ROLAND HAYES DECORATED BY QUEEN OF SPAIN DIES IN JAIL WITHOUT MEDICAL ATTENTION

Mrs. Gertrude Boulder, a prominent club woman of Lexington, Ky., took violently ill with indigestion in the streets of that city a few days ago. Police seized the woman and threw her in a jail cell on a charge of drunkenness. She was left alone and unattended all night and in the morning found dead in her cell. A rain of protests against the police department have been entered by colored citizens of that city and the matter has also been taken up by the N. A. A. C. P., all of whom are incensed over the neglect on the part of the police department. Mrs. L. B. Fouse, representing the City Federation of 40 clubs and the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs has sent a petition to Mayor Yancey asking for an investigation of the neglect of the police and referring to the incident as "tragic and disgraceful." The white press of the city has editorially endorsed the position taken by the colored women.

HOTEL NOTES

J. D. Fort, who lost his beloved wife a few days ago, has the sympathy of the Portland employees. As a mark of respect to her memory, a beautiful and expensive floral piece was given by the employees.

Henry Gibson left last Saturday for Hayden Lake, Idaho, where he and Dan Moore will run the Barnetta Tavern for the summer.

Waiters at The Portland donned their white jackets last Monday, the same to be their permanent uniform.

Joe Crane, of whom mention was made in last week's issue as being wanted here, has been located in Oakland, Cal., where he has applied for a Pullman porter job.

"False alarm!" says Earl Morrison, bellhop at The Portland, about him getting married last week.

Arthur Jones, brother of John Jones, waiter at The Portland, accompanied by his wife, is here from Kansas on a visit to his mother who is reported ill.

Introducing Mr. Jack Cuie, by correcting our mistake of last week, when we said W. H. Cuie was an extra private waiter at The Portland. It's "Jack," not W. H.

W. Johnson, who was considerably bruised, supposedly by an auto, two weeks ago, is back on his job at The Portland.

Honorable Harry L. Day, president of The Portland Hotel Company, arrived in the city Wednesday morning from his mines in Idaho.

The bell boys at The Portland strolled forth last Wednesday morning bedecked in light gray uniforms, decorated with black braid and brass buttons. And, to tell the truth, the uniforms make the very ugliest of the lot look handsome.

F. H. Harrington, manager of The Portland for the past four years, who has been a long, uncomplaining sufferer of diabetes, with the hope of checking the ravage of the disease, had his left leg amputated at the Good Samaritan hospital last Tuesday.

If you believe that a Philippino won't fight, just ask the boys at The Portland.

LOCAL and FOREIGN NEWS BRIEFS

Attorney Eugene J. Minor and Mrs. C. Mack were quietly married Thursday, April 30th at Bethel Church parsonage. Rev. X. C. Runyon performed the ceremony. The happy and popular couple who are at present domiciled at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stanley are being congratulated by their friends. Mrs. Mack is a charming young matron and has won many friends since coming to Portland.

Rev. Mr. Marvin, of Seattle, recently returned from Europe, speaking before the Oregon Social Workers at their regular noon lunch last Wednesday said that war should be outlawed just as dueling, slavery or any other crime. In closing his remarks the noted speaker said he was just old fashioned enough to believe the only real way to international peace was through the acceptance of the teachings of Jesus Christ and taking the Christ spirit into our every day dealings with our fellowman.

Mrs. J. A. Mercer and children are residing in Yakima, Wash., having moved from 680 Water street, Portland.

CHICKEN DINNER

Brown Strollers Band will give a chicken dinner Thursday, May 21st, at Zion M. E. church, for the purpose of purchasing supplies for the above band. All musicians desirous of becoming members of the Brown Strollers Band call Bert Turner, Main 2054, or Wyatt Williams, Walnut 3920, or E. D. Cannady, Garfield 7523 or Broadway 5807.

The McCormick Steamship Co. held the formal opening of the new McCormick Terminal on the west side between Broadway and Steel bridges, Saturday, May 2nd between 2 and 5 p. m.

Mrs. Belvin Williams of Seattle, who has many friends in this city is said to have died suddenly last week.

Mrs. J. M. Beatty writes from Hollywood enclosing a year's subscription to The Advocate. Mrs. Beatty says she cannot do without the paper. She anticipates visiting Portland in the early summer.

