Are you going to set out that wind-break of Austrian pine and Norway spruce this spring? Flow the tract deep and make it mellow and remain to set the shelter belt far enough from the outbuildings so that traffic within the protected area will not be blocked with snowdrifts.

In the natural order of things it is the first fellow who takes his disks and plow lays to the blacksmith shop who can first begin his spring's work. And right now is a pretty good time to begin to be forehanded, for at best there is a great deal to do, and the time is all too short in which to do it.

For the first seven months of the current fiscal year, June 30, 1912, to June 30, 1913, the people of the United States have drunk 38,864,000 barrels of beer, an increase of 1,850,000 barrels over the consumption of the preceding year. It's no wonder that a good many people become poor, go crazy or go to the devil.

That was a rather hard slam on the domestic science department of the University of Chicago when 200 college girls attended a special "pure food" dinner given under the auspices of the department the other day and all but four were taken sick a few hours later with ptomaine poisoning. The trouble was traced to some canned beans.

A very careful farmer of the writer's acquaintance told us the other day that he had quit the sheep business because he became tired of the almost incessant noise, this being true especially after lambing time in the spring. He said the sheep started bleating before daylight and kept at it until past bedtime and that it kind o' got on his and his family's nerves.

Why Are Some Folks Human Grasshoppers?

By MOSS. THEY called him "Freight Car Freddy." He was slow, but somehow sure. He got there in his own peculiar time and route. Freddy was not a hobo, but a rising young man in a class all his own.

They also called him "Freddy, the Human Grasshopper." You never knew where to find him. Freddy was the antithesis of himself—if you can get that.

He was the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of motion. Now you see him, as slow and deliberate as a freight car, and now you don't, as fast and elusive as a grasshopper. It needed a magician to keep tabs on this very rest Freddy.

The land of newspaper readers has a few Freddees. One time they start on their trip through the paper and proceed slowly, stopping at every way station. The next time they jump here and there through it in a way to make the average grasshopper green with envy.

Be a freight car if you must, but don't be a grasshopper. Better be neither.

The sensible newspaper reader is MODERATE. He's not a plodder or a skipper, but a PICKER. Are you following CONSISTENTLY the ads. in this paper that appeal to you?
