.

ALTAR SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

From The Irish News

A meeting of the Ladies' Altar Society, of the local Catholic Church, was held during the past month and the following officers were elected to serve during the year 1914: Mrs. Frank Hutchins, President; Mrs. William K. Barry, Vice-President; Mrs. Edith E. Lofftus, Secretary, and Miss Julia Gloster, Treasurer. The society has a large enrollment of members to start the new year with, and under the guidance of the newly-elected officers and Rev. Father Murphy there is every reason to believe that the present year will be a banner one for them.

EXCELLENT FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

"Chamberlain's Tablets are just fine for stomach trouble," writes Mrs. G. C. Dunn, Arnold, Pa. "I was bothered with this complaint for some time and frequently had bilious attacks. Chamberlain's Tablets afforded me great relief from the first, and since taking one bottle of them I feel like a different person." For sale by all dealers.

during the forepart of December.

Tim Sullivan returned recently after a 6-weeks stay in San Francisco. He visited the Hart & Lynch saloon when in Reno, and states that the firm is doing a fine business in their new location. Tim enjoyed his trip immensely.

Jack Hallinan, who for some years past has been engaged in the horse business here, left December 30 for San Francisco, enroute to his former home in New York state. He is undecided as to whether or not he will return in the spring.

From reports received from those sheepmen who have come in from the desert during the month past it has been ascertained that the condition of the stock, feed, etc., is better than it has been for several years. D. T. Jones, M. F. J. Barry and D. O'Callaghan have informed us that they have every reason to believe that the stock will be in excellent condition in the spring, barring any extra big storm, etc. This is sure encouraging and augurs well for Lake County's chief industry.

Don't Rob your Family for your Farm

Mr. Farmer, are you robbing your family of the things they ought to have, just to make more money out of your farm?

Will the boys jump at the first chance to leave home, or will they want to stay on the farm and make your old age pleasant?

Will the girls be glad when marriage takes them away from your roof, or will they be sorry?

Have you given your wife everything she needs to make a real home for you and your family?

These are things to think about before it is too late.

You are a busy man, of course, and your mind is full of plans for next season's work, and the money you expect to make.

But you cannot afford to entirely forget the needs of your family, for your own happiness, as well as theirs, depends upon your home life.

Beautiful Book Sent Free

We have a beautiful book explaining the Crown Combinola that will be sent to you free of charge if you write for it. And, by the way, we have a special proposition to make the first buyer in each neighborhood. It will interest you if you love music and love your family.

Crown Combinola Player Piano

Will make a new home of your home. It will bring into your sitting room all the beautiful music of the world—all the hymns you hear at church, all the old-time songs you knew when you were young, all the national songs of all the countries, all the popular tunes, all the masterpieces that Paderewski plays—and you or any member of your family can play them without practice.

What is it worth to you, to sit in an easy chair of an evening and listen to the youngest child play anything you wish, just as well as the man who wrote it?

What would you give to be able to sit down yourself and play a piano, though you may never have touched a key?

A Crown Combinola will bring more real pleasure into your home than anything else you could think of, for each one of the family can play it equally well.
