HATRED AND PREJUDICE

The Jewish Chronicle, Kansas City, Mo., recently commented editorially on religious and racial hatred. Among other things it contained the following: "Hatred and prejudice cannot be legislated out of existence. Opinion cannot be knocked out of a man's head by force of a fist swat any more than they can be eliminated by force of law. Force never settled any real social problem. Religious and racial hatred is a social problem, and should be treated as such. It certainly has no place in politics."

We are in accord with the truth of the above conclusion, provided there is no violent disobedience of constituted law. It is possible for a man to entertain religious and racial hatred without attempting personal injury to the object of his hatred. It is an inalienable right for an individual to either love or hate certain things, including a race or religion, and as long as he expresses himself in a peaceful manner he is within his constitutional right as a citizen.

But hatred is a dangerous thing to handle; it usually does the one who entertains it more harm than the one he so intensely detests. When nourished it takes root, propagates, and its rapid growth not only impregnates the individual but becomes contagious and leads to mob violence as an outbreak of expression. It is at this stage that the law must be invoked. It requires force to subdue force, and, of course, as the Jewish editor states, the matter remains unsettled.

The solution of the problem is through education and a better understanding of objectionable groups by inter-racial contact. The law-abiding citizen willingly arbitrates differences, whether they are of a religious or racial nature, in an effort to reach a peaceful settlement and avoid violence. The man, however, who encourages hatred for his fellowman is to be pitied more than censured. He is the victim of an insane passion which will ultimately destroy him.

The fact is, life here is too insecure—too uncertain, too short—for mankind to hate anything that God has created. Love is the fulfilling of the law. Love everybody and everything. Love is constructive; hatred destructive. And yet one is as contagious as the other if cultivated. What a paradise this world would be if the monster of hatred was banished from it.

Booker T. Washington had the wisdom to understand the truth of love and hatred when he said that "No man can put me down so low as to make me hate him."

Any time Charlie Dawes thinks his heat can melt senate frigidity, he has another think coming. The old Senate is a heat proof iceberg.

Was Emilo T. Holley discouraged because of his failure to gain entrance to the U. S. Naval Academy, at Annapolis, three years ago? We'll say he wasn't. He has just been acclaimed the most brilliant student at Middleburg College, from which he will soon graduate, with commensurate honors.

"Germany has war plans." The very idea! And all the other nations so disarmed and innocent.

The leaders of churches, lodges and all other organizations which have to do with the uplift and betterment of our race and for the advancement of their respective memberships, should set an example by their public and private deportment that would command the respect and honor, not alone of the members, but from the people generally. For it is an undisputed fact, that organizations are judged largely by the worth of their leaders.

Two members of our racial group have received appointments to important positions by President Coolidge: Attorney Clifton R. Wharton of Boston, Secretary of Secretary of the U. S. Legation at Monrovia, Liberia Africa, and Jefferson S. Coage, Deputy U. S. Recorder of Deeds, at Washington, D. C.

Englishmen are not less lawless than Americans; they have "fewer fool laws" to break.

Portland colored citizens now have a band, an organization our group has needed for a long time. Now if all of us will boost and lend our aid morally and financially, it will not be long before the band will be a credit to the entire city. Help the men to get uniforms and make ready for the Rose Carnival parade.

Most of the virtue in the forgive-and-forget combination consists in a bad memory.

Colored citizens: "Rosaria" needs you. Show your civic pride, get in and help where you can to make it a success.

Apeing White Folks

Colored folks do not ape white folks all the time as has been charged, for some white folks ape colored folks sometimes. For instance in a certain southern city an old colored washer woman, seeing a sign on a laundry wagon reading, we wash for white people only. Shur that's nothing, I never done anything else.

There are some disagreeable persons we know who would rather find fault than something useful.

Dr. George E. Cannon, prominent Jersey City physician and one of the recognized national leaders of the Race, has passed into the Great Beyond. Dr. Cannon lived a very useful life, and with deepest respect for his fellow citizens of New Jersey, it will be difficult to find a man to take his place in that state.

An Ohio college president says a girl should be so dressed that people will not remember her for her clothes. That stage has been reached, already, professor.

Speeches at public dinners in Japan are made before the dinner commences. Now we know what is meant by the wise men of the East.

Writes Sees in Election of Race Man to National Scholastic Fraternity the Waning of Racial Antipithy.

Portland, Oregon, April 8, 1925.

Associate Editor of the Advocate,
City.

Dear Mrs. Cannady:

I am enclosing you herewith a newspaper clipping concerning the election to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholarship fraternity, Columbia University of the eminent Negro poet, Countee P. Cullen, which I feel will be of interest to you, indicating as it does the tendency on the part of the American people to overcome racial and religious prejudices and appraise the individual on the basis of head and heart values, rather than materialistic or class standards.

Assuring you of my interest in the earnest and consecrated work that you are doing in the interest of your cause, believe me to be

Yours very truly,
GEO. P. EISMAN.

