A "Ship" dinner given by the Girl Reserves was the high light of last week's events at the branch.

By seven-thirty on the evening of Friday, June 24th, more than an hundred guests were seated about the beautifully decorated tables, arranged banquet style with centers of greenery through the wreaths, adorned with bright-blue flowers. At each place was a tiny "ship" favor.

Mrs. Carrie Ingersoll, chairman of the Girl Reserves Committee, acted as captain of the "ship" and at each port where the ship stopped, the officers and passengers were greeted by other captains in the persons of Mesdames Thelma Flowers, Bonnie Bogle, Katherine Gray, Jessie Flowers, Emma Stanley and Jesse Grayson. At the Port of Conference, Miss Christyale Maxwell conferred honors upon the following Grade School Girl Reserves and presented each with a pretty rose-bud in which was concealed a ring. The girls who were thus honored are: Jessie Edwards, Eunice Mott, Beatrice Coleman, Ivia Fuller and Charlotte Morgan. Aila Booker was away on her vacation but she was mentioned as one of the honorees. Miss Eunice Mott recited the pledge in a most convincing and talented manner.

High School Girl Reserves were also honored at the same port with impressive candle and ring service conducted by Miss Elizabeth Summers, acting executive secretary of the branch. This group included Misses Julia Mae Blanchard, Ruth Scott, Nellie Ingersoll and Gertrude Williams. Brief speeches were made by Mesdames Thelma Flowers, Bonnie Bogle, Jessie Flowers, Jesse Grayson, Emma Stanley and Katherine Gray. The principal speaker of the evening was Miss Jane Doyle, executive secretary of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Jesse Grayson led a group of Grade and High school reserves in songs which enlivened the affair. A large force of waiters in their white jackets served the dinner which was in three courses and very tasty.

Mrs. Norma Williams planned the entire affair and she was assisted by a committee. Miss Elizabeth Summers made the white sailor caps worn by the waiters (girls). Mrs.

BOOK REVIEW

"BEHIND GRAY WALLS"

By Patrick C. Murphy (Caxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, Ia.) Reviewed for THE ADVOCATE by CLIFFORD C. MITCHELL

The author, Patrick C. Murphy, at the time of writing this book (1927) was a life prisoner, No. 2335, of the Idaho State Prison, and he writes descriptively, frankly and entertainingly of life behind gray walls of that particular institution.

While the author presents bits of autobiography here and there in the book, such sketches are not predominant and are very subtly weaved in only to illustrate a personal conclusion or opinion. The most interesting feature of the book, to me, is the skillful and pertinent manner in which Murphy truthfully analyzes and describes the various types and characters that are to be found in prisons, as well as the one in Idaho.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

Rev. and Mrs. Wilson and their son will leave Wednesday to visit friends in Northern California and in San Francisco. They will be gone for a month and will motor down.

During Rev. Wilson's absence, the pulpit will be supplied every Sunday morning by a visiting minister. Every Sunday evening service begins at 6:30 and closes at 8 during July and August.

Sunday evening, July 10th, song service; July 17, young people's service; July 26, Men's Day and July 31, Women's Day.

Thelma Flowers is Chairman of the Committee of Management.

The dinner was a benefit to send Miss Julia Mae Blanchard and Miss Lena Hillsman to summer camp at the Girl Reserves Camp at Bainbridge, Washington. They left on Wednesday for a ten days' period.

The Trojans recently elected the following officers: President, Roy Lee Spicer; Vice President, Charles Rawlins; Secretary, George Maunier; Treasurer, Oscar Johnson; Sgt. at Arms, Leon Johnson and Bill Law, temporary chairman of Board of Governors. In order to purchase new basketball suits for the team, the club plans to give a dance in the near future.

The boys have planned many interesting activities for the ensuing year, including the attendance in a body, to all of the colored churches.

The High School Girl Reserves are attending stay-at-home camp at camp Pier.

FASHION REVUE

BRILLIANT

Dame Fashion had her say here on last Tuesday evening when more than twenty pretty, living mannikins some youthful and more youthful, maids and matrons, tiny youngsters and a lone young man, clad in correct attire for every occasion, paraded in before a capacity audience in Madame Isadore Maney's second annual Style Revue.

The Mount Olivet Baptist Church parlors had been transformed into a "thing of beauty" with the artistic use of a profusion of garden flowers,—pink roses, sweet peas in baskets, blue delphiniums and numerous tall, graceful palms laced with floor lamps which flooded the place with soft rose-hued light.

Madame Maney's artistic mind had conceived this "Deauville Salon" as a smart setting for the models in which to exhibit their garb.