A Card of Thanks

I wish to take this method of expressing my deep appreciation for the beautiful manner in which our friends responded to my dear wife during her long illness, and death; for the many kindly expressions and loving deeds, and for the exquisite floral pieces presented. I wish specially to thank Mrs. B. Martin, Mrs. Henrietta Marshall, Mrs. Wm. Holmes, Mrs. Hattie Redmond, Miss B. Crawford, The Loretz family, (next door neighbors), Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Grayson and the employees of the dining room, kitchen and other departments of The Hotel Portland, and all others who were so thoughtful of us. In loving gratitude JEFF D. FORT

W. H. Rutherford, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rutherford of this city is reported to have married recently in Philadelphia.

Sam F. Gill reports having visited Charles Reddick in the hospital for insane at Salem, recently. Mr. Gill says Reddick is improving and hopes to be released in the near future. Mr. Gill is a resident of the hotel where Reddick was employed prior to his mental illness.

Get Acquainted Club Notes (By Genevieve Mullen)

The club held its regular meeting with the president, Mrs. C. E. Ivey, Tuesday, May 5th. Arrangements were completed for the Mothers' day program to be held at Mt. Olivet church at 8 p. m., Sunday (tomorrow), May 10th.

All Portland mothers and friends are requested to attend a big banquet given by the club at the church, 8 p. m., Tuesday, May 12th. This promises to be the grandest social meeting ever held in the history of the church. Everything free.

Miss Ruth Anderson become a member of the club.

Eat chicken Thursday, May 21st, at Zion A. M. E. church, and help the band boys get their uniforms for the Rose Carnival parade.

The associate editor of The Advocate was the guest at dinner Wednesday evening of Misses Muriel Smith and Penny in the Elmira apartments. At the close of the dinner the ladies enjoyed a vivid story of Mrs. Penny's five years' work among the natives in China. She presented Mrs. Cannady a very attractive souvenir of China.

For rent, two 2-room apartments. Main 6322—Adv.

Miss Jennie Dora Grayson is spending the week-end with her parents. Miss Grayson is attending O. A. C.

A Card of Thanks

I wish sincerely to thank the friends who were so kind to my beloved sister, Mrs. Dorothy Holder, during her illness and death, and for the beautiful floral offerings.

Mrs. Jane Rawlins

Joe Mundell's Death Brings Inquiries. Letters and telegrams requesting information concerning the death and burial of Joe Mundell, who died in Portland on the 22nd and was buried on the 24th, have been received at The Advocate office from three brothers who live in different parts of the country. Frank lives in Los Angeles, with his three sisters and mother; Fred in Oakland, and George in St. Paul. The news of their brother's death was obtained through reading The Advocate which has a number of subscribers in those respective cities.

Mrs. John Mott and children were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Washington Sunday afternoon at their lovely home, 123 N. 14th St. A delicious dinner was enjoyed and altogether a lovely time was had.

Charles Bessela 149 Knott St., was drowned in Columbia slough a few miles north of Fairview last Sunday while trying to save his dog with which he and a companion had been playing subsequent to an hours swim in the slough. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday from J. P. Finley and Son by Rev. E. C. Dyer. The deceased was 30 years old and leaves a wife, two children and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

Rev. J. W. Anderson, Supt. of the N. W. Coast Baptist Association returned from Longview, Washington where he preached Sunday night and also last Wednesday night. He will go East about the first of June in interest of the National Baptist Convention and the Association.

Eat dinner with the Brown Strollers Band Thursday, May 21st, at Zion A. M. E. church.

Mesdames E. D. Cannady and Clara Bell had as their guests Mesdames D. Gulliford and M. Ashford at the Werrenrath recital Thursday evening April 30th, Municipal Auditorium. At the close of the recital, the party enjoyed refreshments at Richardson's Confectionery.

DOINGS OF THE ELKS

The time is drawing near for Rose City Lodge of Elks to hold its election for annual and semi-annual officers. From present indications and past performance, the selection promises to be a "hot" one, most especially for the office of E. R. for which we are told already four members are avowed candidates besides others who are contemplating throwing their hats in the ring.

G. Scott, a local Bill, while working in the Foundry had the misfortune to have one of his hands severely mashed.

M. Davis a member of Salt Lake Lodge of Elks, accompanied by his wife, arrived in the city last week. They plan to make Portland their home.

Edgar Williams a member of Rose City Lodge who has been a victim of rheumatism for several months, has so far recovered as to be able to return to his job as janitor at the police station.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brown and Mrs. Jessie Edwards have moved from Lents to 679 Union Ave., North.

Holliday & Holliday, barbers, who have been in the business for a number of years and who were recently located in the Pioneer Pool Parlors, have moved to 125 North Sixth street, just three doors north of Glisan. They have a very fine place which when completed will be the best on the coast owned and operated by members of the colored group. The interior is finished in white enamel with fixtures and equipment to match; at present there are three chairs and everything comfortably and artistically arranged. They invite the public to patronize them.

