W. H. Courtney, after concluding work on an irrigation project south west of Bend, has gone to Prineville to work for awhile. His family remains on the ranch near Cline Falls.

Pearl Neil is no longer connected with the local staff. He is undecided as to the future, but after an operation on his eyes will probably go either to Spokane, Wash. or Potlatch, Idaho, where he has brothers, but expecting to return to Crook county in the near future.

LOST. To tone shell plain harpin. New ones cost 25 cents each, but the lost one was a valued keepsake to owner. 50 cents reward will be paid for its return to James' store or to Mrs. Ives.

W. H. Brown and family have left their ranch north of Laidlaw to pass the summer on their 320 at Matoles. "Anck" will return to this city at short intervals to care for his stock and his mail.

Apprentices wanted to learn type setting. We can use three bright boys or girls able to read and punctuate plain English. Work all or part of the time, with prospect of a trade and steady work, here or elsewhere, later on. Apply immediately at the Chronicle office.

CARDINAL MICHAEL LOGUE.

Among the distinguished visitors at the Catholic centennial in New York city was Cardinal Logue of Ireland, who came to America expressly to attend the celebration. The cardinal is archbishop of Armagh and primate of all Ireland. He is a man of most engaging personality and a brilliant orator. On the occasion of his departure from Ireland he said he was going to America to carry greetings to the native sons of the Emerald Isle who were in exile in the new world.

ARCHBISHOP FARLEY OF NEW YORK.

In the great Catholic celebration which marked the centenary of the founding of the diocese of New York Archbishop Farley was the central figure. He entertained the visiting clergymen and reviewed the grand parade, which was the climax of the week. Mgr. Farley was born in County Armagh, Ireland, in 1842, and was ordained in Rome in 1870. He is the author of several books on religious and historical subjects.
