

New York Has Deputy Attorney-General

Harry Bragg, Clergyman's Son, Occupies One of City's Most Important Posts. Mrs. Bragg, Childhood Sweetheart of 25 Years Ago.

Harry Graham Bragg, son of an Episcopal clergyman of Baltimore, came to New York fifteen years ago and with the aid of the Tammany leader, Ferdinand Q. Morton, has

Nervous, Weak, No Appetite

"Before I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so cross my husband asked what the matter was. I had no appetite and my back and head ached most of the time. I am now on my fourth bottle of Vegetable Compound. It certainly has made a great change in me. I do my work and feel in good spirits." —Mrs. Jessie Anderson, 1236 N. Senate Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

risen to deputy attorney general of New York in the big state building opposite the Tombs Prison.

His dad wanted him to be a preacher, and he tried a year in a seminary. He liked law better and now his work requires offices in the state building and on John Street, with assistants of both races. His stenographer may be white, but her job is to take dictation; not to figure on the color line. That is the way New York's Democratic organization rewards its voters.

Married Lillian Hughes

Mr. Bragg married a childhood sweetheart, Miss Lillian Hughes, of Baltimore. Let no man tell him that puppy love doesn't last. It does. The high school kids who once shyly held hands as they walked home from Douglass High School and spooned on the front steps of great buildings in Mt. Vernon Place have been happily wed for a decade and have two children, Lillian, the second, and Harry, Jr., in their apartment at 580 St. Nicholas Avenue.

Childhood Sweethearts

Bring on your advisors to the love-lorn who make fun of first loves, and the Braggs will give them a laughily stare. They fell in love twenty-five years ago when yet in their teens, and believe it or not, they're still turtle doves.

Deputy Attorney General

Asked for a photograph, Mr. Bragg gave the APPO the last one in his possession. "I don't need it," he said. "I have the original. I am aware, however, that one who gives his photo to the police department or to the press does well to keep his house in order."

Asked if the photo would show any gray hairs, Mr. Bragg said, "I boast of none, but oh, the arid spots." "An intimate friend told me the other day that I should be elated that such indifferent hair was fast disappearing as it detracted from a sometimes possible likeness."

Scandals of Washington

Teachers' Husbands

The old teachers who have begun to feel the matter of age creep up, are constantly fighting amongst themselves over a possible male to send through school (and then skip out). All men lying around loose are snatched up.

Nine out of ten teachers have taxi-cab drivers and porters for husbands. Then, the school girl has to have her morsel. So it is a constant wrangle. But if you are brave, attractive, a good mixer and letter writer, then your unemployment problem is solved. Come to Washington...

Oh, yes, I nearly forgot! If you are planning on coming this way and joining our colony, you must be able to present your credentials. Have money, a large car, a cocktail shaker, a soft accent, introduction from the editor of the Blue Book of your town, your college degree and someone's husband.

Teacher and ex-Snob

And for the part which prompted me to write this. Yes, I'm one of Washington's teaching army... Anyway, my dethronement came by way of my disclosing the occupations of two hosts! Mr. and Mrs. Brown had been giving parties for months, and I had always been on hand. Then my cousin was suddenly dropped from their list, because she knew what the hosts did! Silly, you say. But you see, the dear souls were janitor and seamstress, respectively. Real climbers. Naturally, I sided with cousin, having no other choice. Now, for the kick...

When my friends heard of it they were moved to tears. Not of indignation but of anger. They realized they couldn't eat the Browns out anymore without endangering their prestige. They were good and mad about it, too. Off their register I went! Don't laugh.

Well, anyway the gay whirl goes on without me. Ever on. Impossible to turn back, which is rather good for some of us.

Since I'm now on the "ex-" boat I guess I'm out. That is, until pay day. I'll give a fashionable tea then, and be received back with open arms from a perfectly adorable vacation. Prodigious-to-be me!

You curl your lip and call us snobs. But we are not a bunch of snobs. We're simply getting adjusted. I'll admit it's taking quite a few years, but doesn't it take LIFETIMES to prepare for hell?
