OUR GRADUATES

This month, thousands of our young people have graduated from a large assortment of high schools, colleges and universities of the country. These young people are filled to the brim with vigor and ambition and believe that they are equipped and qualified to take their places in the higher affairs of life.

Among the graduates are men and women of every race and from the four corners of the earth. There is one group in this array of nations or races, we may well say, who despite the fact that they leave the institution in a number of cases, the peer of their classmates, find themselves and their people unprepared to give them employment befitting their qualifications.

REPEAL BLACK LAWS

The one constitutional amendment submitted to the voters at the special election Tuesday that ought to pass, is the one repealing Section 6, Article II of the Constitution denying the right of suffrage to Negroes, Chinese and mulattoes, regardless of their citizenship.

Colored people can protest and Resolute as much as they please against segregation, jimcrowism and other age-old injustices of the strong against the weak, but the quickest way to better conditions and gain equal consideration is for colored people to improve their economic condition.

Robert Jackson for 30 years a waiter at The Portland, who has been ill for a long time is fast on the road to recovery.

Eugene Carr, captain of bell hops at The Portland, if rumors are true, is to hitch up with an automobile and perhaps a "jane" if one who is domesticated can be found.

Charles Robinson, waiter at The Portland twenty or more years ago, was a visitor to Portland last week from his home in Yakima, Wash. and called at The Portland to say hello to the old timers, friends and former co-workers.

T. E. Allen, waiter at The Portland, is red hot in the collar at George Hardin, Deputy sheriff, for not trusting him with the booze that he captured on the federation boat excursion several days ago.

George Kenny, pioneer waiter at The Portland, after taking the rest cure in California for several weeks, with Mrs. Kenny, is back on the job.

TWO BURNED ALIVE ON LINDBERGH DAY

The victims of the Mississippi mob, the second and third respectively to be publicly murdered by unpunished mobs in that State, this year, were Negroes deprived of any semblance of due process of law. It is safe to say that in no spot on earth except the Southern States of America, in particular the State of Mississippi, would such a degenerate and bestial violation of all decent human instincts as the burning alive of two human beings accused of murder, be tolerated.

The occurrence of this mob crime on the very day that New York and the nation were acclaiming Charles A. Lindbergh adds weight to the demand for a federal law to extend the power of the nation to the backward, ignorant and brutal communities in which neither human life nor the constitution nor the good name of the United States is respected.

In the name not only of the colored citizens of the United States, but of all the citizens with any pretense to respect for the honor of their native land, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People urges you to demand of Congress at its next session the prompt enactment of a federal anti-lynching law.

LIVINGSTONE COLLEGE IS PRAISED

(Continued from page one) chance. The school has leaders in every field of endeavor who have contributed and are contributing to the education of our leaders and the people generally in all parts of the country.

Both speakers paid a beautiful tribute to Rev. John F. Moreland and his lovely wife, both of whom are graduates from Livingstone and whom they knew as children in their city.

In the audience were former students of the Johnson C. Smith University; Messrs. O. S. Thomas and Larry Foster.

At the close of the meeting, a group accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. McCrorey took refreshments at Baldwin's Restaurant, 346 Williams Ave. Dr. and Mrs. McCrorey left the next morning for Seattle, Washington for a brief sojourn.

We fear that the removal of the Grand Lodge of Elks from New York to Cleveland is a big mistake, and trouble will be sure to follow as a result.

MT. OLIVET CHURCH by Edgar Williams

Sunday, June 19, was General History Day. Services were in charge of the Get Acquainted Club. Scripture lesson was read from Gal. 16 by Rev. Dyer; Invocation by Louis Jones.

Mt. Olivet was favored by having Rev. Moffitt formerly of Vernonia, Oregon to preach both morning and evening. Text: Gal. 6:14, "What do you think feel without the cross of Christ?" Rev. Moffitt made his discourse very plain and simple and he was in earnest about what he said.

"Service is the evidence of love. The things you love best you serve most. Love is blind and has no fear. How true these statements by Rev. Moffitt. We don't stand by and allow the things that are dear to us be destroyed with a protest and fight. We must carry the good on that those who would follow us on his field of activity will pick up where we left off.

The Sunday School is going along fine. The little folks just keep the banner. The B. Y. P. U. is having some very good subjects. You would do yourself a favor by attending the meetings.

The Junior Missionary Circle and the Junior Brotherhood had a picnic at Sellwood Park Wednesday, chaperoned by Mrs. S. D. Porter and Rev. Dyer. A very pleasant time was had.

The June Festival and Feast in the wilderness given by the Senior and Junior Missionary Circles this past Thursday and Friday was a success. Those in charge wish to thank the members and friends for their loyal support.

The chorus has finished a busy season. Since last Thanksgiving, the chorus has been working continuously and I am sure the people of our group can see some fruits of their labor.

Next Sunday is Rally Day. The Trustees are hoping to make it a big success. Come out members, and do your duty. Service in charge of the Trustee Board.

A. M. E. ZION CHURCH

Sunday was a large and full day. One chucked full of big events. The morning service was largely attended and the pastor spoke from the subject: "Common place people".

From the text "Isaac, servant digged a well." He very beautifully glorified the commonplace and stated that Isaac represented the overwhelming large majority of people today. He was not an Empire Builder like his father, nor a pathetic character like his son Jacob; but was a man of common place affairs.

Sunday evening a large audience greeted Dr. and Mrs. H. L. McCrorey of Charlotte, N. C. and listened attentively to their very beautiful and instructive messages.