The Revue, quite appropriately began with models depicting yesterday, today and tomorrow.

It was the charming Mrs. Nadine Porter, demure and petite who wore a gown of brown silk, gold trimmed, a relic of the early nineties. It was an heirloom in the family of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith and was loaned for the occasion. Mrs. Porter was "Miss Yesterday". Miss Evelyn Freeman, wearing a pretty frock of sheer pink chiffon with matching accessories, was typically beautiful as "Miss Today".

Miss Thelma Unthank, Jr., and Constance Jean Maney, 4, dressed in brief but colorful bathing-suits prophesied what the coming years would do to styles.

In the world of fashions, no style show can possibly be complete sans its Gandhi dress and it remained for Master Evan Porter, 4, to model the spotless white linen loin cloth.

Sports Togs Next

Then came an array of sports togs. Pretty Mrs. Thelma Unthank led this group wearing a jaunty two-piece white linen suit, organdie blouse with neck-line collar and white hat and nockle.

Others in this group were Miss Lena Hillsman, blue and white crepe, made by her grandmother, and matching accessories; Mrs. Effie Johnson wore a pink and white knit ensemble with white fox scarf, with matching gloves, hat, purse and shoes and was stunning; Mrs. Wilber Moersch was pretty in a green and white knit sports outfit with matching shoes, hat and purse; Rose Smith was charming in a two-piece "peppercorn" suit with which she wore black oxfords and a black and white, soft brimmed hat made by her mother; Daisy Lee Wright was fetching in a red and white sports suit, matching accessories. Miss Wright also modeled a semi-sports top coat, fur-trimmed; Ozle Mott was sweet in a brown and green silk, collegiate sports outfit, made by her mother with which she wore a green woolen tan and brown oxfords; Jeanette Christian was stunning in a white Shantung with red cape, white hat and shoes, dress made by Mme. Maney; Shantung was also used by Juliet Mills in her pretty blue outfit with which she wore darker blue hat and shoes, particularly becoming to her type of beauty.

Robert Price, the only young man mannikin was handsome in a dark blue coat, white flannel trousers, a white panama hat and black and white oxfords. He carried a walking cane.

Afternoon Frocks

Nellie Ingersoll's beauty was enhanced by a crisp white organdie frock with cape collar and deep flounce with which she wore cerise moire slippers; Carolyn Carter was dear in a flowered chiffon gown as was Jeanette Christian in green organdie made by her sister, Mme. Maney, with which she wore a skirt-length "rainbow" silk ribbon sash, white fur scarf and a large picture hat of orchid flower hair; Mrs. Inez Duke was stunning in a creation of black chiffon with a long green satin sash, large black picture hat with matching gloves and slippers; Eunice Mott wore a dear frock of blue crepe made by her mother and Bettie Patton was sweet in a blue lace frock.

Mrs. Lucile Crosswhite was charming in a cerise taffeta, matching moire slippers; Mrs. Thelma Unthank wore a becoming gown of black chiffon, silver metallic trimmed with cerise velvet sash; Mrs. Inez Duke appeared in a gorgeous yellow tulle, ruffled and edged around the bottom with matching net; Mrs. Ruth Flowers was charming in a beaded yellow flowered crepe, cowl neckline, back and front, with which she wore black beaded slippers and carried a quaint beach bag; Misses Helena and Grace Searle were pretty in blue silk crepe, designed and made by Miss Helena; Birdie Mae Coleman and Inez Foster were sweet in blue crepe and pink satin respectively; Julia Mae Blanchard was beautiful in a smoke-blue lace gown, silver slippers with which she wore a blue lace shawl; Beatrice Cannady-flat crepe with train, niled green Franklin wore a backless, nile green pink and orchid silk rose applique, the trimming was a gift of Mrs. J. W. Latimer. A pink lace short jacket and orchid satin slippers accompanied her attire. Mrs. Franklin de- signed and made her gown and jacket. Jeanette Christian was attractive in a flowered cream taffeta. Miss Christian also modeled a white satin wedding gown belonging to Mrs. Lenora Gaskin, a recent bride. In this attire she led the grand finale march in which all the models participated.

A feature of the entertainment was a "School Days" stunt in which Miss Christian acted as the school ma'am, and her pupils were: De Norval Unthank, Jr., Jean Constance Maney, James Wilson, Jr., Evan Porter, Jr., Earla Lee Washington, Maxine Clark, Charlotte Morgan, Jessie Mott and Bobbie Crosswhite. All were outfitted in appropriate school togs.

