BOOK REVIEW
 (Reviewed by Clifford Mitchell)

"PASSING BY"
 By Mrs. Joseph K. Love
 (Christopher Pub. House, 1140 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts)

Mrs. Joseph K. (Katherine Neal) Love, of Portland, Oregon, has written in this little volume, "Passing By," many delightful and soul-inspiring poems through which, when read in serious moments when alone with one's thoughts, brings to mind the beauties and wonders of this great universe of ours, especially the great out-of-doors and all things belonging strictly to nature.

The poet takes each unit of this great universe and through it builds the most beautiful thought in the flower, the bird, the hill, the tree, the garden and all such are presented to us in poetic lines that charm and make one cherish and revalue the higher works of nature.

She also brings in the beauty of friendship, love, service and personal actions that denote character and a love for the finer things in life in direct contrast to the gold-loving and evil-scheming designing after values that have no lasting endurance.

Particularly did I enjoy reading this little book while alone one night in my new environment, listening to the sweet strains of distant music brought to me through one of nature's wonders—the radio—and in such a setting I could the better drink in the real beauty of the ideals expressed by the poet.

"AFRICAN ROYALTY" SEES EUGENE CITY JAIL

Eugene, Oregon July 6—K. D. (King David) Ryalls, colored, was arrested by city police following a disturbance in the basement of the Packard garage Sunday. The man was later released. He said his initials, K. D., stood for King David and said he was the son of the king of the King David tribe of Africa. Police had no way of communicating with the tribe to verify the statement, but didn't think it worthwhile anyway.

POLICEMAN SHOT WHEN ON VISIT

Washington, D. C. July 1—William A. Fish, 29 year-old special policeman was shot and fatally injured last Monday while visiting in the home of Edward B. Moorman at Lyon Park, Virginia. He had been shot over the heart with his own revolver when police officers found his body.

N. A. A. C. P. PROTESTS LYCHING OF TENNESSEE WHITES

New York, July 1—A protest against the lynching of two white men by a mob at Huntsville, Tennessee, on June 8 and a request that the lynchers be caught and punished was sent to Governor Hill McAllister by Roy Wilkins, assistant secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People last week.

THE LINDBERGH GIVE ESTATE AS REFUGE TO CHILDREN OF ALL RACES

Baltimore, Md., July 6—To provide for the welfare of children, including their education, training, hospitalization and other allied purposes, without discrimination in regards to race or creed.

Such was the specification of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, internationally famous flyers, in the announcement last Friday of the gift of their $800,000 estate at Hopewell, N. J., to charity. Their action was believed prompted by a desire to create a memorial to their first son, Charles, Jr., at the scene of his tragic kidnapping and slaying March 1, 1932.

Doctor Abraham Flexner, trustee of Howard University, was one of the five trustees appointed for the non-profit making corporation to which the Lindbergh's estate was turned over.

As a refuge for children the estate will be known as High Field.

NEW ENGLAND SOCIAL WORKERS CONFER

By Louis G. Gregory
 Camp Atwater on Lake Lashaway at East Brookfield, Mass., is quite beautiful. It has given to its present site over a period of twelve years an impressive monument to its founder and director, Dr. William N. DeBerry, outstanding colored clergyman of New England. It is also a sign of racial cooperation. A number of the wealthiest and most influential whites of this section that the "Dunes" Community Service of Springfield of which this camp is a part, as a clearing house for their benefactions and social relief. The camp covers fifty-four acres and is improved by a number of attractive buildings and does a much needed service for colored boys and girls. During the past week it was the place of entertainment and meeting of the Third Annual Conference of New England Social Workers, a fine gathering of useful people, breathing hope and happiness in a way that put depression to flight. Among those present were all of the moderate school of thought, a liberal sprinkling of whites attended the meetings.

The conference was happy in the selection of Mr. George W. Goodman executive secretary of the Urban League of Boston as chairman. He outlined the future of the conference, following the note of welcome extended it by Dr. DeBerry. The plan of the conference was a series of brief addresses by socially active leaders, their remarks followed by discussion. One of the most notable addresses was that of Mrs. Cecilia H. Saunders, secretary of the Harlem branch of the Y. W. C. A. who unfolded opportunities in the field of Christian service. She mentioned the need of preparation, knowledge and inspiration, with a clear understanding of the needs of the changing order of the world. Internationalism, she felt, was something real that had come to stay. While bravely pursuing the ideal, Mrs. Saunders proved herself alive to all possible chances for the advancement of her people. Mr. Samuel A. Allen of New York, gave a forceful expression to the idea that unfortunate who are helped should be aided to earn what they receive.

Dr. R. A. Lawson, of Hartford, piano virtuoso, and many years music teacher of high standing, told how success was won in his profession. He is one of very few musicians who is a college graduate. He is convinced that a musician should be well educated, even if such an application delays his professional work. Although Mr. Lawson has won his way entirely through the patronage of whites, he has never abandoned his own people, serving for thirty years as choir-master and organist of a colored church without a salary. A feeling tribute was paid Mrs. Lawson, wife of the speaker, by an old friend.

A period of discussion was given to the training, led by E. J. Whalen, member of the vocational council of the City of Springfield. He believed that children should be taught what to do with their leisure, how to select their occupations, and that parents should encourage them while their habits are forming. Some felt that the problems of the colored race are so involved, that a special council ought to be organized to assist the vocational council with such special problems.

