MRS. OSTRICH TO MARKET

MRS. OSTRICH was troubled. Something was wrong with the children. Her fourteen beautiful like Ivory globes, had hatched into fourteen lively young birds. They had eaten gravel for several days after they came out of the shell, which all ostrich mothers know is the best thing for their young stomachs; but after that they didn't seem to thrive. Father Ostrich had brought them the tenderest leaves and twigs, and even some of those wonderful watermelons which grow on the edge of the desert, but nothing agreed with them. "What's to be done, my dear?" roared Father Ostrich in his loud, important voice. "Well, I don't know, Father," said Mother Ostrich, "but it does seem to me as if I could find something which would be good for the children. I don't believe you looked far and wide. I shall go a long distance away today. I am a faster runner than a horse, so it will be easy.

"Now, Father, Don't Be Cross," Said Mrs. Ostrich.

"I don't know how far you'll go," said Father Ostrich a bit peevishly, for he didn't like Mrs. Ostrich's criticism. "But I'm sure you'll go wide if you go around in circles as usual. And mind, don't get frightened and hide your head in the sand!"

"Now, Father, don't be cross," said Mrs. Ostrich. "You have the same bad habits that I have, you know. Good-by, I'll be back before dark," and she trotted away over the desert, her legs moving so fast that her toes seemed scarcely to touch the ground.

"I'll have to go toward those trees and growing things over there," thought she. "There's nothing here on the desert fit for my babies to eat." And she ran so fast that all at once she found herself in the thick, deep jungle. "Now, I wonder," she said aloud, looking up, "if that breadfruit would be to the children's taste."

"It looks good to me," said a small, merry voice which seemed to come from right under Mrs. Ostrich's very toes. "But of course I don't know for whom you are marketing."

"Dear me," snapped Mrs. Ostrich in surprise and alarm, "dear me, who's interfering now?"

"It's only Cheerups, Madam, and I thought perhaps I could help you pick out your fruit for breakfast, as you were a little uncertain," said the voice.

"Well, well, this is luck," cried Mrs. Ostrich, looking down at Cheerups from her eight feet of height, and winking and blinking her great eyes with their long lashes. "To think that I should run right into you, Mr. Cheerups. Why, all the Desert and Jungle Folks are talking about you and your wise words and your wonderful ways. Here I am in a terrible tangle, and you appear right in front of me to unravel it. Miraculous, I say, simply miraculous!"

"First, please tell me who you are," smiled Cheerups, "and what is your trouble. I surely don't deserve the fame you speak of, but I shall be very glad to help you if I can."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Cheerups; you are so kind. You see, I am Mrs. Ostrich and I have at home fourteen as handsome little Ostrich babies as you could see any day in a twenty-mile run."

"But I couldn't run twenty miles," cried Cheerups.

"Oh, excuse me," replied Mrs. Ostrich. "I forgot that you hadn't the long-distance apparatus," and she looked proudly at her tall, strong legs.

"Well, my babies had their gravel meals for two or three days, as was right and proper, and then they didn't seem to like the leaves and vegetables which Father Ostrich brought them. We just can't find anything they will eat. And if they don't eat, they will die. Oh, Mr. Cheerups, I'm almost distracted!"

"Don't be anxious, Mrs. Ostrich. I beg of you," said Cheerups in a tone full of kindness. "I have a plan. Just lay a few extra eggs outside the nest and feed the wee birdlings on them until they are old enough to eat other things. And when you hatch the next brood, you might lay the extra eggs first, so the babies' breakfast will be all ready and waiting for them when they come."

"That's a splendid idea," cried Mother Ostrich. "Thank you a thousand times, Mr. Cheerups; I'll do just as you say," and off she ran at top speed toward home. Ever since, Mrs. Ostrich has followed Cheerups' advice with success.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

THE PINK THINGUMMY

"OH, DEAR, Aesop!" complained Mrs. Dumkopf. "I ordered a blue thingummy and they went and sent me up a pink one, and thingummies aren't supposed to be exchangeable and I suppose I'll have a terrible time getting a blue one for it."

"You won't if you go about it as a man would—as I would, for instance," said Mr. Dumkopf vigorously. "I would simply walk up to the proper official, briefly explain, and demand a blue thingummy in exchange."

"Oh, Aesop, will you exchange it for me?" crowed Mrs. Dumkopf admiringly, and the next day Mr. Dumkopf found himself briefly stating the case to the proper official and demanding a blue one.

"H'm," said the proper official, with a glance that made Dumkopf feel like a pickpocket contemplating arson—"thingummies not exchangeable. H'm. When was it bought? Who bought it? Is this the one that was bought? Why not pink?"

"Why—er—I did, I mean, she did. I don't know. Because."

"Why wasn't it brought back before? Have you a middle name? What was the sales person's number? Where you born in this country?"

"Er—who, me? No. Yes. What?" floundered Dumkopf.

"Why blue? Did you ever exchange a thingummy before? If so, what color? Was this spot on it? Was that? Were those? How much more do you have you had? Why not more?"