Mme. Maney was charming in a creation of beige chautreaux flowered chiffon made with cape jacket. Just preceding the fashion parade, a program was rendered consisting of music and readings. Bernice Williams, solo; Edgar Williams, Mrs. Edgar Williams and Clarence E. Ivey, trio; Misses Ruth Scott and Nellie Ingersoll and C. Ivey, trio, all accompanied on the piano by Miss Julia Mae Blanchard, Miss Eunice Mott delighted with readings from Dunbar.

Mr. C. E. Ivey announced the models and the program. Music was furnished by an orchestra composed of Louie Richardson, Jerome Franklin, Melvin Dawson, Harvey Chandler, Phillip Moore and Russel Jones, entertainer who sang "Paradise" which he specially dedicated to Mrs. Jerome Franklin and Miss Jeanette Christian while they modeled their evening attire.

Twenty tables were arranged in the saloon which accommodated more than a hundred people. Delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. G. G. Gardener is president of the Searchlight club which sponsored the successful affair as a benefit for the club.

Tables were loaned by Clarke Brothers, Nicklas & Son and Nicks, florists; Floor lamps by The Trading Post and rugs and davenport and other furnishings from the Maney residence.

Writing of the popular young newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grigsby and their wedding, the Denver Star among many other things has the following to say: "Organ notes, June flowers and candle light held the attention of Denver last Saturday, the eleventh, when Miss Theresa Wigley became the bride of Mr. Lee Edward Grigsby of Portland, Oregon. The ceremony took place at 6:30 in the Scott M. E. Church, the Rev. S. M. Riley, officiating. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Emma Quade of Alamosa, Colorado, sang "I Love You Truly". Miss Quails was beautifully gowned in white moire. Miss Ursula Orme, also gowned in white, rendered two very beautiful solos, "Thank God for a Garden" and "O, Promise Me".

The wedding party was grouped about the altar, which was transformed into a lovely garden scene: palms and white and pink peonies with soft lights from many white candles gently glowing. The centre was a lovely arch, formed of peonies and summer greenery.

Mrs. Oliver Seymour, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and was resplendent in white chiffon, made with long full skirt and finished with hip-bone length jacket. She wore a picture hat of horse-hair, and her bouquet was the same as the bridesmaids, but larger.

Little Delno Louise Folk and Wanda Louise Simon, flower girls, Ridgeley Simon and Earline Polk, pages, and Barbara Seymour, ring-bearer, all wore dresses patterned after those of the bridesmaids.

The bride entered on the arm of Mr. L. H. Lightner, wearing an exquisite gown of ivory satin, close fitting bodice with long hung sleeves and long full skirt with circular train. A veil of ivory tulle fell from a cap bordered with orange blossoms. Her bouquet were white calla lilies enhanced her striking type of beauty.

The motif of black and white was carried out very cleverly by grouping the male attendants on one side of bride and groom and the bridesmaids on the other, with all so arranged that the tallest of each group was nearest the centre and making a gentle slope to the altar.

Mr. Wade Waller acted as best man. Rev. Riley closed the ceremony by having the bride and groom kneel on a satin pillow for a brief and impressive prayer. All during the ceremony, beautiful soft strains of music pealed from the organ under the fingers of Miss Katherine Cochran.

Mrs. Ella Wigley, the bride's mother wore a lovely gown of triple sheer beige chiffon with close fitting bodice and full skirt. Her hat and all other accessories were of brown.

Mrs. Lewis, of Los Angeles, the bridegroom's mother was very handsomely gowned in egg-shell satin with matching accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home.

Never has any beautiful home enjoyed so many distinguished guests of so many distinguished guests as the home of Mrs. Ella Wigley, 2801 Gilpin street, shortly after the wedding; After a beautiful wedding came the incomparable reception of beauty, art and devoted mother by a loyal friend and devoted mother who appreciated her daughter, who was a companion and her helper.

This reception will always be a sweet memory of the achievements of the daughter and the mother.

For traveling, the bride will wear a stunning blue suit, fur trimmed, blue slippers and red hat and bag.

The wedding was said to be the largest and most beautiful ever held in Denver society. Standing room was at a premium and the large crowds filled the streets trying to get a peep into the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grigsby have arrived in Portland and are domiciled at 347 Welder street. Portland welcomes this charming young couple.

Miss Nellie Allen, the charming daughter of Mr. W. D. Allen, arrived in Portland from Marshall, Tx. where she taught piano at Bishop college. Miss Allen went to Washington and motored here with her brother, Robert who is a student at Howard University. Miss Allen is undecided whether she will teach again next year or go back to school. She plans to enter the University of So. California summer school late in July.
