

INRAGED FATHER IS KILLED BY OWN SON

Helpful hints

By NANCY LEE

Every day or so a woman complains about the way in which the men spend money. Are they spending more than usual or is the depression making it more noticeable?

Some men give over their entire pay checks to their wives. Others give them a monthly allowance; and others pocket their checks and let their wives make their own pin money; while still another type is not even bothered with the bills, but leaves them entirely to the wife to earn the money to pay the bills with. This propensity to make a good showing is carried to extreme by Americans. American husbands are indulgent, not only to their families but to themselves. They want to appear prosperous — "The American dollar talks!"

NEGRO, FIRST MAN DECLARES NOTED EXPLORER

New York, Aug. 11—The first man inhabiting the globe probably was a Negro, is the view expressed last Tuesday by Dr. Albert E. Andre, explorer, who will lead an expedition to Tibet in the autumn. Dr. Andre further believes that the Chinese are members of the white race and that the American Indians and Tibetans are closely related.

"I hold there are only two races," he says, "the white and the black. All other shades are results of mixtures of these two."

QUARREL WITH MOTHER FATAL

SONS PLEAD WITH IRATE FATHER, THEN WARNS

ST LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 8—In the wee hours of Sunday morning July 31, James Connerway, 25, of 2726 Adams street, shot and killed William Connerway, 50, his father, in an altercation growing out of the elder Connerway's attack upon the mother, Mrs. Ozie Connerway. The shooting took place at the Adams street address, where all the Connerways reside.

Mrs. Connerway and her two sons, James and George, were locked up in the holdover Sunday morning; James being charged with murder and Mrs. Connerway and George were also arrested.

According to the testimony of George Connerway at the coroner's inquest, the father came home about 2:30 and immediately began to quarrel with the mother about her money, which Connerway had in his possession. Holding out the money in his hand, Connerway dared her, in violent manner, to even touch it. James and George tried to reason with their father, telling him he should be ashamed of himself. The elder Connerway grew more violent, however, moving towards a corner in the room in which a double-barreled shotgun was kept. George grappled with his father, and in the struggle, George was thrown across the bed and the shotgun knocked to the floor by the father who made an unsuccessful grab for it. James, who had been following their movements, seized the fallen gun and pointed it at his father, who advanced upon him. He warned: "Don't come on me, papa. Don't come on me!" The father continued to advance and James fired once. The elder Connerway fell face downwards upon the floor in a pool of blood.

The Connerways, recently from Mississippi, are reported by neighbors to be quiet and peaceful.

HOUSTON NEGROES MAINTAIN RECORD IN FATAL BATTLES

HOUSTON, TEXAS, AUGUST 11—Determined to maintain their record as criminal and murderers, Houston Negroes went on a rampage Sunday, killing three members of their race and otherwise raising hades generally.

Two Negro women, Mattie Bell Johnson and Georgia Ross, met death in a fight Sunday night. Prutha Washington, another Negro woman, was arrested Monday and charged before justice of the Peace Campbell R. Overstreet with murder of her two female antagonists.

Adolph Blabb was stabbed fatally by his assailant who escaped in the dark. No arrest had been made at reported time.

Death in each instance was due to stab wounds, the wielders of the knives proving their dexterity and skill in this respect and thereby decimating the ranks of their race and unholing the race's reputation for criminality and disregard for human lives in Houston and Harris County.

IMPRESSIONS — GOOD AND BAD

Since this column has become, more or less, nationally established, the writer, like all other publicists, is constantly receiving literature, letters, pleas, etc., on which the senders claim that they desire our opinion (meaning, of course, publicity) and of course in a general way we are glad to render whatever assistance is possible.

A great many of these communications, and the follow-up methods used, make a favorably impression upon us, while there are a great many others, unfortunately, that create a most unfavorable impression, even though, in some instances, the logic and theories set forth are excellent and entirely commendable.

This release is therefore specifically written with the hope that some of our organizations, existent and proposed, will give some serious thought to the unfavorable impressions they are creating by sending out communications that are poorly prepared, both as to arrangement and mechanical effect, for no matter how excellent the proposition may be, any letter or other piece of literature that is almost unreadable or is otherwise poor in its appearance creates almost instantly a very bad impression on the entire proposition.

In front of me is a letter and a circular (received during the week) of a proposed organization which is desirous of consolidation the Negroes (in their particular community) into one organization for economic and political purposes. They particularly stress the importance of Negroes achieving success only on a competitive basis and through superior efficiency, yet their circular is so poorly constructed, so full of typographical errors, so full of imperfections due to using the wrong kind of paper that a negative impression is formed without giving the matter further investigation.

Sometimes a very excellent proposition creates an unfavorable impression merely by using one or two prejudiced statements. For instance here is a paragraph in a "Constitution" for a proposed national organization: "No minister of the gospel shall hold any office in this organization." And while I am no publicity agent for any group or affiliation of ministers I am unable to be favorably impressed with any effort that makes such narrow restrictions as to explicitly bar entire groups merely through some whim or prejudice against a few of its members.

Many unfavorable impressions arise when publicity seekers send in a fancy statement of their efforts but refuse to give enlightenment when a specific request is made for certain other detailed information. Or, when a promise of additional literature, information is promised, the correspondent is delinquent in sending same and you receive many alibis for its failure to arrive. All of these little things tend to create an impression, either good or bad, and should be closely watched.