Mr. Alton Holsey, of New York, a member of the Business League and representative of the C. M. A. Stores, made a fervent plea to the Negro to support his own enterprises even at a sacrifice, lest all Negro graduates find themselves in blind alleys in skin economic opportunities. A lively discussion followed, the gist of which was that colored business must be supported and colored business men honest so as to merit support. Dr. T. E. A. McCurdy and Attorney Matthew Bullock, physician and lawyer, both of Boston, presented openings and problems in their respective professions, bringing out many things of practical value. Another interesting speaker was Mrs. Dorothy Fassitt on problems in social work. The prayer service conducted by Rev. P. G. Moore of Providence had a special beauty. Mr. Elmer A. Carter, editor of Opportunity magazine, graphically portrayed the great chances of a political and social nature going on in America and throughout the world. Revolutionists are making an appeal to the Negro and other aggrieved groups. America can offset all such dangers by according all its citizens full rights.

The final speaker was Max Yergan, hero of the dark continent, whose words so alive and full of thrills were listened to with breathless interest. The devotion of the speaker to his work and the results being won bro't an unusual power into the conference. The musical program, conducted by Mrs. Dorothy Richardson, was of a very high order. The work of the conference in all its phases was so valuable for vision, inspiration, hospitality and true happiness that all who attended are eager for its return.

"This & That"
 By CLIFFORD C. MITCHELL

A visitor from New York
 The first long distance visitor to call upon me was Joseph P. Whalen, Sales Manager of the Southland Products Company, New York, who came to Chicago, to contact the Insurance executives attending the annual convention of the National Negro Insurance Association.

Mr. Whalen, as he says, paid me the honor of calling upon me first, so I imagine he wanted to see what kind of a curiosity I really am. You see I have corresponded with Mr. Whalen for a long time. Thanks for the visit, Mr. Whalen.

The additional papers to whom I am grateful for transferring my name on their "exchange" list from Jackson, Michigan, to 3507 South Parkway, Chicago, are:

East Tennessee News, Knoxville; Atlanta Daily World, Indianapolis Recorder-Negro Star, Wichita; Negro World, New York; Wyandotte Echo, Kansas City; Dayton Forum, Dayton, Ohio; News Star, Newport News, Va.; Palmetto Leader, Columbia, S.C.

Quite a number of the editors wrote their papers haven't arrived yet, except the names had been changed but kept after being forwarded to me from Jackson, at much delay, etc.

I am indebted to L. J. Rhone, editor of the Waco(Texas) Messenger, for his splendid editorial tribute on my accomplishments. And to Sigaboe (St. Gabee) Goff for his compliments in his "Jazz the Rialto" column in the California News, of Los Angeles.

Dr. W. Lee, the well known columnist writes in to send an "orchid" to Earl J. Morris, who recently wrote in his "State Street, Chicago," in the Courier, in my defense.

Le says he is sending a bouquet to Morris in his next column. I shall patiently watch the papers for it for Mr. Morris, as far as I am concerned, is worthy of every boost he can secure, from any source.

Incidentally, Mr. Pratts of the Associated Negro Press took the trouble of bringing Earl Morris up to meet me. Thanks, to both of you.

Other callers at the office include, Edgar G. Brown, well known writer and former national tennis champion; Harrison M. Gilligan, of the Chicago News Service, New Orleans; and the letters that arrived from the members of the profession are so many that I shall not even attempt to list them for this whole column would be used up with nothing but names—names—names. Many thanks, though, to all of you and I'll answer each one personally if I don't drop from sheer exhaustion.

Almost forgot to thank Chas. G. North, away down in Miami, Florida for his cheering message in his "Your Ami and Mi Ami" column in the Miami Times.

I'm an uncle now. Mrs. Mae Granter Thompson, of Montgomery, Ala., who calls herself my "sister" writes to tell me all about her little daughter, just born, Clara Nell Thompson, and how happy the parents and grandparents are.

That's all for now!

PULLMAN'S INJUNCTION CASE VS. PORTER CO. TRIED BY FEDERAL JUDGE WOODWARD

 long list of figures purporting to show that the porters had opted in large percentages for the employee plan while Hunt contended were irrelevant and immaterial since the elections were company controlled.

Because of the strength of the testimony on the matter of Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters being a bona fide union of Ashley L. Totten, national secretary-treasurer, who was primarily responsible for the beginning of the Brotherhood of the Pullman Company was afraid to cross examine him.

The case of the Brotherhood was reinforced and fortified by testimony from Bennie Smith, Second Vice-president, who was fired by the Pullman Company. It is said, because of refusal to sign wage conference agreement of 1926. Under cross-examination by Brotherhood counsel, Mr. Walter Lynch, Mr. Smith was asked what happened after he refused to sign the Pullman Company agreement while employed in the service.

Counsel Kelly for the Pullman Company objected to this question, but to the general delight of the members of all persons in the court including Pullman officials, Judge Woodward answered the question by jocularly observing that "he supposed he was fired."

Mr. Smith was followed on the witness stand by Spencer Watson, organizer from Kansas City, and E. J. Bradley of Saint Louis, who victoriously crossed swords with the Pullman counsel on the nature of his position in the Porters union; C. L. Ellms who is third Vice-president stationed on the Pacific coast, and J. C. Mills, of Chicago.

The trial ended Tuesday noon but counsel for both sides agreed to furnish briefs and statement of findings of facts to the court. It is expected that the decision will be handed down in the case at a very early date, and Brotherhood attorneys are confident of a favorable decision.

Immediately following the trial of the case, according to A. Phillip Randolph, National President of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, a meeting of the General Executive Board whose chairman is M. P. Webster, will be held in Chicago, after which aggressive program on future action of the Brotherhood will be presented. Plans will be devised to push the organization of the Pullman porters in the Porters Union with vigor and force throughout the country and to protect the interest of the porters and maids under the recent emergency railway legislation, observed Randolph.