Williams Ave. Y. W. C. A.

The Bible Class invites the public to hear Rev. Lloyd Carrick, prominent minister and Associate Chairman for International Convention, on Monday evening, May 11th at the Williams avenue Y. W. C. A.

The Grade Reserves enjoyed a picnic at City Park on last Saturday.

The High School Reserves will attend the Federation Banquet on Saturday, May 9th, at the Main Association in a body. This group will furnish a stunt for the evening.

The Y. W. C. A. banquet will be at the Stag Club, Friday evening, May 29th. This banquet will be open to the public.

The Blue Triangle Club will present the Musical Comedy "Over the River, Charley," on Thursday, May 14th, at the Holy Rosary School Hall, East Third and Weilder street. The public is invited.

The Mothers' Club will meet on Tuesday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A.

24 Colored People in Town All Join N.A.A.C.P. Branch.

New York, N. Y., April 29.—There is one 100 per cent branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in the United States. It is located in the town of Alamosa, Colorado, where there are 24 colored citizens, every one of whom has joined the local N.A.A.C.P. branch.

Not content with enlisting every colored citizen of the town, the branch is now going after American whites and Mexicans. The secretary of the only 100 per cent branch of the N. A. A. C. P. in the United States is Emma Qualls.

The Advocate columns are open for your news. There is no charge for regular news items.

"Arrow Tips" (By Kits Reid)

"It is far harder to admit that you're beaten, and turn away from your failure to try something else than to hug your pride and refuse to give it up. It takes sense as well as courage to know when you're licked and go on from there."

The above is quoted from a novel, "Hazard," written by Nancy Barr Mavity. It is full of just such trite expressions. It is a story that every young woman should read and think about. The story of a girl with a mind, clean and clear as a flame. She just touches the edge of the great adventure but saves herself and cries "it's no go—it would not be myself."

And this makes me think of the recent controversy about dancing and how the evangelists are blaming the poor women for sending the souls of men to the devil. Queer, how they will insist upon forgetting that these same men are the sons of women and that the women are daughters of men!

To dance or not to dance. That is the question. Whether it is better to put our youth and their emotions into straightjackets and thus condemn them to the inevitable explosion and thus ruin them, or perchance to take our job of parenthood seriously and intelligently and teach our children the gospel of self-control and the beauty of wholesome recreation and to learn that when we farm out the job of father and mother to commercialized interests we compromise with the Devil.

I am wondering just what the Von Hindenberg election means? It must have cost someone a lot of money. France wants her debts paid. Now if we can find out just who is interested in the payment of France's debts we may strike "the silent factor" in the recent German election. Germans, as a people, do not like change—routine and order are religion to the average German. He is sick and tired of the experimenting that has been going on by his government. He does not want experimentation but wants it confined to the laboratory and objects to being the object under the microscope. I am not at all surprised over that phase of the election.

But Germans are also tired of war and Von Hindenberg stands for militarism of the hardest kind. War and Debts! Just who would be interested enough in that diabolical union to be willing to spend a lot of money to place in power over a nation enslaved by Debt, the high priest of War?

All of which reminds me that war has been declared at our house—on all cats! Molly Robin hatched out three of the ugliest baby birds—all head and gaping mouths. The other night we heard a commotion outside and the rose vine thrashed around as if a violent gust of wind had disturbed it. We rushed outside but could find nothing unusual. The next morning in the path I found one of the little robins cold and dead. It must have been a cat which had been scared away before he had time to carry off the little fellow. We now have the vine screened and traps set for cats.

Voices Needed for "Rosaria"

Many colored persons will have a chance to appear in "Rosaria," the great pageant telling the story of the rose, which will be performed on Multnomah field every night, June 15 to 20. A great stage 200 feet wide will be built there for the pageant and 5000 persons will appear in it. Colored folks are needed to appear in Persian, Egyptian and Grecian scenes and in the final scene.

The most beautiful woman in Portland is wanted to be queen of the festival. In the final scene of the pageant representative groups of all nations will pay homage to her.

Anyone who wants to have a part should go between 8:30 and 5:30 any day soon to room 604, Oregon building, Fifth and Oak streets.