VERBAL SNAPSHOTS

(By W. J. Wheaton)

Well, we didn't exactly pack our troubles in the "old kit bag" but but we swept them into a corner of the garage and for two glorious weeks we have listened to the murmur of the brook; the whispering tales of the tall fir and majestic Redwoods; the splash of the tide on the beach and the roar of the ocean over the breakers. We left behind us the intrigues of politics and the hypocrisies of sectarian religions and found contentment in nature and comfort in contemplation. In preparing for solitude and retreat from the hubbub of office seekers, we never fail to include our library. This one that I have carried in the pocket of my coat. Yet, between its covers are all the subjects that are of interest to man, law, science, oratory, romance, war, love. Everything pertaining to the guidance of man can be found in the turn of a page. Today, Sunday, where this is written, we are in a natural cathedral. Twelve majestic Redwoods in a circle form the auditorium. Falling foliage has made a luxurious carpet. The altar, a huge boulder of granite. Would you believe it, there's a preacher. His little beady eyes look with suspicion on the audience as he chatters his sermon which, unlike those of most preachers, is short. Soon he flips his bushy mantle and scampers away, up through the branches, out of sight. A mother quail is calling to her scattered brood; there is an anthem sung by a feathered choir. My book has opened to the "Sermon on the Mount." Never before has it seemed so beautiful, and as we left that natural sanctuary, the mountain forest seemed to intone a benediction. There was a restful peace. A communion which "passeth all understanding." There is a majesty in the heavens at night. The stars shine with increased brilliance, and as we contemplate on the vastness of infinite space, the ordinariness of Nature and the magnitude of God's Creation, we exclaim in the language of David, "How wonderful are thy works, Oh, God!" It is with reluctance that we even think of leaving this peace and rest to return to the struggle and strife of active life. But such is life!

SCRAP THE WAR DEBTS ON CONDITION THAT THE NATIONS DISARM NOW

That Weber-Wilson debate the other night was a good deal of a frizzle, with honors as far as facts are concerned to Mr. Wilson, who, as a seasoned debater was careful to verify all his statements before he used them. According to an article in the Christian Science Monitor of recent date, it is not true that in prohibition countries, there is an increase in crime because the young cannot get all the booze they want, or that the booze sellers want them to want. The most dignified argument I have heard against the law is "that it is an interference with personal liberty." Well, yes, it is — but so is the colored traffic sign at the crossing. I wish these personal liberty hewers would do the Robinson Crusoe act and find a nice soft spot in the American Desert and live where their precious personal liberty would be safe. I wonder how they would like it and how long it would last. Just a word of caution to the ladies who staged the debate — my dear girls, can you not see that you are being used as catspaws by the men who are old hands at the camouflage game? Just so long as you (they) can keep up this very dramatic farce of sidetracking the public interest from the larger issues of the political campaign just so long can they proceed with their devilish schemes of enslaving the American nation. Don't worry, my dears, you will be caught in the web just the same as the rest of us. While you are fighting for the cocktail freedom, your chains are being forged the same as mine. You recall what Lincoln said? "A nation cannot exist half slave and half free." This nation of ours is now in the worst slavery it has ever known. It is nine tenths economic slavery now. Starvation, poverty of every kind and your organization of fine women fooled by the politicians into playing the game of the remaining one tenth — a selfish game. The only consolation that we who have ideals and are living up to them or trying to do so, can get any comfort out of it, is that you will be enslaved like the rest of us. Just take a day off and look into that phase of the argument.

Recent statistics from England, a no prohibition country, says that since the war, the number of crimes among juveniles has greatly increased.

How many of the Advocate subscribers read THE NATION, a weekly journal of which Oswald Garrison Villard is editor? If you do not subscribe for it, buy the August 3rd number and read the editorial under the caption, "Is it to be Murder, Mr. Hoover?" It is a terrible indictment of things as they have been left by Congress and the President.

Last you should shrug your shoulders and say, "some more of Kits Ried's hysteria," let me quote the last paragraph:

"The eight hundred Indianians who marched on their legislature declared that they were facing "mass starvation or suicide." That is what the whole country is facing. Mr. President, you have boasted the absence of bloodshed and rioting in this depression. Beware! Be guided by the approaching despair of the multitudes. WE KNOW THAT THE REGULAR TROOPS ARE READY, AND THAT THE NATIONAL GUARD HAS BEEN SPECIALLY COACHED IN RIOT DRILL. But their guns are no remedy, Mr. President. They will merely add to the horror of the situation. What is to come? Must Americans perish miserably because of your fear that their characters may be sullied by the dose? It is to be mass murder, Mr. President? The answer rests with you and you alone.

In the news-Telegram, an item appeared under date of August 3, "National guardsmen have been posted to guard the armory here." No reason for the guard duty was given.

It there anything in the foregoing paragraph that seems at all significant? And with this situation facing the Nation, we find groups of the finest women in our communities fighting for their dinner cocktails!

Tested And Proven Best.
"Blindfold" test may be all right for cigarettes — but when buying face powder, it's a good idea to keep your eyes wide open.
Not unlike other articles of merchandise, there are good face powders on the market and face powder not so good — in fact, inferior and dangerous to one's complexion.
Ours has been tested and proven best. Use this simple little test yourself.
Put one-half teaspoonful of our face powder in your hand and pour in an equal quantity of water. The water will run off which proves emphatically that it is water-proof and we guarantee it to be free of lead, bismuth salts or any other harmful ingredients.
Beware of imitations! Insist on Overton's High-Brown Face Powder — 34 years on the market—made in six shades.
