MORE ABOUT "ARROW TIPS"

(Continued from Page 1) very interesting reading. I found some very pertinent paragraphs—pertinent to the methods used by local workers. Methods that appear to be on the way towards "mechanization"—if there is such a word. Methods first and the human side of the problem second. Just as our public schools have developed a marvelous system through which the pupils are forced, regardless of individuality—just as our "method" of treating crime and criminals is one of treating the crime and not the criminal, just so it seems that social work has developed a method of treating those who must appeal to the organizations for help.

Let us quote from some of the addresses made at this conference. Marian Van Waters said: "Methodology is no substitute for knowledge of life and character. For this reason social work must be on its guard against petty science. At present social work stands more in need of philosophy than science." And in another speech quoted from a man named Nauste: social welfare agencies "have some psychiatric in a world which has gone industrial."

Of course not being a social worker only a poor dub of a columnist as Mrs. Cannady calls me, I don't know what it's all about. But believe it or not, I think it is time that we realized that you cannot treat human ills and needs by a machine-made program. Their needs are real, vital and personal—not cut according to any pattern that can be adjusted because some group of theorists devised the program of adjustment, and have cut their pattern to fit their financial and theoretical equipment. Soul and heart as well as head and a "Knowledge of Life and Character" are fundamental needs of a social worker.

For instance some knowledge of the Coolidge "Life and Character" turns my appreciation of the Coolidge articles in the Oregonian into ridicule and an emphasis again on their soothing syrup quality. He says the general level of ability and character of office holders is remarkably high. Yes, I agree with him—not. The Teapot Dome disaster is still rather fresh in mind when Coolidge as president had to be forced to the prosecution. Witness the character of office holders in the states of Illinois, Indiana, New York and Pennsylvania. And coming down to local application are we going to return the local district attorney in November? And is the quality of our city administration "remarkably high?"

NORTH CAROLINA DEMONSTRATES JUSTICE: AMITY

The case of McLeod, who two years ago was convicted of assault and murder and sentenced to die, has been retried by the Superior Court and twice reviewed by the State Supreme Court, which upheld the second conviction. Still doubtful of McLeod's guilt, however, Lieutenant L. A. Oxley, of the State Board of Public Welfare, investigated the case and recommended clemency.

Perplexed about the matter, Governor Gardner visited "Death Row" in person and for more than an hour talked with McLeod, who was ignorant of his identity. Deciding that there was too much doubt of guilt to let the prisoner die, the Governor commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. Investigation of the case will be continued, it is announced, in the hope of reaching certainty as to McLeod's guilt or innocence.

The presentation of the loving cup came as the culmination of an educational campaign in which more than a thousand essays were written by high school students on the need of learning to "Live at Home" by more efficient productive methods. Two identical silver cups, very large and handsome, were presented by the Governor to the two first prize winners, a white boy and a colored girl. The presentation took place in the House of Representatives, which was crowded with an interracial audience, and the exercises were broadcast by radio. The "News and Observer" carried on the front page a picture of the winners, holding their cups and standing on either side of the Governor. Forty additional prizes were presented by white and colored speakers.

NARROWLY ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams narrowly averted what might have been a serious accident Wednesday night when leaving the home of Mr. DeJournette. The taxicab driver backed the taxi in which they were riding over an embankment near the house but was able to hold the brakes to keep it from turning over until the arrival of a tow car which extricated the taxi and frightened occupants. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are none the worse for the scare.

Mrs. Ruth Flowers who is convalescing nicely from a recent operation will remain at the home of her mother on Union Avenue North during Mrs. Henderson's absence from the city.

Lillian Evanti Is Acclaimed at Naples "Black Belts"

Naples, Italy, July 1.—(A. N. P.)—Mme. Lillian Evanti, who has had concert triumphs both in America and also abroad, won the praise of critical Italian professionals when she appeared here in "Rappresentazioni Straordinarie," in which she sang the title role of Opera Traviata.

Her operatic debut, which climaxes a long period of study under foreign masters, was commented upon by leading Italian papers, one of which is as follows:

"Last night, the Signorina Lillian Evanti was warmly feasted by the public and deservedly so, in the role of 'Violetta' in 'La Traviata.' Her part, in truth, gives full value to her voice, which is well modulated and true to pitch. She gave to the personage a combination of poetry and dramatic feeling, with a style full of grace and of beauty. She was greatly applauded at the end of each act and at all of the high points."