"Blydood!" gasped Dumkopf, and, tying the pink thingummy in an intricate knot around the official's neck, he bought a blue thingummy at the thingummy department.

A LINE O' CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs

A SUGGESTION

IF YOU would fill the passing day with cheer Spread far and wide the good news that you hear. Upon your neighbor's virtues smiling dwell, And if some bit of gossip you must tell, Let it be of some kindness he has done, Or of some honor high that he has won; And ere the day shall pass into the night You'll find the flying minutes all delight. And when the sunset slows out in the west And you shall come into the vales of rest, Faith, Hope and Cheer will be your comrades on The highways leading to the golden dawn. WHO SAID

"Man is to man either god or a wolf."

RESIDERUS ERASMUS, the author of the above quotation, was born at Rotterdam, Holland, in the year 1467. His real name was Gerard, but this he changed—a practice which was greatly in vogue in his day. Erasmus had been left an orphan at an early age, and the efforts of his guardians were largely responsible for his entering a monastery and swearing he would become a priest. This determination he later relinquished, and by special dispensation from the pope at Rome was relieved from his monastic vows.

In the year 1492—the year that Columbus first set foot on the shores of the new world—Erasmus left his home in Holland and, with the permission of the bishop of Chambery, who was in charge of the monastery where the lad was living, traveled to Paris. There he studied theology and literature and there he formed acquaintance with many wealthy Englishmen whose instructor he became. One of these—Lord Mountjoy—was so impressed with the monk, and became so great an admirer of him, that he settled on him a life-long pension.

In 1497 Erasmus accompanied Lord Mountjoy to England, where he was graciously received by the king and considerable attention from the men of letters of that country. Soon after Erasmus returned to the continent and secured the dispensation from the pope relieving him of his monastic vows.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

VIOLA

THE practically unique occurrence of an old Latin word as a modern feminine name, without change of spelling or significance is evidenced in Viola. It is one of the few names which has not undergone a lengthy process of evolution from some root in a dead language. It has not even submitted to revival but has passed down through the centuries as the Latin word for "violet" and will remain a feminine proper name signifying violet to the end of time.

There are many instances of the use of Violet in England and Scotland. There is the equivalent Yvonne in France and also Violetta. But in Italy, where the Viola arose, there is no record of its having been used as a proper name.

The common opinion of etymologists seems to be that it was a fanciful name imported from Italy by Shakespeare and bestowed upon one of his heroines in "Twelfth Night." But however it may be, the Viola who loved Orsino endeared the name in English hearts and it has continued with great popularity ever since the time of Shakespeare.

The amethyst is the talismanic gem assigned to Viola. It promises her success in love and freedom from vexation. Friday is her lucky day and 3 her lucky number.

WRIGLEYS AFTER EVERY MEAL

Probably one reason for the popularity of WRIGLEY'S is that it lasts so long and returns such great dividends for so small an outlay. It keeps teeth clean, breath sweet, appetite keen, digestion good. Fresh and full-flavored always in its wax-wrapped package.

Get Your Buffalo Now.

Washington, D. C.—Any person who can catch a buffalo bull from the herd in Yellowstone park may have him—if he pays the cost. This includes, beside express charges to his new home, an expense of about $50 for crating and transporting from the buffalo range to Gardiner, Mont., the shipping point. The government sold $6 of its surplus stock last year and this year has about 100 more to spare.

World's Oldest Umbrella.

The oldest umbrella in the world still in the same condition as when it was bought, including the cover, is in the possession of a resident of Hobart in Tasmania. The umbrella was bought in 1770 by a man named William Clevelet in the county of Dorset, England, who emigrated to Tasmania. It has been handed down from generation to generation and still belongs to a descendant of the first owner.

California's Boast.

Sixty per cent of the flower-seed crop of the entire world is raised in California; more than a hundred tons of nasturtium seed alone are grown every year. If all the sweetpea seeds raised there were distributed to every man, woman and child in the country, each one would have a fifteen-foot row in the garden, and there would still be several hundred tons for export purpose.

"Chinook Wind"

This is a name given to a strong, warm wind and dry south or west wind descending the eastern slopes of the Rocky mountains into Montana and Wyoming, evaporating or melting the snow and bringing great relief in cold weather. The name was probably given it because it blew from the territory occupied by the Chinook Indians.

Observant Johnny.

"Now, boys," said the school-teacher, "the word novelette means 'a short tale.' You may now write a sentence containing the word." A few minutes later he picked up Johnny Brown's effort, and read aloud: "Yesterday I saw a foxterrier running down our street with a tin can tied to his novel-ette."

Exalted Courage.

True courage is cool and calm. The bravest of men have the least of a brutal, bullying insolence; and in the very time of danger are found the most serene and free. Rage, we know, can make a coward forget himself and fight. But what is done in fury or anger can never be placed to the account of courage.

Hail Only in Summer.

Scientists declare that no true hail-storm was ever recorded in any season but summer. The strange fact is that the hotter the day the bigger the hailstones will be and that semi-tropical countries may have the largest of all during the few storms there.
