The U. S. Marshal's Office

The opposers to the naming of Jack Day for the office of United States Marshal for Oregon make the silly charge that Day is just a politician. Maybe he is. If so, he is a mighty good one, and several of Oregon's representatives in the U. S. Congress can testify to that fact, for it was his wise counsel and splendid generalship that helped to elect them, and should they fail to back him up for the appointment, they would be showing base ingratitude.

Our one objection to the re-appointment of Col. Hotchkiss is that he promised to give a Colored veteran a place in his cabinet. This he has failed to do during his two terms as Marshal.

Jack Day's character—honesty and fitness for the office—has never been questioned, and he should be appointed.

Hard to Get Along With

The world has many people that are hard to get along with. Those who expect more out of others than they should, when we can reason it out that our neighbor should do more than his part and we do less than our's, calculations have all gone amiss. Shirking our part of any obligation, then expecting things to work out right, is an unreasonable viewpoint.

If we can figure it out that every one must treat us right, we should at least have sense enough to know that it's right for us to treat every one else right.

Back-biting and opposing other people has always been a dangerous method for any race to adopt, and we regret that among our people in this city, there are entirely too many possessed of this spirit.

Giving everyone a "square deal" should not be a hard task, and, in fact, we should like it, if our hearts are right. Only seeing the bad in an individual and overlooking the good is an injustice; while we are expecting everyone to be a real good fellow, don't overlook yourself and try to be like what you expect in others.

There is much expected of everyone of us, regardless of some of our meanness and if we are to make a decent showing we will have to do our part and quit being so hard to get along with.

Making It Clear As Mud

Mother: "Darling, you didn't get in until 7 o'clock this morning; I guess I am a little old-fashioned, but you're only 17, and I do like to know where you are."

Daughter: "Sure, mother dear; I had dinner with a nice young man whose name I don't remember, and when he reached the blotto stage, I went with another guy to half a dozen places. I don't know where they are, because we went in a taxi and then we went to a funny little joint in a basement and had breakfast. It's all right, isn't it mother?"

Mother: "Of course, darling; it is only that I like to know where you are when you're out."

If you want to be sure that your work is well done, select a busy man. As a rule, the busy man does more than he is paid to do.

If all the men who have been mentioned run for Governor of the State of Oregon, next May, there certainly will be a mess of them. But it is some satisfaction to the voters to know that only two can be nominated and only one can be elected Governor.

The members of the great Methodist denomination of Chicago are shocked at the news of the indictment of their Bishop Archibald J. Carey on the charge of having accepted money for civil service jobs.

If Mr. Carey wants to hold on to his civil service commission job he should resign the post of Bishop, and thereby save the church from embarrassment and humiliation

Fashions for the Smart Woman

FOR THE STREET

Paris shops in woolen frocks that are smartly tailored, but bear concessions to femininity in the form of lingerie touches, lengthened hemlines and discreet flares. These trim frocks invariably adopt the higher waistline, and so that there may be no question about it, mark it with a snug, narrow belt of self-fabric or of leather. The model shown here adds further to its fashion-rightness by being double-breasted, carrying out the effect even to the yoke at the front of the skirt. The skirt is circular. Vestee and collar are of white piped. Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 3008. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.

Trimings Add Color

Clever new gloves in fabrics and fine leathers; Gay flowers are clustered or single; Exclusive handkerchiefs as dainty as a bit of cotton. Colorful scarfs add chic warmth to your costume. All these lovely things are priced surprisingly low here.