Mr. Cady Says Music Is Purely an Educational Subject

That music is purely an educational subject, worthy of a place along side of other great subjects, such as mathematics and language, and that it does not educate, but is an opportunity for education is the conviction Calvin B. Cady, Assistant Director and head of the Normal and Advanced Piano-forte Departments of the Cornish School of Seattle, Washington, and Educational Director of the Music-Education Association School of Portland. Mr. Cady's forty years experience in educational work stamp him an authority in this field. In working of necessity to educate himself, he learned to know himself and to develop self. Mastering the craft of instrument tuning in Chicago, when a young man, he worked his way through Oberlin College, his Alma Mater, which institution was also his parents' Alma Mater. Later he spent several years studying music in Germany. Upon his return to this country he taught piano and harmony in Oberlin College, and while he had the sympathy and co-operation of the official staff of that institution, the institution did not have the students with which to do university music work and he sought a field where he thought he would be able to carry out his program. He accepted the chair of Music in the University of Michigan, where during his eight years teaching only two students actually did the work required. Mr. Cady resigned from this position because of the lack of prepared students to do the university music course. The story of his efforts to have universities treat art on the same basis as they treat science, covers a long period and discloses the pitiful lack of understanding the purpose of music and the place it should hold in education. Because of his great insight into the problems of education his services were in great demand. Besides those mentioned above, Mr. Cady's educational activities include ten years as instructor in Teachers' College at Columbia University, New York; conducting summer normal courses for a great many years in a large number of cities in different parts of the country. A most remarkable thing, which indicates the versatility of the educator, happened during one of his Summer Normals, to which people had come from all parts of the country: there was not a musician among the number. It was his dream that there would sometime be a school, which would also be an example for others, where children could learn all the subjects according to the principles of education which he advocates, hence the Normals which he conducted.

In 1915, Mr. Cady became a resident of Portland and the major portion of his time has been divided between the Cornish School and the School of the Music-Education Association in Portland, in which work he is now engaged, and which represents one of his chief interests. Mr. Cady says: "The credit system is the most morally debauching element in our institutions of learning, beginning with the Kindergarten." Graduating, diplomas, gold stars and honors of whatever nature or degree where students strive for them by the credit route, have no place in his idea of education. He believes in bringing the child and the subject together and awaiting the reaction. He is not afraid to leave the child and the book alone together, he believes every child has within himself the power and the technique of evolution, the progress of human consciousness and truth, and sooner or later, through perception and conception will utilize the subject as an opportunity for development. Originally, music was a required subject in education and Mr. Cady believes it to be as essential, if not more so today as it was in ancient times. And lastly, he does not love music for itself alone but for the opportunity it affords for the progress of humanity towards perfection. One of the greatest sources of knowledge comes through contacting individuals far advanced towards the per-

Word has just been received here that Roland Hayes, the distinguished tenor, has been decorated by the Queen of Spain who was charmed with his singing. Mr. Hayes sailed from New York on April 7th for Madrid, Spain, where he sang a concert prior to taking a much needed vacation. His present plan is to spend two months in Spain, resting and becoming better acquainted with her people, their language and customs. Mr. Hayes is tentatively booked for another Portland concert next March.

Make Mothers Happy by Helping Them to Help Themselves.

On Mother's Day, May 10, America will again honor motherhood. Flowers, cards, candy and remembrances of all sorts will be sent to let Mother know that we have not forgotten.

A number of Oregon mothers, directed by Mrs. C. B. Simmons of Portland, are endeavoring to secure wide observance of the day by the sale of Mother-made handkerchiefs. These exquisite hand-made handkerchiefs are sold to give employment to the thousands of mothers in the Near East who are desperately striving to keep their children about them and to prevent their becoming paupers. Made of pure linen, edged with the daintiest hemstitching and needle lace. They sell for $1.00, through the Near East Relief, 613 Stock Exchange, Portland, and the money received from them goes immediately to the Near East to provide work for a self-sacrificing mother.

The second enterprise of the Near East Relief next month is the annual Bazaar Day, May 20, when clothing will be collected from the city for the sufferers in the Bible lands.

"In Greece there are nearly one-half million refugees still destitute," states J. J. Handsaker, Northwest Regional Director. "More than a million of the refugees have climbed back to self-support in the last three years, and the old clothes sent from America last year was a literal god-send to more than one-half million people. The protection given by these cast-off garments was often the difference between life and death from exposure."

Any sort of garments for men, women or children, just so they have six months' wear left, are greatly desired. The public schools will co-operate in the gathering of the bundles.

Our effort to understand the meaning and function of life has been greatly helped by the acquaintanceship and contact of Mr. Calvin B. Cady.

The N. A. A. C. P. will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday evening next, at Zion church, 417 Williams avenue. Important business. Public invited.

For rent 6-room house, garage. J. C. Logan, East 3623—Adv.
