

Rev. Handsaker Shown Picking Out Twenty Orphans to Live

NEAR EAST RELIEF WORKER HAS UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE

How would you like to stand before a group of 200 children, all homeless, sick, hungry, ragged, some naked, and be told that out of that group 20 only could be given homes and that you must pick out the 20 and then leave the rest to almost certain death?

Such an experience was that of Rev. J. J. Handsaker, state director of Near East Relief, on a recent visit to the Near East.

"We were at the city of Erivan at the foot of Mount Ararat; 4000 children were packed into our orphanage. They were sleeping from two to five in a bed and in some cases the beds were single, and this great group came to the orphanage begging for admission. It was found that room could be made for 20 more only."

"You must pick them out," they said to me.

"As I faced that crowd of hungry children my eye first picked out a little naked girl, naked as the day she was born, except for the vermin and filth that covered her sadly wasted body. Her hair was falling out from fungus, her eyes were burning with trachoma. Her abdomen was bloated from gas caused by eating garbage, grass, chaff, or anything she could find."

"Can you do anything for a child like that," I said. "They assured me that in a few weeks she would be as well and rosy as the little ones with whom I had been playing that morning in the orphanage."

"Do you want her?" the asked. "That was the first time in my life that I was asked to decide the fate of a human being, but not the last. Of course I took her in for two little girls in Portland. A few weeks before that they had hung their arms about me and cried, "Daddy, get home just as quick as you can, and don't let anything happen to you in the Near East."

"Then I spent the whole of that afternoon taking some in to live and leaving others to their fate. What that fate is you can imagine when I quote a letter received from the same town three months later."

"The children are dying in all corners of the city," the letter said. "The orphanages are packed to the doors and to take any more would imperil the lives of those we already have. While I write this letter I can hear the sound of their wailing on the streets. They are out there waiting in the hope that we can and will take them in. When the sun shines awhile lot more teasing tomes that keep you mauling the dictionary to find out what they are all about. Brother Euclid was sure some permission on the tree of knowledge and his fame will last to the end of time. Just don't ever forget that he was a jigg.

ANTIQUE, YET MODERN

Furniture You Use Today Brought Down From the Dusty Ages

The modern customer steps into a department store, walks through the aisles, admires the newest and latest things, makes purchases and departs. The modern customer steps into a shoe store, sees an endless number of boxes on the shelves, glances at the case display, sits down, tries on a few pairs, gets shoes that will fit, pays for them and departs. The modern customer does this in the grocery store, the hardware store, the clothing store and music store. Little or no thought is given to where the goods came from or the history behind them.

BROTHER EUCLID OF EGYPT ANOTHER "HIGH BROWN" OF FAME

(Foot Notes to African History)

(Special to The Advocate.) If you have ever gone to high school, there is no doubt but that you have made the acquaintance of Bro. Euclid.

The chances are that you have cussed him many a time softly to yourself and wish that he had never been born nor thought of.

The fact is that Brother Euclid was the founder of that delightful branch of mathematics known as geometry.

While the principles of geometry were worked out thousands of years before baby Euclid opened his peepers on this great world of chicken and cheese, it was he who first brought all the odds and ends together and made it a science.

History doesn't know just when the stork delivered little Euclid or where, but it knows he flourished about 280 B. C., and that he was born somewhere in Africa. He became a famous juggler of numbers and angles and other sorts of things that give you headache and brain fog.

In his day the city of Alexandria was the most noted seat of learning and thither hied Euclid. Mr. Ptolemy Lagus, the kink of Egypt, asked Brother Euclid to explain him the whys and wherefores of his knowledge.

Euclid started teaching him and Ptolemy got so many headaches that he wanted to know if there wasn't some way a surgeon could operate on his cranium and cram the knowledge in.

"There is no smooth asphalt road to learning" replied Eucky, and his saying has been famous ever since.

Euclid gathered great gobs of fame and it wasn't long before he had so many pupils that the city police thought he was leading a mob around.

Besides his "Elements of Geometry" he wrote "Data," "An Introduction to Harmony," "Phenomena," "Optics," "Catoptrics," "The Division of Surfaces," "Porisms," and a whole

In a furniture or home furnishing store all this is changed. From the dusty ages have been brought down to us by generation after generation of designers and craftsmen the furniture styles of today. You may admire a bed-room suite, a dining-room suite or a living-room suite. It is just what you need for your home. Or a table or a chair. But—

Remember, that some of those same designs on the furniture you like best may have been brought from the Jacobean period, 1603 to 1688; the William and Mary period, 1688 to 1702; the Queen Anne and early Georgian period, 1702 to 1750; the Chippendale period, 1740 to 1780; the Brothers Adam, 1763 to 1795; or Hepplewhite, 1765 to 1795; or Sheraton, 1780 to 1806; or from the Empire period, 1793 to 1830; or from the American Empire period, 1795 to 1830; or possibly adapted from other American furniture in vogue during that period between 1640 to 1800, which includes the treasured Colonial.

Nowhere else is there so much history reproduced for you, for your daily use, than in a furniture store; else it is a book store, and books you cannot eat from, rest on, or use like you can furniture.

MAYOR SAYS BLACKS MUST GO

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 19.—Mayor Joseph Cauffiel of Johnstown announced last night that he had replied by telegraph and special delivery letter to Governor Pinchot's telegram requesting the reasons for the city executive's recent order that colored people who have resided here for less than seven years must leave. Mayor Cauffiel refused to say what he told the governor, but reiterated his order that Negroes must "pack up and go."

Asked if he would modify the stand the mayor declared: "No, I have nothing to apologize for. I will make no excuses to anyone. I did what I saw was my duty and I will continue to order every Negro who has not lived here seven years to get out and stay out."

Mayor Cauffiel was eliminated as a candidate for re-election, returns from yesterday's primary indicated. In a field of seven candidates, he was running fifth.
