For the Children
Leopold of Belgium
Would Be an Air Man.

Prince Leopold, heir to the throne of Belgium, doesn't care very much about his prospects as a ruler; he would much rather be an aviator. The young prince, who is besides, Duke of Brabant, was thirteen last November and is a very robust and handsome lad. For some time he has taken the keenest interest in flying, but as yet his father, King Albert, has refused to gratify his heart's desire. Before he was set on being an aviator he was a poet. But his younger brother Charles, Count of Flanders, and his little sister, Princess Marie, made so much sport of his productions that he gave up writing verse. Perhaps in a few more years, if some new fad does not catch him, he may have an aeroplane of his own.

If the Shoe Fits.
For this game have each child remove his shoes and place them in a big box having a lid that can be partially removed. When all are in mix them thoroughly and then have the children each draw two shoes from the box. These he must put on whether they fit him or not, and thus should he be to follow the leader wherever he may go. Some will be wearing two rights, some two lefts, some shoes in which they can only get their toes and some shoes much too large for them. The leader may go up or downstairs, through a darkened cellar or over chairs and stools with his ever lessening band of followers, for many will fall by the way. When time is called the one nearest him wins the prize.

The Wearing of Hats.
Jews wear their hats in the synagogues. The Friends also sit covered during the offering of prayers, which are said aloud. Formerly it appears that the custom in the Church of England was for the men to sit covered during sermon time. In an old book it is asserted that when Richard Cox, bishop of Ely, died in 1581 and was buried in Ely cathedral the congregation, a very great one, sitting in the choir to hear the funeral sermon, all covered. Evelyn in 1664 mentions in his diary that he had caught a severe cold by flinging off his hat at dinner. The hat, therefore, was very much more popular in ancient times than it is now.

Trick With Numbers.
Tell your friends to think of a number, multiply by 6, divide by 3, add 40, divide by 2; then let him name the result and you can tell him the number he thought of. The method is: Multiplying by 6 and dividing by 3 gives twice the number. Add 40 and you have twice the number plus 40. Divide by 2 and you have once the number plus 20; hence, if you subtract 20 from the result he gives you, you will have the number he first thought of.

Saved by Boy Scouts.
A recent fire in the Stoddard Baptist home at Garfield Heights, near Washington, D. C., endangered the lives of the seventeen aged inmates. A party of boy scouts from Anacostia, on a march in the neighborhood, carried out those who were ill, crippled and infirm from age. All the inmates were negroes.

A Vacuum Abhorred.
What is that which a young girl looks for, but does not wish to find? A hole in her stocking.

The Frost Fairy.
I wonder who sits up all night,
All night in the cold and rain,
To make the little stars of ice
That stick to the window pane,
The stars of ice and tiny ferns,
Just like all the ferns that grow
Down by the summer wood, except
That these are made out of snow.

I've blown on them until they melt
Right down the long window pane,
Next morning when I come to look
They are shining there again!
Some fairy with her scissors comes
When I am asleep, I know,
And clips the little stars of ice
And the tiny ferns of snow.
I don't see how she cuts them out
So straight in the dark—do you?—
And never slips a single leaf
Or cuts any star in two.