THE CLIPPING

"Although the election at Columbia University of the eminent Negro poet, Countee P. Cullen, to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity, was by no means unexpected, yet the fact of its occurrence serves no less as a rebuke to those who would allow racial animosities to thwart justice. The increasing elimination of such prejudices which deny equality of opportunity in the various departments of everyday experience is a goal widely desired, and the field of education, in which its advantages will be uncompromised by privilege, and attainment in scholarship will be rewarded without discriminations, may well point the way to the fuller attainment of this ideal."

"Working Together" the New Education, Avers Noted Speaker

An evangelist is in Portland. No, it is not Billy Sunday, the religious gymnast, but a man who is doing a much wider, finer piece of work than the Rev. Billy is capable of doing. It is Ben Wilson of Berkeley, Cal., of world wide fame as a lecturer on labor problems.

He has just returned from England where he has toured the country in behalf of the British Labour Party. At noon on Wednesday he addressed the Social Workers Association and in the evening he spoke to organized labor and its friends in the labor temple.

He is in the Northwest in the interest of the Brotherhood Co-operative National Bank movement of which we read but little in the daily press. The Portland bank is in the Henry building and in the first 60 days of operation attracted 1800 depositors. These co-operative banks are, according to Mr. Wilson, indices of the watchword of this generation—co-operation, and it is only through co-operation in every activity of life today that civilization can be saved.

Mr. Wilson is an eloquent speaker and drives home his message with force and simplicity. An illustration of the practical working out of the co-operative movement in England where it has developed beyond any experiment attempted in the United States, was in the matter of bread. He told us that wheat is bought in North Dakota, shipped to the seaboard, across the Atlantic to the mills of the co-operatives in England and Scotland, ground into flour, baked into bread in the co-operative bakeries, and sold to the housewives at less than half the cost to the housewife in Portland, Ore.

"Working together" is the re-education, as Mr. Wilson calls it, which will solve the problems which are breaking the hearts of the world.

He contrasted the attitude of the British citizen towards public life with the indifference of the American. In the recent British elections, 86% of the vote was polled as against 49% in the United States.

Mr. Wilson speaks Sunday morning in the Congregational church and Sunday evening in Dr. Nugent's church, the Central Presbyterian, on the east side.

Will Tell How Golden Rule Works in Business

Last week The Advocate published an invitation from the Rev. J. J. Handsaker to Advocate readers to join the discussions of the Fellowship for a Better Social Order. The Fellowship meets regularly the last Saturday of each month at the Y. M. C. A. but two special meetings will be held next week on Wednesday and Thursday noon. On that day Mr. G. W. Weedon, of Los Angeles, will tell of the efforts of the A. Nash Company, of Cincinnati, to apply strictly the golden rule to conditions in their factories and to their relations with their customers and competitors. Many people believe in David Harum's golden rule, "Do to the other fellow what he is trying to do to you and do it first." Mr. Weedon's contention is that the golden rule of Jesus actually works. What a strange idea!

Easter Services at Mt. Olivet Baptist Church

The services last Sunday (Easter) will long be remembered. The day was ushered in by an early morning prayer and praise service. At exactly four thirty, quite a number was present paying homage and obedience to the Risen Lord and Savior.

Promptly at the scheduled time, nine thirty, Rev. Gardner, the Supt. of the Sunday School called the school to order, and scholars eager to be at their best, especially the small ones anxious to display their new Easter clothes, stood at perfect attention until the classes were assigned their teachers. After the regular classes had finished the lesson, the school assembled in one group and Rev. Wilson, of Chicago, in a most beautiful manner reviewed the lesson, which was enjoyed by all. The little hearts of the children were then made merry by giving out the Easter eggs.

The morning service was one of the greatest in the history of the church. Amid the decorations of palms and Easter lilies, ferns and other flowers and singing birds scattered about the building, the Organist, Mrs. Pearl Mitchell, thrilled the audience with the organ preludes, the music being echoes of Easter chimes. The choir rendered beautiful Easter songs that were only soothing to the large congregation into a receptive mood for that wonderful sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. Dyer. For thirty-five or forty minutes he kept his audience fairly spell-bound while he spoke of the Risen Christ, and what He meant to the believers of today. To add to his personality, for the first time since pastoring the church, he wore his beautiful black satin robe, which was symbolic of the occasion.

After the sermon and other announcements, came the most beautiful spectacle that has ever been witnessed in Mt. Olivet, which was the baptizing of the two converts who had joined the church during the revival meetings. The grandeur of this picture cannot be expressed only partially in words. As the two beautiful young women, Miss Dorthula Williams and Mrs. Richardson walked across the platform amid palms and Easter Lilies, dressed in their white baptismal gowns and the radiance of sunlight as it glowed through the different colors of stained windows, presented a rainbow of colors that will long be remembered by all who were present.

Rev. Dyer as he went down into the pool gave the expression as being filled with the Holy Spirit, for as he spoke there were hallelujahs and shouts of praises all over the church. Truly the Spirit of Christ was present and had taken charge of the entire meeting.

