MORE ABOUT TRIP

OF MRS. ASBERRY

driven to Mr. Rhine's apartments, where we were entertained.
"What about the Honolulu convention?" I further inquired.
"Oh, yes; the reason I did not attend the Pan-Pacific Woman's Congress in Honolulu, was that the two convention dates overlapped. I would have had to fly across the continent in an airplane to make connections with the steamer to the islands."
"But where have you been all this time, looking so rested and brown as a berry?" I eagerly asked.
Mrs. Asberry said: "After leaving the Capitol, I went immediately to St. Louis. I put up at Poro College because all my friends were yet at Washington. Miss Malone was not at home, but her secretary was very cordial to me. The next morning, after my arrival, I addressed the group of workers who assembled each morning for devotionals in the big auditorium. After breakfast, I was shown all through the building. At 10:00 o'clock, the madam's Piece-Arrow was brought to the door and we spent several hours seeing St. Louis. In passing through Forest Park, in which is erected a building to the memory of Jefferson, we saw the beautiful trophy collection of Col. Lindbergh. Passing thru the Colored section, we saw many beautiful homes of the progressive element. A number of business enterprises were shown me. Many magnificent school buildings were pointed out too, but always there was the unasked question, 'Why the segregation in this enlightened 20th century?'

"Passing on my journey through Kansas City and up to Leavenworth, my old home-town, I spent two days in visiting old friends and noting the changes since I visited this section four years ago.
"I had not been to Nicodemus, the Colored colony, for some years, so I rambled into that little burg three hours late, due to high water. I went all along the route that the Kansans were to have bumper crops in wheat and corn, notwithstanding the recent rains and swollen rivers—which had done some damage.
"I had a wonderfully good time visiting the Deprads, and shaking hands with old friends.
"I was taken to Hill City, the county seat of Graham. There I visited the offices and homes of the Sears Brothers, Will and John. They are married now. I learned that the Sears boys are two of the best attorneys in that section and have the run of practice. 'Be sure and look up our sister in Portland!' said they, as I departed. 'You know Rosy-Rosy Nichols?'
"The next morning found me in Denver, Colo. How I did enjoy the cool, delightful mountain breezes of Colorado, after a sweltering siege in the East! As usual, I found Denver in a social whirl, each society leader vying with each other for honors. I have three brothers living there, so I had difficulty in dividing my time equally between them. Other relatives were visited at Manzanola and La Junta. At La Junta, I changed cars for the Grand Canyon of Arizona.
"Among the Colorado delegates to the N. A. A. C. P. conference was Mrs. Santford Craig—Lulu—kinswoman—probably you met her. She was greatly inspired and while a guest at her home in Manzanola, she laid her plans for organizing a branch there.
"Of all the marvelous, natural, or should I say unnatural, sights I have seen, the Grand Canyon stands out far and away above them all. I could spend the rest of the day in describing this wonderful spot. Imagine if you please, walking across a great prairie, and suddenly coming to the brink of a great gash in the earth a mile deep and from 10 to 15 miles across! There at the bottom of the pit is the silver Colorado, winding its way in and out about these huge gibraltars, pyramids, monuments, sinking ships and various other forms hewn out by this mighty river at some unknown time. And the rainbow stratum of the earth forms not a little part of their gorgeous beauty.

"The rest of my time—about four weeks—was spent in California visiting relatives and friends. In San Diego I visited my sister, Mrs. P. L. Johnson. Here I met many of the club women and N. A. A. C. P. folk who had attended the conference at Los Angeles. From every lip I heard the praises of this essential organization, as I had never heard before. Everyone seems to have received fresh inspiration and resolved to turn over a new leaf. Of course, you know, that after reaching San Diego, everyone goes over across to Tijuana, Mexico. This place is now called the 'Monte Carlo of the New World.'
"Arriving at Los Angeles, I was met at the station by Dr. J. E. Porter, and we were driven to his cosy home near Central Ave., and the Somerville Hotel. Mrs. Porter has been a shut-in for several years, but despite her handicap, she has composed and written a book of gems of thought on varied subjects dedicated to other shut-ins. She read for an hour or more of these compositions and I, like hosts of her other friends, and admirers, advised her to publish them. I attended the Lincoln Theatre and heard the La Fayette Players—a dramatic stock company. I was surprised at the histrionic ability of these players. I noted in the audience a group of white people and I instantly asked why they buy the seats in lots or blocks, replied my companion—Mrs. Alma Flynn, the charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Porter. I noticed, however, that a few other white people were distributed about.
"In Oakland, I was the house-guest of my brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Craig, 845 36th St. Of course I took in the 'city,' as everyone calls San Francisco, and enjoyed once more visiting Golden Gate Park and its shrines.
"Oh, yes, 'Bee' here is a letter from the Chamber of Commerce of Tacoma, which was practically a passport to any part of the globe. It was of incalculable service to me. I visited every Chamber of all the cities mentioned. In Buffalo, together with my friends, Mrs. H. B. Roger and her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Lewis, we were luncheon guests of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce. I carried views of Tacoma and Mt. Tacoma, which I exhibited to executives of the various chambers, and to other groups. I gave several lecture-talks along the way. I have gathered enough data to keep me busy for the next two years arranging lectures.

RECEIVED MANY WOUNDS
Serg. White received several bullet wounds—one during a skirmish in the S-A war, which grazed the top of his head where a bad scar marks the point of contact.
Serg. White re-enlisted in the U. S. A. in 1917 for World War service but was later, within a few weeks of enlistment, discharged from active service.
Col. A. S. Burt, of the 25th U. S. Infantry, in writing of Serg. White as a trumpeter, said: "I have never seen his equal in that position in the army."
Serg. White resides at 4536 42nd Ave. S. E., when in Portland—and he also has a home in Vancouver, Wash.

information.
A few days later, Serg. White appeared again at my office, laden with documents and medals pertaining to his war record, in keeping with a promise he made me before taking his leave during his previous visit. These records were of intense interest to me, and on one point did they all agree and that was that Serg. White's character was good; another point of agreement, he was honorably discharged from service, and there was nothing of record to prevent his re-enlistment.
Serg. White was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and at an early age, he joined the U. S. Army and served in the Indian wars and the Spanish-American war. He was trumpeter with the 24th and 25th Infantry, and also served with the 10th Cavalry. He also earned the rank of sharpshooter and wears a medal attesting his accuracy as such.
