

One of the Season's "Finds"

Beautiful Blanche Dunn, one of the bright spots of the current theatrical season. She recently appeared in Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds of 1930" and was undoubtedly a main attraction of this popular Broadway show. The calm graceful appeal of her personality helped cause the "click" at the box office window.

Unlucky Effort to be True To Her Sweetheart down the narrow room, eventually stopping where he had stood before. "I can hold only one thing against you, honey," was his stern rejoinder. "You didn't give me any warning and went right on up to the last night receiving my attentions."

"Yes," she conceded, "but I was giving you a chance."

"Not much of a chance, I'd say," he chortled.

She stood up, tall, imperious and beautiful.

"You'd better run along now and get ready for your scene with me," she counseled. "It's almost time for our act."

He moved lightly to the door.

"Do you mean to carry out your plan and marry the doctor?" he interrogated.

She nodded, lit a cigaret and began to hum a little selection about love and moonlight and roses.

"Well, I'll tell you one thing," he expostulated, "I'll never stand for you to marry another man. And somehow or other I shall manage to keep you from it."

"Is that a threat?" she demanded.

He shrugged. "Take it as you like," he snapped, and reluctantly withdrew from the room.

She went right on with her humming, and it was not until they were deep in the performance of their act upon the night of the play that she realized the significance of his threat.

When it came to the scene where she was to stab him, she did a good job of it and he fell upon his face, moaning pitifully. He was scarcely still when she pressed the "prop" revolver to her temple and pulled the trigger. There was a loud explosion and she crumpled into a deep "prop" chair.

Nobody in the audience thought anything about this, and began to applaud the actors. But when they discerned a thin crimson thread trickling from her left temple they knew there had been something in the form of a blunder on the part of some one connected with the gathering of the properties for the performance. She had actually shot and seriously hurt herself.

Lenn Schubert leaped to his feet, faced the audience with his long arms thrown out like an orator in a stirring passage and exclaimed:

"She is seriously injured. That was a real bullet. Get a doctor quick. She may die!"

A man leaped upon the stage and shoved him to one side making his way through the crowd of actors and stage hands that had gathered round the prostrate girl.

"She is dead!" the doctor announced. "There is nothing to be done for her."

Such was the price she had paid for love.

A few unmailed letters at her home proved that she still loved Lenn Schubert, and was aiming to break off her engagement with the doctor. But of course the love sick swain didn't know this.

"Where did that revolver come from?" the sheriff demanded, also appearing on the stage.

One of the property men said, "Why, Lenn Schubert brought that gun over for the act."

Which explained it. Instead of the gun being loaded with a blank it had been loaded with a real cartridge and

But nobody knows what made the girl press the muzzle against her temple, for even if the gun had contained a blank, she would have been hurt.

The case attracted wide attention through-out the state of Missouri.

TESTED RECIPES

ORANGE CARAMEL

6 oranges, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup cream, pistachio nuts.

Pare oranges, removing membrane with peel, and cut crosswise, in slices. Put sugar and water in a small saucepan, and boil quickly, until syrup is a golden brown. Arrange layer of orange slices in glass dish; sprinkle with sugar; pour over enough of the syrup to form a thin coating over the orange; add another layer of orange and syrup; repeat until orange is used. Beat cream until stiff, pile lightly on the orange, and sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts.

RUSK AND ROLLS

Here are two recipes that will answer the very common question "What shall I serve in the bread or biscuit line that will be different and attractive?" Both are easily made and both are delicious:

Five o'Clock Tea Rusks

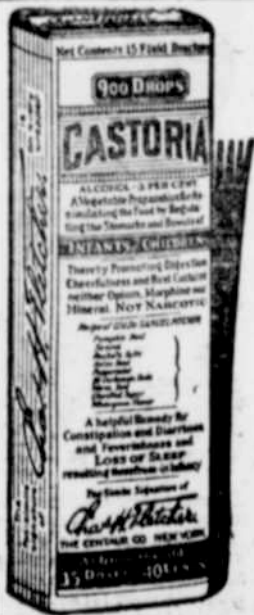

2 1/2 cups special cake flour, sifted, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, or other shortening, one egg well beaten, 2-3 cup milk or water.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, spices, and brown sugar, and sift together three times. Cut in shortening. Combine egg and liquid. Add liquid gradually until soft dough is formed. Turn on floured board. Cut in 1-inch pieces. Shape into balls. Place together in well-greased shallow pan. Brush with milk, sprinkle with additional brown sugar. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes two dozen small rusks.

Cream Dressing

A cooked dressing made with cream will be found excellent for serving with vegetable, meat or fish salads. Mix together one-half tablespoon salt, one-half tablespoon mustard, three quarters tablespoon sugar and one tablespoon flour. Then add the yolks of two eggs, beaten lightly, three tablespoons melted butter, three-quarters cup of cream or rich milk and one-quarter cup vinegar. Stir constantly in double boiler, cooking until the mixture becomes thick. Strain and cool.

Wakeful restless CHILD needs Castoria

WE can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Other times it's constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked promptly. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't you should call a physician.

Readily obtained at any drug-store, the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature and the name Castoria on the wrapper like this:

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother continues it in more liberal doses as a child grows up.
