WOOLGROWERS TO HOLD MEETING

(From The Irish News) A meeting of the Lake County Woolgrowers Association will be held in this city on Wednesday, April 1. Officers will be elected and other important business matters attended to. It is expected that all members will be on hand for the meeting. The favorable winter we have had throughout Lake County means that this year's wool crop will be extra good. From local and outside sources we have been informed that there is at present a shortage of wool produced in this section, and that it will be much in demand. We would advise all sheep owners not to be too hasty about contracting to sell the 1914 clip, for reasons above mentioned. It is our belief that the prices to be secured should average from 14 to 16 cents per pound.

TARIFF NOT CAUSE OF FLUCTUATION

A great many sheepmen seem to labor under the impression that now that wool is on the free list there will be little fluctuation in its price, most of them having blamed the tariff for the frequent change in the value of wool during the last ten years. That such has not been the cause is clearly evident by an examination of wool values in London where there has been no tariff on wool since 1845. One of the most typical English wools is yearling Shropshire, corresponding with three-eights blood. This wool like all others shows a very pronounced fluctuation in price from year to year. The following are the prices on December first in the London market for washed Shropshire yearling wool. December, 1899—24 cents; 1900—18 cents; 1901—15 1/2 cents; 1902—17 cents; 1903—19 1/2 cents; 1904—26 cents; 1905—27 cents; 1906—30 cents; 1907—26 cents; 1908—24 cents; 1911—25 cents; 1912—29 cents. At the present moment this particular wool is quoted at 31 cents in the London market. These prices will seem high to our sheepmen, but they should remember that they are for wool washed on the sheep's back and which shrinks only from 18 to 25 per cent when scoured. However these figures well illustrate the wide fluctuation in prices that has taken place in the London market for many years, and as there is no wool tariff there, it seems that under free wool we have no reason to expect a fixed price for wool in this country. We do not mean to say of course that the tariff was not responsible for a part of the fluctuation that has prevailed here some years. In 1911 the buyer took advantage of the tariff agitation and bought our wool at about the free trade level, but had the grower held his clip, he could have forced prices up about five cents per pound. There has only been a few years like 1911, and as a general rule it may be put down that the wool tariff has not been responsible for the wide change in prices that have occurred up to 1913. Of course the reduction in price in 1913 is absolutely due to the removal of the tariff, but now that it is gone, prices may be no more stable than heretofore. The only difference will be that the buyer will have to find a new excuse for the changes.

Veteran Walker

Daniel O'Leary, the veteran walker now in his seventy-first year and who defeated Weston in 1877 in London for the championship of the world, is at present in San Diego Cal., giving exhibitions. He has issued a challenge to walk anyone in the world for 1,000 miles. Weston preferred. In a letter to The Irish World, he expresses the deepest regret for the death of Patrick Ford, whose death, he says, "caused millions of Americans and Irishmen to weep." Mr. O'Leary, whenever he visited this city, spent many pleasant moments with the late Mr. Ford.

Bandit Kills Passengers

POULTRY POSTMORTEMS IMPORTANT.

A postmortem is often a key that solves a poultry disease puzzle. The knife opens a fowl like a book, and one may read its contents. But this source of knowledge is abhorred to some and neglected by many poultry raisers, and thus a plague oft kills a flock, a hereditary disease is transmitted down the line and diseased fowls may be sold and eaten. Some diseases show few external symptoms. Internal tumors, for instance, seldom show an outside indication and may affect a whole flock if early victims are not opened. Turkey raisers especially seldom make postmortems. We have known whole flocks to be destroyed when opening the first car-cross would have given the clew and showed that a simple change of feed, quarantine or keeping the big birds from the grain fields would have saved the majority. Turkeys have few troubles, chief being indigestion, blackhead and tapeworm. With the exception of acute indigestion, whose cause may be generally found in contents of crop or digestive tract, ordinary indigestion and blackhead show about same external symptoms—loss of appetite, sleepiness, dragging feet, diarrhea and progressive emaciation. Internally, indigestion generally shows sour crop and mushy, oversized, light colored liver. In deadly contagious blackhead, liver is invariably soft and covered with bright yellow ulcers that perforate it and are full of pus and microbes. And the caeca, the forked branch at junction of large and small intestines, is swollen and full of yellow, cheesy deposit and microbes. Tapeworm is often diagnosed as something else until opening the intestine under water shows the hanging parasites. To really know poultry disease postmortems must be performed, and they are certainly easy. First keep tab of external symptoms and make this complete by adding the internal.

TURKEY READY FOR POSTMORTEM.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

California is called "the pigeon fancier's paradise." The breeding season begins in January and is longer than in the east, while the lofts are inexpensive and are open except where the location is exposed to drafts. When a newly hatched chick gets a chill it's at once a case of acute indigestion, for the absorbed yolk at once becomes an indigestible and kills. Our highbrows call this white diarrhea and declare Mother Hen deposits the microbes in the egg or on the shell. Such hot air theories afford amusement to the practical poultryman and help cushion pressing experts to kill time between pay days. The last census gives 80 per cent of American farms credit for producing 1,591,311,371 dozens of eggs. Eggs hidden in haymows and under hogpens are not included in the report and will later report for themselves. A postmortem on a White Leghorn revealed an immense egg, within this a layer of albumen and next an ordinary egg of perfect structure. The latter was set and hatched a normal chick. Mixing grit with mash and compelling hungry hens to eat it is apt to gorge the gizzard with an overdose and be detrimental. Follow nature's way, and keep it before them every day. The most popular and the heaviest eggs in Europe are produced in Denmark. They average thirty ounces per dozen and sell at a premium everywhere. As large and small eggs sell by the dozen in this country there isn't much inducement for egg farmers to produce large eggs. Eggs should be sold by weight, and this method only gives buyer and seller a square deal.

TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Madam if your husband is like most men he expects you to look after the health of yourself and children. Coughs and colds are the most common of the minor ailments and are most likely to lead to serious diseases. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when it has a cold. If you will inquire into the merits of the various remedies that are recommended for coughs and colds, you will find that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy stands high in the estimation of people who use it. It is prompt and effectual, pleasant and safe to take, which are qualities especially to be desired when a medicine is intended for children. For sale by all dealers.
