

Native African Exhibits Original Paintings

The Negro painter, Kalifala Sidibe, from the Kilimanjaro district of Africa, is attracting much attention in Paris through an exhibit of his native paintings. He shows unique skill in some of his work.

When working at home he squats before his hut and prepares his work bit by bit without any general design.

On the top left—Here he is seen in front of his native hut with his vigorous family.

Above—Warrior Virgins painted by Kalifala Sidibe, who is now enjoying great success in Berlin, Germany, where his paintings are favorably criticised.

Chock-full of melody is this harmonica player who blew his way into and out of trouble.

New York.—Clarence Holland, clad in pink overalls, blowing a few tunes on the harmonica which got him into trouble and which got him out of it also. Holland symphonied in the subway and drew a crowd for which he was arrested on a charge of blocking traffic. When arraigned in court he played for Judge Dreyer and drew a suspended sentence.

WINSOME PERSONALITY

ETHEL SHEPHERD, of "Show Boat," New York City—She has long since contributed her beauty, personality and charm to Harlem night clubs. She continues her radiance and simplicity most uniquely in this recent pose.