The evening service was a unusual one given entirely to the choir and the Sunday school children. Again the organist rendered most charming music in the opening preludes. After the choir had sung several selections, and scripture reading and invocation, the meeting was turned over to the children in charge of Mrs. Dollie Paries, and too much credit cannot be given her for the way she drilled so many youngsters who carried out the program without a single hitch. The large congregation was filled with joy and inspiration as the thirty-five or forty children ranging in ages from 3½ to 15 years, marched onto the large platform of the church which had been specially decorated and arranged for them, to the tune of a beautiful march played by Miss Barbara Hubbard, who was the accompanist throughout their program.

Recitations, solos, dialogues and choruses, all in keeping with Eastertide, were well rendered by every one taking part. Special mention perhaps should be given to one of the youngest and one of the older girls appearing on the program. Both of whom had to respond to an encore. Little Curtis Eugene Ivey, the three and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ivey, had to repeat his recitation on Easter Lily. Miss Dorthula Williams had to respond to an encore after she had played a difficult piano solo. Every one acquitted themselves with much credit which was a reflection on their director, Mrs. Paries, who spent so much time and patience in training them.

The choir closed the meeting with special numbers. The services at the church are indeed inspiring, and the success is due largely to the big-heartedness and broadmindedness of the pastor, Rev. E. C. Dyer, who is truly serving the community regardless of denomination.

Safeguarding the Customer

Our buyers in New York are specialists. Obviously, they are qualified to separate the wheat from the chaff when selecting goods for our Stores.

They know merchandise intimately. In no lines handled by us do they take someone else's word. They are constantly in touch with the reliable mills and sources of production. Quick action by them, if necessary, assures our patrons the best of everything.

DOINGS OF THE ELKS

Independent Order of Elks Observe Memorial Day

Sunday, April 12, at Bethel A. M. E. church, Rose City Lodge No. 111, and Dahlia Temple No. 202, I. B. P. O. E. of W., jointly observed memorial day, honoring the memory of the departed brothers and sisters since their last memorial service a year ago. The membership assembled at Stag Auditorium, 381½ E. Morrison St., Sunday at 1 p. m., and marched to the church, led by the "Brown Strutters" band. The program at the church was an excellent one, and much praise is due those who participated. Special mention should be made of the eulogy delivered by Prof. J. W. Botts; it was indeed a classic and long to be remembered by those who enjoy something above the ordinary and commonplace.

The Brown Strutters Band has the sincere thanks of the Elks and Daughter Elks for the splendid music it furnished for the memorial services last Sunday. The entire Order extends thanks to Miss Gwendlen Hooker for the beautiful flowers which she presented to the order Memorial Day.

HOTEL NOTES

Mrs. Minnie Clingsmith, the soon-to-be a dashing widow, who returned to Portland several weeks ago, and did the extra checker stunt at The Portland for a short while, has succeeded in cinching the job for keeps.

Mesdames Nolan and Wilson, checkers at The Portland for sometime, have been given the gate.

Frank Waldon, who can beat the world singing the blues, has, so he tells it, landed the hat rack and janitor job at Henry Thiel's big eating place on 10th and Stark Sts. Some good job, and we hope Frank will hold it, but the boys say he will not.

Johnny Moyer, captain at The Portland, has returned from a short vacation and as a result Captain Willis who has held the fort in the main dining room for a short time, was put out in the cold.

Thomas Finnigan, the handsome looking assistant manager at The Portland, has gone to Los Angeles as a witness in a Federal Court case.

The Day Brothers of Idaho and California, owners of The Portland, were in Portland several days this week on business.

FIRST A. M. E. ZION CHURCH

Easter services at the church were unique. The Primary department of the Sunday School rendered its program at 11 a. m. under the guidance of Mrs. M. M. Bglard, chairman. The pastor delivered a sermonette in his own reasonable and convincing way. Sunday evening special Easter music was sung by the full choir under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Gray. Lee C. Anderson sang a solo accompanied on the piano by his son, Donald Anderson. The songfest was enjoyed by all present. The church was nicely decorated with flowers and candles. An Easter basket of beautiful flowers was presented to Mrs. Katherine Gray by Mrs. E. D. Cannady. Next Sunday is Mock-Conference day and the "Presiding Elders and "Pastors" are asked to do their best. Rev. Johnston, the pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. and Rev. U. C. Smothers of Woodlawn M. E. church will speak Sunday evening.

Be Kind to Animals Week

The American Humane Education Society is asking that the week April 13 to April 20 be set aside as "Be Kind to Animals" week. Had we been asked to set aside a time to be kind to animals, we would certainly have made the period at least 52 weeks.

But maybe we'll get the habit during the one week which will last us for all time. Sure, be kind to dumb animals for we are animals ourselves and many of us there are who are both animal and dumb.

Mrs. Waters Entertained

Mrs. R. T. Waters of St. Paul, Minn., was the inspiration for an attractive four-course luncheon Saturday, April 11, at 2 P. M. as the guest of Mrs. Etta Sims, at her lovely home, 824 E. Pine Street. Covers were placed for six. Mrs. Sims is a delightful hostess and it goes without saying that the affair was an enjoyable one.
