

A'LELIA WALKER, One of Country's Striking Characters

Loses 5-Hour Fight with Death

MISS A'LELIA WALKER

A'LeLIA Walker, only daughter of the late Madam Charles James Walker, and president of the C. J. Walker Company of Indianapolis, Indiana, was buried recently in New York.

Twelve years ago at the death of Mme. Walker, she succeeded to the presidency to the company which her mother had started in one room in 1905 and through her own genius and energy built into the million dollar class.

Mrs. Mae R. Perry, Mme. A'LeLIA's only daughter, and second vice president of the Walker Company, will probably take her place as head of the large concern. Mrs. Perry's son, Gordon H. Jackson, Jr., aged six, representing the fourth generation of the Walker family, is now in the custody of his father, a Chicago physician.

Four years ago Mrs. Perry after divorcing the physician, eloped with Marion R. Perry, a Little Rock, Ark., attorney, to Greenwich, Connecticut, where they were married.

Silence in Apartment

Silence reigned in the splendid Walker apartment at 80 Edgecomb Avenue, Monday, when the announcement of the death of Mme. A'LeLIA was announced.

Here green and orchid living rooms in which gathered the most interesting people of New York, reflected Miss Walker's love of music. Here stands a baby grand reproducing piano, nearby a radio and a victrola.

Her favorite seat, a studio couch with attached book cases, occupies the center of one side of the room and every where are elephants, one large enough for a seat, others smaller, in jade, china, velvet, metal, ivory and ebony.

The Walker heiress who lived for a time at Irvington-on-the-Hudson in the half million dollar palace with 39 rooms, 19 baths, swimming pool, etc., her mother left her, preferred this apartment for a home.

Three Husbands

Three husbands she had were John Robinson, married in early youth, when puppy love flamed, then Dr. Wiley Wilson, New York physician, whom she divorced and finally Dr. J. A. Kennedy, a physician on the staff of Tuskegee Veterans' Hospital, who divorced her in March, 1931, after she had advised him that she never intended to spend as many as six minutes as far south as Tuskegee. They had been married five years.

Left One-Third of the Estate

Under the will of the first Mme. Walker, Mme. A'LeLIA was left one-third of the net proceeds of the business and two-thirds to charity.

Villa Lewaro, the magnificent home on the Hudson, was left Mme. A'LeLIA for her life, and at her death to the N.A.A.C.P. or the organization doing most for colored uplift. Efforts to sell the property at auction recently failed. The highest bid was $50,000 for property assessed at $170,000.

Wore Lounging Pajamas

During an interview, Mme. A'LeLIA gave a reporter several weeks ago she wore black silk lounging pajamas that trailed the floor.

An inquiring reporter of the New York Tattler ascertained that she wore only specially made shoes at $46 a pair, and gorgeous dresses and ensembles from a 57th Street shop costing hundreds. She drove her own $5,000 Lincoln special.

A Tippler's Whimsy

Lawyer—Then you say that this man was drunk?

Witness—I do not. I simply said that he sat in his car for three hours in front of an excavation waiting for the light to turn green.

Hogs Don't Need Mud Baths

There is a popular notion that mud baths are necessary to happy and contented hogs. Some farmers even provide mudholes for their porkers to wallow in. But the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture says that hogs can live without mud. What is more, this bureau claims that your piggies will be healthier and make more wholesome food for human consumers if they do not have to live in mud and filth. Therefore, the bureau favors clean, dry concrete floors for pig pens.