Mrs. McCrorey urged that the women of our community strive to make a distinct contribution to the age in which we live. Dr. McCrorey gave a talk on the conditions of the group in other places, and told of the great progress of Johnson C. Smith University, the school of which he is president.

Next Sunday, Children's Day will be observed; the pastor will speak at both services. You are cordially invited to worship with us; and enjoy our good music.

WATCH FOR RALLY DAY! MORE ABOUT "ARROW TIPS"

(Continued from page one) Indeed, after all the special taxes, regular taxes, interest on city bonds, interest on school bonds, interest on bridge bonds assessments for street and sewer, increases in the salaries of our five little tin gods whom we call city commissioners, unless some one comes forward with an old age pension for most of us, the county will need to enlarge the poor house.

That Charter is a peach and John Logan is going to defend to Monday night at the Library—Citizenship training camp, let's go.

One of the worst things I've seen in the charter is the section providing that if we are feebleminded enough to vote for the charter amendment, we will be giving the commission the power to issue franchises called "indeterminate" - Now-an indeterminate franchise is positively the very latest development in the line of franchises. It is a beautiful thing—perfectly equipped to take away the last vestige of the rights of the people in their own public utilities—exquisitely flavored with whereas and parties of the first part, but with no kind of protective coloring or flavor for the poor party of the second part—the deluded public. There is a flimsy clause which says that the franchise may be taken away from the first part if it does not behave itself—but my dear children, we had a clear example of how hard it is to make any private utility company live up to its franchise when the Housewives' Council tried to convince the Public Service Commission that the phrase "5 cent fare" meant 5 cents and not 8 cents. It never was convicted. The spectacles of the Public Service Strive Commission are of peculiarly constructed glass which modifies figures and in this case turned a 5 into an 8.

Just read section 315, friend voter, and make up your mind that you won't be caught in that trap. Just think of expecting voters to vote such an extreme power as that to those five men at the City Hall. By the way, whatever became of the franchise the Telephone Company asked for this spring? I believe that I smell a rat—do you?

SHILOH CHURCH

They plan great times hiking, playing tennis, baseball and doing athletic stunts of various kinds. They will meet every Tuesday in connection with the Freewill Workers Club after July 4th at the different parks. WOMAN'S REALM

By ELEANORE RILEY

WOMEN ARE TERRORS TO TERRORS SAYS ONE Daily Fashion Hint

Tito Schipa, famous operatic artist, declares that women are the terrors of a tenor's life in an article full of revealing incidents in the current issue of Collier's Weekly. There are women, he says, genuinely interested in art and artists who make valuable criticism of their work. "I have found that the sane, interested woman can pick flaws in a characterization with uncanny precision, but this is a normal manifestation of interest quite different from the irrational excitement of the women who mob their operatic favorites.

"There was the countess, the current toast of Vienna while her husband was the current joke. She had written me on her impressive stationery asking to meet me. Unschoolled as I was, such recognition from the nobility seemed a great honor. Of course I accepted gladly her invitation to tea. She looked so frail and so pathetic behind the tea urn. If I had known the stories current about the lady at the moment I would have wagered my head they were untrue. She was a most affecting person, even though her recital of her marital woes was embellished with such intimate detail that it made me uncomfortable.

"I am so unhappy, mon ami," she sighed. "I am married to a count—yes, he has wealth as well as name. But does he kiss my wrists tenderly? Does he look upon me as if, pouf, with a breath of air I would blow away? No, I am married to him, and it is enough. I belong to him. And I have no solace. I could die for a man who was unreasonable, impetuous, remorseful! Tell me, dear Tito, when do you sing that passionate monk again?"

"The countess remembered her position for a few years. But when she became older and beyond the years of discretion. I understand she did find a young gentleman who was unreasonable and impetuous. She is who lived to be remorseful."

He details mysterious meetings with masked ladies, some in cemeteries and some in courtyards, and even with a royal lady who wrote him—"If you knew what my high estate was you would know that I have taken leave of my senses in writing you, with the affairs of government so uncertain now. Thrones topple easily and the people fence our motions, while they may love where their fancy cash."

MODS OF ARRESTING CHIC

The season's plaids are developed in composite effect, giving them a new air of smartness. To the left is pictured a frock in light and dark tan, with the inset of plain brown silk, collar and cuffs harmonizing with the inset. The skirt is plaited, and the wearer's monochrom adds to the chic of the blouse. Medium size requires 2 1/2 yards 39-inch plaid and 1 yard plain material.

A soft voile would be very pretty made up after the second model, which features smocking on skirt and blouse. The V-shaped neck is trimmed with a turn-down collar, while the long sleeves are gathered into narrow wrist-bands. The blouse drops slightly over a narrow belt of ribbon to correspond with the color of the dress material. Medium size requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch material. First Model: Printed Review Print pattern No. 3841. Sizes 14 to 18 years and 34 to 44 bust, 45 cents. Monogram No. 568. Any three-letter monogram, 60 cents. Second Model: Printed Review Print No. 3863. Sizes 14 to 18 years and 34 to 42 bust, 50 cents, including smocking pattern.

Signor Schipa declares he has gone through the storms of admiring women unscathed because several years ago he met and married his ideal woman - Madam Schipa.

"Who is who in Colored America" is a book of an encyclopedic nature recently gotten out, and edited by J. J. Boris contains biographical sketches principally prepared by themselves of some outstanding Negroes and others of lesser place. The book has some value and while it would be a desirable one in one's library, the price is almost prohibitive.
